YARD TEAMS ON MURDER SWOOPS

'Gangbuster' raids in London

By T. A. SANDROCK, Crime Correspondent

TWO HUNDRED police swooped on London houses and premises yesterday and missed by two minutes 38-year-old Joe Sewell, named by Blackpool police as a man they want to question about the murder of a police superintendent and the shooting of two other policemen. The "near miss" happened in Brixton.

The murder inquiries were linked with another operation carried out by Scotland Yard's "gangbusting" squad, who raided homes in East and South-East London.

The squad, whose aim was to smash an organised crime syndicate which they had been investigating for months, took 11 men to City Road police station for questioning. They were still there last night.

Officers investigating the murder also visited houses, clubs and other meeting places in Brixton, King's Cross and Islington throughout Monday night.

By last night every policeman in Britain had been shown a picture of Sewell, whose full name is Frederick Joseph Sewell.

He is described as 5ft 10in tall, with a fresh complexion, light brown hair and blue eyes. Police also want to question another man known only as "Doug."

Pancho moustache

He is believed to have a Pancho-style moustache and is said to be stockily built. He speaks with a slight Scottish accent.

The Metropolitan police were helped in the raids by 20 Blackpool police.

They had travelled south when it was feared that Sewell had slipped through the cordon thrown round the resort after Monday's jewel raid which led to the murder of Supt Gerald Richardson, 38, head of Blackpool sub-division of Lancashire police.

All the police who took part in the London raids were armed, as were officers who were on alert along the M1 motorway.

Forces along about 200 miles of motorway from the North into London were alerted.

Scotland Yard and Home Counties police set up special patrols to search for a green car which a motorist had said, in a telephone call to Sheffield police, contained two men.

One of them, he said, fitted a description issued by police.

Five-man gang

Earlier it was established that a five-man gang had travelled from London to Blackpool on Saturday or Sunday in two stolen cars.

They had at least four automatic weapons, including an automatic pistol which is believed to be still in the possession of the two men believed to be in London.

One of the cars believed to have come from London was a Ford Capri.

It was found parked a few hours after Supt Richardson was shot dead.

Shotgun cartridges and a loaded revolver were discovered in the boot of the gold-coloured car.

The false number plate RJH 960H may have belonged to a Ford Escort.

Police also found two cloth check caps, two pairs of gloves and a suitcase containing a first aid kit in the car.

Left early

A Blackpool guest house owner, Mr Jim Thompson, 51, who runs Silverdale private hotel in Holmfield Road with his wife, Jean, told of a weekend guest who, he believed, was a member of the gang.

Mr Thompson said that a man with a Pancho-style moustache booked in on Saturday night using the name "Jacobs".

He arrived with a briefcase and registered for two nights. Although he slept in his room on Saturday night, he left early on Sunday before Mr and Mrs Thompson got up.

They did not see him again until Sunday night when he returned and extended his booking to include Monday night.

"I asked him if he wanted a door key in case he was going to come in late," said Mr Thompson, "and he said: 'No, I am

£ IMPROVES ON IMF REPORT

By CLIFFORD GERMAN
Financial Correspondent

A REPORT that officials of the International Monetary Fund had recommended sweeping revaluations in major currencies moved the pound and most continental currencies up on foreign exchange markets yesterday.

The pound touched $2·44¾ before closing at $2·44⅝, equal to an increase of 1·9 per cent. on the official parity.

The report was apparently well documented, and recommended that the Japanese yen should be revalued at 15 per cent. against the dollar, and the German mark should be raised by 13 to 14 per cent. above its old fixed parity obtaining before the mark was floated in May.

The pound and the French franc should be increased in value by a little over 7 per cent. and minor currencies revalued by lesser amounts, in relation to the dollar, the report suggested.

It added that the dollar should be devalued by about 5 per cent. in terms of gold.

"Not authorised"

On that basis, the official price of gold would rise from $35 to about $36·75 an ounce, but the sterling price of gold would be cut by about 2 per cent.

The sterling value of Britain's dollar reserves would fall by the full 7 per cent., but the value of the gold content by only 2 per cent., in order to reduce the overall effect on the value of the reserves.

M. Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, managing director of the IMF, claimed last night that the report could not be considered authentic unless and until agreed and authorised by the fund.

Official spokesmen in Washington and London emphasised yesterday that even if they were authentic the recommendations of IMF officials had no authority unless approved and endorsed by a weighted vote of member countries.

TOKYO STILL HOLDS OUT OVER YEN

By Our Tokyo Correspondent

Japan reaffirmed its intention yesterday not to revalue the yen under direct pressure from the Nixon Government. It announced it was holding out for a multilateral agreement involving the countries of Western Europe.

Senior economic ministers of the Japanese Cabinet met in Tokyo yesterday after the formal Cabinet meeting and later informed the Press that Japan absolutely would not bring up the issue of yen revaluation during the ministerial-level conference of the Japan-United States Joint Committee on Trade and Economic Affairs on Oct. 9 in Washington.

Key Japanese ministers concluded that discussion of the possible revaluation of the yen could not be conducted with the United States alone.

BANK TO PAY OFF MANAGERS

By JOHN RICHARDS
Industrial Staff

FIVE hundred bank managers with the National-Westminster are to be offered voluntary payoffs of up to £10,000 over the next five years in a programme to cut down the bank's 3,500 branches.

This follows the merger between Westminster Bank and National Provincial.

The managers involved will be earning £5,000-a-year or more and will be offered four-months' "ex-gratia" payment for each year of unexpired service up to normal retirement.

Retirement is normally at 60 or after 43 years' service. Anyone over 50 who applies for early retirement will be considered for pay-off.

Most of those involved will be branch managers but the scheme could also extend to headquarters' staff of a similar rank.

Union consulted

The scheme has been negotiated with the National Union of Bank Employees and the Westminster Bank Staff Association.

No bank clerks are expected to lose their jobs because of the reduction in branches.

National-Westminster has a turnover rate of 7 per cent. among its 50,000-strong staff and would transfer staff involved in a branch closure elsewhere to fill vacancies.

Among women bank clerks, who often work only for a few years before leaving to get married, the wastage rate is about 20 per cent.

BRITONS RESCUED IN YACHT FIRE

By Our Paris Staff

Four passengers and four members of the crew of the British yacht, Sunrise, which caught fire earlier off Corsica, were rescued from life-rafts last night and taken to Centuri on the island. The yacht had sent out a distress signal at 4 p.m.

The rescued people were identified as Mr Ian Blake Fisher, 48, the owner, a company director from Guernsey, Jessie, 42, his wife; Ian, 16, his son; Carol, 14, his daughter; Mr Franju Kozulic, the Yugoslav captain, and three crewmen.

China places £20m order for Tridents

By JOHN PETTY, City Staff

CHINA ordered six Trident airliners from Britain yesterday after negotiations in Peking with Hawker Siddeley and Rolls-Royce salesmen. The planes, worth £20 million, may be paid for in gold.

The planes are to be delivered within two years and the contract is equal to six months' work at Hawker's factory at Hatfield, Herts. No extra workers, however, will be needed to meet the contract. The Hawker Siddeley group has made more than 2,500 people redundant this year.

News of the signing of the order was phoned from Peking to Hawker Siddeley in London. The call gave no indication as to whether the planes will be used to open international routes or whether further contracts might follow.

Study team

Chinese interest in the Trident began more than a year ago when Peking sent a team to study the jet at the Farnborough Air Show and at the Hatfield works. The team also visited Paris and America to look at other planes.

There have been hints that China might eventually want 100 new airliners and this gives hope of further Trident deals. The version ordered yesterday can fly 2,500 nautical miles and carry up to 149 passengers. It has three Rolls-Royce Spey jet engines.

The British team was led during the five months negotiations by Mr Johnnie Johnstone, executive director, marketing, at Hatfield. Its membership varied, experts being flown between London and Peking as the talks progressed.

Consolation order

The order will be consolation for any cutback by the United States Navy on Hawker Siddeley vertical-takeoff Harrier planes after President Nixon's 10 per cent. imports surcharge.

The Chinese have also been studying Concorde.

Last year, Britain exported goods worth £44,600,000 to China and imported goods worth £33,500,000. Until yesterday, this year's trading with China had been disappointingly lower.

Principal imports include frozen rabbit, bristles and textile materials. Exports are dominated by metals, diamonds and chemicals.

CHINESE TRADE FOR YUGOSLAVIA

By Our Vienna Correspondent

China has expanded her trade with Yugoslavia and has placed a number of big orders with Yugoslav shipping and electrical industries, the Zagreb weekly paper, Vus said yesterday.

Relations between China and Yugoslavia were being strengthened and closer economic co-operation was in view after the signing of first business contracts, it said.

TANZANIA CLASH WITH UGANDA

FIGHTING between Chinese-led Tanzanians and Ugandan soldiers flared yesterday on the border between the two countries, about 200 miles south-west of Kampala.

President Amin of Uganda said that the Tanzanians had attacked across the border seizing four Ugandans. In a counter-attack, artillery, vehicles and machine-guns were captured and a number of Tanzanians were killed.

Gen. Amin ordered the border closed on July 7 after he claimed that 670 Ugandan soldiers had been killed in clashes with guerrillas supporting Dr Obote, who was ousted in a coup in January. He now lives in Tanzania.

Body produced

At a Press conference in Kampala yesterday, Gen. Amin produced the body of a Chinese in a Tanzanian officer's uniform, said to have been killed in the fighting.

The man was said to have begged for mercy before he died, saying he was "only a Chinese sent by Nyerere" (Tanzanian President). He told Ugandan soldiers he had nothing against Uganda.

Gen. Amin cancelled a visit he was to have begun yesterday to Northern Uganda.—Reuter.

FANS RAVE AT INDIA'S TEST WIN

Daily Telegraph Reporter

INDIA'S Test cricketers fled from hundreds of cheering spectators who invaded the Oval pitch yesterday after India had beaten England for the first time in Britain.

India scored 174 for six in their second innings to win by four wickets the decisive third and final Test. The victory marked the end of a record run of 28 official Test matches in which England has not been beaten.

The ball was soon lost in the rush for mementoes. To save the stumps, an umpire brandished one threateningly over his head.

Engineer, the Indian batsman, was carried off on the crowd's shoulders, clutching his bat firmly to save it from being snatched.

Colourful clothes

The predominantly Indian spectators gave the match an atmosphere like that of a football match. They wore colourful clothes and chanted, cheered and waved flags.

At lunchtime, when India was 146 for five, spectators ran on to the pitch shouting "India, India" and calling for the team captain, A. L. Wadekar.

For many the hero of the Test was Chandrasekhar, whose bowling on Monday put India on the road to victory. Chandrasekhar, a victim of poliomyelitis when a child, taught himself to bowl left-handed after the disease weakened his right arm.

After the match, Ray Illingworth, the England captain, told the crowd: "The Indians have proved themselves to be a world-class side."

Wadekar was lost for words. "I just don't know what to say," he said.

Ulster will not be blackmailed, says Faulkner

By T. E. UTLEY in Belfast

MR FAULKNER, Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, put three questions yesterday to the Opposition parties which are supporting the campaign of civil disobedience in Ulster.

Did they imagine, he asked, that they could ignore the existence and the rights of a million fellow citizens? Were they doing their followers a service when they surrendered to the extremists instead of taking up on their constituents' behalf the responsibilities of worthwhile participation in the country's affairs?

Thirdly, did they imagine they could make common cause with the extremists today and hope to escape their clutches tomorrow?

Mr Faulkner began by reaffirming that neither the Westminster Government nor his own would ever be coerced or blackmailed into abandoning the status of Northern Ireland as an integral part of the United Kingdom.

There were considerations of community life, he said, which far transcended the aims and activities of political parties or semi-political movements.

"Can any of us progress, can any of us prosper while the various factions of the IRA and their associates are allowed to infect the whole atmosphere in which we live?"

He denied that internment was being applied in a partisan manner.

The instructions to the security forces were that any dangerous men on whom they had reliable information, marking them as definitely implicated in terrorist organisations, should be arrested.

Internment was in itself a detestable instrument and no panacea for Northern Ireland's problems, but the Government was convinced it was necessary.

The Government had put forward within three months of coming to office concrete and far-reaching Parliamentary proposals intended to assure what most observers felt was a very fair and useful part for the

10 BATHERS SAVED FROM SEA

Daily Telegraph Reporter

AT least ten swimmers, some of them children, were snatched from a dangerous current by lifeguards and members of the local surf lifesaving club at Perranporth, Cornwall, last night.

They were caught in the current between Flat Rocks and Droskyn Point and swept out to sea. Some were 150 yards from the crowded beach when rescuers reached them.

All afternoon flags had been flying warning visitors that it was too dangerous to bathe. Then within minutes of the flags being taken down and holidaymakers told they could go into the sea cautiously, bathers began to get into difficulties.

Like corks

One lifesaver, Mr Alan Homes, who was patrolling just offshore, said: "It was incredible. Everywhere bathers were being sucked off their feet.

"They were racing past me like corks. We had no sooner pulled one to safety than we were swimming out after another."

The mass rescue brought the total number pulled from the sea by lifesavers at Perranporth in a summer to a record 69.

ILLITERACY NOW A DISEASE OF THE YOUNG

By JOHN IZBICKI, Education Correspondent

MORE than half the country's known adult illiterates left school within the last 10 years, according to the interim findings of a report to be published early next year.

The preponderance of adults unable to read or write no longer belong to the "older generation." They are aged 25 and under.

Mr A. Williams, president of the National Association of Remedial Education, whose annual conference is being held at Clacton-on-Sea, told me last night about these findings. A survey is being carried out by the association's adult illiteracy sub-committee.

It was no longer valid, said Mr Williams, to rationalise illiteracy by attributing it to the disruption of wartime.

Poignant replies

Students learning to read in about 200 classes being held at institutes throughout Britain made "poignant" statements in response to the survey. These are some of their replies:

A FATHER: I want to be able to keep pace with my five-year-old daughter.

A TEEN-AGED GIRL: Learning to read will help me to get a boy friend.

A WORKMAN: I can be a foreman as soon as I can read.

But the most significant reply, said Mr Williams, was simply: "I want to be a normal person." The survey was of 400 illiterates.

Feelings of guilt

Mr Williams, whose work concerns the education of handicapped children in Hull, added: "There is no official recognition of illiteracy in adults. But more than 2,000 such people attend classes.

"Only a very small proportion of adult illiterates, however, go to classes. Most suffer from tremendous feelings of guilt and are too embarrassed to attend."

There was no means of finding out exactly how many such illiterates there were.

More than half the men attending illiteracy classes were described as of normal intelligence and above. In only 10 per cent. of cases was the lack of reading ability attributable to lack of opportunity.

Over half had left school within the past ten years. Only one-eighth could read the simplest of newspapers on admission to their classes.

Unemployment among men attending the classes was three times as high as the national average. Ten per cent. of the inmates of prisons were illiterate and about 25 per cent. were "very poor readers."

Among the best-known institutes with special classes for adults unable to read or write are the Manchester Council of Social Services and Cambridge House, London. Some colleges of education also hold classes.

Mr Williams said that the association's present nationwide survey was the "only such survey ever carried out in this country."

RACHMANISM CLAMPDOWN BY COUNCILS

By SHELAGH McCORMICK, Local Government Correspondent

LOCAL authorities are slowly but gradually tightening up on "Rachman type" landlords who are over-letting properties and cashing in on the housing shortage.

A spokesman for the Department of the Environment said yesterday: "More and more councils are applying for powers to control multi-occupation."

So far 17 are on the Department's list but it is accepted that progress is slow partly because the controls themselves call for enough staff to "monitor" premises.

Authorities taking advantage of the powers are mainly in overcrowded major cities and in central London. But Windsor, in Berkshire, a tourist attraction with its castle and Royal associations has also taken controls.

Mr G. N. Waldram, the town clerk, said yesterday: "We think we have about 250 houses out of the 9,000 or so in the area that were built for the spacious Victorian days when the court moved from London to Windsor but which now can only be run as flats or bed sitters.

"We decided to take control powers because accommodation is in demand in Windsor and because we are both near to London airport and the Slough trading estate. We are already a dormitory town." Bed sitter rents are said to be around £5 to £6 a week.

Health hazards

In other areas the controls have been taken to stop overcrowding which creates health hazards and indirectly to help families who are charged exorbitant rents for accommodation.

Houses have to be registered under the control scheme, so health department officials are in a better position to advise tenants who may have landlords "sailing near the wind" legally.

Lewisham council, the latest in London to apply registration, will from Sept. 1st require landlords of any house occupied by more than two separate families or by one family and more than four lodgers to register with its health department.

Other councils which have taken action are Lambeth, Hackney, Tower Hamlets, Greenwich, Newham, Croydon, Enfield, Manchester, Newcastle-under-Lyme, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Oldham, Eccles, Walsall, Sheffield and Stoke on Trent.

Councils can prevent new families moving into registered homes when someone leaves and penalties include fines of up to £100, three months' imprisonment or both if the law is flouted.

3 ACCUSED OF CONSPIRACY

A woman and two men were accused at Bedford yesterday of conspiring to murder Christine Browning, 19, daughter of the licensee of the Bedford Arms public house, Bromham Road, Bedford.

Robert Crawford, 24, unemployed, of Niton Road, Fulham; Christine Gibbs, 28, of the same address; and her brother, Barry Gibbs, 25, also unemployed, of Station Road, Acocks Green, Birmingham, were remanded in custody for a week.

Turriff sued in row over Barbican

Daily Telegraph Reporter

THE Corporation of London has started proceedings for breach of contract against Turriff Construction Corporation in a dispute over part of the City's Barbican scheme.

The Corporation said last night that a writ had been served.

This followed a statement by Turriff that they are withdrawing from the Barbican site because "we are having to bear losses in excess of £4 million on the contract."

The Corporation said last night: "We do not accept statements attributed to the directors of Turriff, and in paricular deny we have repudiated the contract with Turriff for this development."

Immediately after the Corporation's statement, Turriff said at their Warwick headquarters that they would start their own proceedings against the Corporation.

No alternative

A spokesman said: "In view of the Corporation's statement, we have no alternative but to commence proceedings for damages and for the recovery of the losses we have had to bear on this contract, which are well in excess of £4 million.

"Phase two of the Barbican is our phase and it is about 80 per cent. completed. It is for four blocks of flats, one tower block, two maisonettes and the City of London School for Girls.

"We have completed and handed over two of the low blocks of maisonettes and the school, but until the Corporation find someone else to carry on the work, the rest is bound to be seriously delayed."

The main reason for delay and vastly increased costs, Turriff contend, has been the failure of the Corporation to meet contractual obligations.

They claim that thousands of extra drawings involving changes in the work reached them part-way through the contract.

Major dispute

The Barbican was the centre of a major dispute earlier this year when the City Corporation decided by a narrow majority to go ahead with an arts centre there despite rising costs.

In March, Turriff issued a writ against the "Mayor and Commonalty and Citizens of the City of London" claiming damages of £5,330,000 for an alleged breach of contract in regard to the group's work on the Barbican scheme.

On Monday the firm said that the writ was never served.

Rising costs are certain to lead to rent increases for tenants in the Barbican. Rents were recently raised by eight per cent. in the yearly review of one block of flats.

£1,000 RENTS

Five-year leases

OUR LOCAL GOVERNMENT CORRESPONDENT writes: Rents in the Barbican range from £325 a year for bed sitters to £785 a year for two-bedroomed homes and up to £890 for a five-bedroomed flat in the first low-level block to be completed. Rents in the uncompleted tower blocks will be up to £1,000.

The City lets on five-year leases, with a reduction in rent while work is continuing.

Catholics still joining Ulster Regiment

By Brig. W. F. K. THOMPSON, Military Correspondent

PROTESTANT applications to join the Ulster Defence Regiment have trebled their usual rate since the introduction of internment on Aug. 9. But far more significant is the fact that Roman Catholic applications have not diminished.

The success of the regiment depends on it being a non-sectarian organisation. Great pressure is being applied to Catholics to discourage them from joining or remaining in it, and considerable moral and physical courage is required to ignore this.

The fact that Catholic applications to join have not diminished belies the growing belief that there is no such thing as moderate opinion in Northern Ireland.

Since the introduction of internment a number of Catholics have resigned, particularly from the Belfast and Londonderry battalions, which with that of Co. Down had the highest number of Catholics. But the number so far affected has been much exaggerated for propaganda purposes.

The Catholic content has, however, been reduced from about 16 per cent. to 13 per cent. This is out of a recruited strength of 4,198.

Non-sectarian basis

Command of the regiment has recently been taken over by Brig. D. L. Ormerod, a serving officer and a Catholic. He served in the Royal Irish Fusiliers, although his family is not normally resident in Ireland.

To ensure the non-sectarian outlook of the regiment each individual applicant to join it is studied by experienced "vetters" from London.

For the same purpose there is an advisory council composed of three Protestants and three Catholics. All are leading men in their communities.

The council meets monthly under the chairmanship of the colonel-commandant, Gen. Sir John Anderson.

Forty-five per cent. of the regiment are ex-Ulster Special Constabulary and 25 per cent. ex-Servicemen. About 50 per cent. have no previous experience.

Of the 4,198 members 3,700 are fully trained. Since Aug. 9 some 2,100 of these have been on duty over each period of 24 hours, about 1,000 being on duty at any one time.

STORMONT ATTACK AGREED

By COLIN BRADY in Dublin

STORMONT'S chief opponents on both sides of the Irish border believe Ulster's troubles could be settled through talks between London, Dublin, Belfast and "representatives" of the Roman Catholic minority in the North.

The Eire Government and the Northern Ireland Parliament's abstentionist Opposition, the Social Democratic Labour party, are agreed that Stormont in its present form must be replaced by a commission as a forerunner to a completely new administration.

Details of how this could be achieved are vague, however, and no concrete ideas have been put forward, but the principle has been agreed between the Northern Labour party M Ps and Mr Lynch, the Eire Prime Minister.

In a brief statement after Monday's meeting between the M Ps and Mr Lynch, the M Ps were simply approved by Dublin as the voice of Northern Ireland's minority, but no full support to their projected campaign of civil disobedience in Ulster was guaranteed.

American campaign

Mr Lynch favours what he calls "passive resistance," meaning that protesters should not retaliate physically to the security forces' efforts to clamp down on disorder.

The bond made between the Northern M Ps and Mr Lynch was a gesture of contempt to the I R A's attempts to set up its own separate Parliament and grasp control of the mounting civil disobedience campaign.

Mr Gerry Fitt, leader of the Social Democratic Labour party, and Mr Brendan Corish, chief of the Irish Labour party, met in Dublin yesterday on the eve of Mr Fitt's departure for America on a campaign to "counteract British propaganda."

ARMY PRAISED FOR ULSTER PRESS 'FREEDOM'

By Our New York Staff

High praise is given to the British Army for its efforts to assist journalists from all over the world reporting the Ulster disturbances in a dispatch to Editor and Publisher, the American trade journal, from Edwin Roth, its British correspondent.

This co-operation was being given even at the cost of some embarrassment for the Army, he said. As in all armies under battle conditions . . . incidents of needless brutality and some vandalism happened.

"But Army officers who could very easily have prevented news media representatives from witnessing such incidents, or from being shown the evidence of them immediately after they happened, made no attempts to do so."

MAIL VAN SET ON FIRE BY GUNMEN

Four masked gunmen drove across the border into Eire in a stolen car yesterday after stopping a Post Office van, ordering the postmen out at gunpoint, ransacking it, and setting it on fire at Forkhill, Co. Armagh.

In Belfast bandits dragged a man from his home and fired two shots at him as he lay on the ground, but missed him. Mr Andrew Finnegan, 57, was also hit on the head with a gun butt.

Later a Roman Catholic family of six were treated in hospital for burns, after their home at Deadman's Hill, near Keady, was set ablaze by petrol bombers. None was seriously burned.

APOLOGY BY POLICE CHIEF

Daily Telegraph Reporter

DET. Chief Supt James Loughran, head of Warwickshire and Coventry C I D, who was responsible for excluding the Press from a murder remand hearing at Coleshill magistrates court, Warwickshire, on Monday, yesterday apologised to the magistrates for his action.

The apology was made through Mr E. W. Treacey, clerk to the justices, who had said that he intended to report the incident to Mr Dennis Prosser, chairman of the magistrates.

At the headquarters of the National Union of Journalists in London, Mr Eric Blott, deputy general secretary, said he expected the local branch of the union would be drawing the attention of the national executive to what happened.

In that case, they would consider making representations to the Chief Constables Association or to Mr Maudling, Home Secretary. "We cannot have policemen interjecting their personal opinions as to whether or not to admit the Press," said Mr Blott.

A spokesman for the Law Society said that even if evidence had been heard on Monday, the exclusion of the Press would not have invalidated the proeedings. He added that the Society kept a careful watch to ensure the police did not exceed their powers.

Murder charge

Before the court was a girl aged 14 who was charged with the murder of Róisin McIllone, 5, in Chelmsley Wood, Warwickshire.

Although there were no journalists in court, the magistrates directed that the name of the accused girl, her address and school must not be published.

Only evidence of arrest was given. The police then asked for a remand in custody until Sept. 1, and this was granted.

Mr Treacey said yesterday that at the time he did not know the Press had been excluded by the police. "I was told the Press had gone," he said. "If I had known they had been excluded I would have fetched them in.

"They are entitled by law to be present. Even the magistrates could not legally keep them out. All the magistrates can do is, as in this case, to give a direction not to publish anything that would identify the accused person."

Supt Loughran apologised to journalists after the court hearing. A public apology was also made by Mr F. A. Cutting, Assistant Chief Constable of Warwickshire and Coventry Police.

MECHANIC AGAIN REMANDED

Peter Stephen Bunnage, 17, of Gaddesden Crescent, Garston, Herts, made a second appearance at Watford's magistrates' court yesterday accused of murdering Janice Ersser, 10, at Garston on Aug. 10.

Bunnage, a motor mechanic, was remanded in custody for seven days.

QUIN IMPROVES

The condition of Lindsey Grundy, one of the two surviving Bolton quins, improved slightly yesterday. She had been causing some concern. Bolton District General Hospital said both she and her brother, Christopher, were now "fairly satisfactory."

Inquiry urged into 'medical politics' threats to doctors

By CLARE DOVER, Science Staff

JUNIOR doctors in some hospitals have been told they would be blacklisted for promotion if they continued to take part in medical politics, according to the Junior Hospital Doctors' Association.

Dr Katharine Bradley, chairman of the association, has written to Sir Keith Joseph, Social Services Secretary, asking for an inquiry into such threats.

Some members of the association's executive committee had resigned over the past few years because of such pressures, she said yesterday.

"They were taken to one side and warned: 'If you go on with your medical politics, it will be the end of your career'".

The association receives about a dozen similar complaints a year from its 4,000 members, Dr Bradley said.

The conversations took place in private and it was "terribly difficult to prove discrimination." Some doctors were wary of complaining because of fears of damaging their careers.

Medical anarchist

One junior doctor, who had been repeatedly rejected for consultant posts, discovered a file describing him as a "medical anarchist."

The Junior Hospital Doctors Association is to conduct its own inquiry and is asking members to send in details of any such threats. Anonymity is guaranteed.

The term "junior" applies to any hospital doctor below the rank of consultant, and is not necessarily an indication of age. Promotion to consultant status usually comes between the ages of 35 and 42.

The Junior Hospital Doctors' Association has been active in campaigning for better promotion prospects and terms of employment for its members.

The root of the trouble, Dr Bradley said yesterday was in the "older pre-National Health Service patriarchal view of medicine, that when you were a junior you had a patron, and later became a senior yourself."

Pressures for reform

Under existing conditions, junior doctors can work from 70 to 120 hours a week, receiving overtime pay only after 102 hours. Many hospital doctors spend 15 or 16 years in junior posts.

These conditions triggered militancy and pressures for reform, Dr Bradley said. "But unfortunately Regional Boards may well look at somebody who has had a brisk political career and say they do not want this person as a consultant."

STUDY CLEARS PILL OF BREAST CANCER LINK

A two-year study by scientists in Oxford and London has found no evidence to link the Pill with an increased risk of breast cancer. Preliminary findings even suggest that it may help to prevent benign breast disease.

Dr Martin Vessey, lecturer in epidemiology at the Radcliffe Infirmary, Oxford, reported the results of the study at a recent meeting of the American Cancer Society in Los Angeles. He said in Oxford yesterday that a total of 436 women were interviewed at five London teaching hospitals.

He said the study "put in perspective the rather alarmist reports we have been getting about, say three or four women, all using the Pill, getting breast cancer."

MURDER CHARGE

A youth charged with the murder of James Large, 55, of Charnwood Close, Moxley, Staffs, was remanded in custody for seven days yesterday at West Bromwich. He is Allan Davies, 18, of Prince Charles Road, Bradley, Bilston.

441 INCREASE IN MIGRANTS DURING JUNE

Daily Telegraph Reporter

THE number of Commonwealth immigrants admitted for settlement in June was 441 more than in the same month last year. The number rose from 2,913 to 3,354 according to Home Office statistics published yesterday.

The latest figure includes 642 British passport holders from East Africa. It brings the total number of Commonwealth citizens admitted for settlement in the first six months of 1971 to 16,614, including 3,769 from East Africa.

This compares with 17,431 in the first half of 1970, a decrease of 817.

Employment voucher holders in June, 1971 numbered 397, dependants 2,476, others 554 and 127 special voucher holders from East Africa.

The following table shows the number of employment voucher holders and dependants, mainly of immigrants already here, admitted from each country during June (voucher-holders first):

LINES ON ROAD COMBAT M-WAY SPEED HAZARD

White lines painted across the road are being used in an attempt to make motorists realise the hazard of driving too fast after they have left motorways. The experiment, by the Environment Department, is being carried out at the end of the Stevenage By-pass, Herts.

Tests at the Road Research Laboratory have shown that drivers are under an illusion that they are still on a fast road for sometime after turning off motorways. The pattern of narrowing white lines is designed to break this illusion.

A spokesman for the Department said yesterday: "The experiments prove that a driver's sense of speed can be controlled by these patterns. They work on the senses quickly."

FARMER KILLED BY WASP STING

A farmer abnormally sensitive to wasp stings died less than an hour after being stung, a Derby inquest heard yesterday. He was Mr George Willett, 60, of White Hollows Farm, Ticknall, Derbyshire.

Mr William Disley, of Camberworth Avenue, Mackworth Estate, Derby, said that Mr Willett stopped breathing after being stung in a field. He gave him mouth-to-mouth resuscitation in an attempt to revive him. A misadventure verdict was recorded.

Non-union dismissal would cost £4,000

BY BLAKE BAKER, Industrial Correspondent

C. A. PARSONS & CO., the engineering firm which gave a dismissal notice to an employee who refused to join a union, would probably be liable under the Industrial Relations Act to pay compensation of up to £4,160 for such a dismissal.

But the relevant sections of the Act will not become effective until December when the National Industrial Relations Court is to be set up.

In the Vacation Court on Monday, Mr Justice Brightman said he had no doubt that such dismissal would be a "wrongful act," but under existing legislation he had no power to prevent it.

The judge dismissed an application by Mr John William Hill, 65, of Newcastle upon Tyne, to stop Parsons from dismissing him next Tuesday for refusing to join the Draughtsmen's and Allied Technicians' Association to which Parsons had given sole recognition.

He approved an undertaking agreed between the parties that the notice would not be implemented pending an action claiming wrongful dismissal. The action is a test case affecting 56 other employees who al refused to join D A T A becau they considered themselv professional engineers.

Under the new Act, employee will be free not to jo a recognised trade union if he wishes. The Act lays down th dismissal, penalisation or disc mination against him for exer ing this right will be regarded an unfair industrial practice.

In case of such dismissal, will be able to appeal to industrial tribunal or at a high level to the court, which m recommend reinstatement if finds the complaint justifie Should an employer refuse comply, compensation may ordered of 104 weeks' pay £4,160, whichever the less.

Refusal to offer reinstatem would mean higher compen tion within this limit. Althou the Parsons case would have be tested in court, its circu stances clearly contravene t terms of the new Act.

OUGH ACTION IN VICIOUS CRIME 'AR' DEMANDED

By T. A. SANDROCK, Crime Correspondent

HE Police Federation called yesterday for tougher action by the Government and rts in what it said had become the "vicious" r against crime.

Sgt Leslie Male, vice-chairman, said: "We have n trying to draw attention to the problems since 5, when we published a pamphlet called 'Thin Blue e.'

The war against crime is ar now, a vicious war. It no gentlemanly game of Sykes against the Bobby."

gt Male, of Birmingham city e, added: "There is a feel- of frustration throughout service.

Violent criminals are not g made to pay sufficiently their crimes and the service the feeling that they are getting and have not had per cent. backing from ernments or the public."

1½m offences

There were 1,500,00 indict- e offences last year. "The tem being used by the judi- ry doesn't appear to be cessful.

"They are seemingly more ncerned with rehabilitation d reforming criminals and as result over the years since post-war period, crime has bled.

"Magistrates have the power impose sentences adequate some crimes, but they have reluctance, it appears, to im- e maximum punishments. w magistrates now undergo ining courses and we hope in years to come the benefit this will be felt.

"Stiffer penalties are needed en firearms are used. A man o commits robbery may get or seven years and serve ly three or four of them.

"If he commits armed robbery initial sentence is likely to only a year or two more and actual time he will serve will bably be only 12 months re than the unarmed robber.

Paying for crime

"We don't want to hang erybody, give them all the ch or incarcerate them al for years, but criminals are not ing made to pay for their mes.

"The severity of the crime ould be reflected in the pun- ment. It should be a deter- nt, but the present system fav- rs the criminal and the rising ime figures show that the licy is not working.

"We want all the support we n get to bring opinion to bear the Government to make them take some action to remedy this.

"Urgent steps should be taken to recruit the extra 20,000 policemen we need to bring us up to establishment. These men will be beat officers, not supervisors or administrators."

The National Executive Committee of the Federation is meeting shortly. It will be attended by Mr Alfred Morris, Labour M P for Wythenshawe, Manchester, who is the federation's spokesman in Parliament.

M Ps' backing

Many M Ps have long advocated stricter punishments for criminals and argued that the reforms and rehabilitation schemes introduced in recent years are failing.

Yesterday, Scotland Yard said that violent crime in London had again increased during the first six months of this year.

Although detailed figures were not available the increase is estimated at 5·5 per cent. over the first six months of 1970 which themselves showed a 5·5 per cent. increase over the first six months of 1969.

The Law Society said that is "always a matter for each individual court." Judges "are the only people, when called upon to pass sentence, who have all the necessary information available to enable them to make the correct decision."

The Magistrates Association said that although 98 per cent. of all criminal offences came before magistrates, crimes of violence and robbery were a matter for higher courts.

Six accused of plotting to cause explosions

DAILY TELEGRAPH REPORTER

THE TWO women and four men arrested in police raids last weekend were remanded in custody until Sept. 1 by Clerkenwell magistrates yesterday.

They are charged with maliciously conspiring to cause explosions likely to endanger life or cause serious injury to property.

The six are: ANNA MENDELSON, 23, unemployed; HILLARY ANNE CREEK, 22, unemployed; JAMES GREENFIELD, 23, unemployed; and JOHN BARKER, alias BUCHANAN, 24, translator, all of Amhurst Road, Stoke Newington.

JAMES STUART CHRISTIE, 25, labourer, of Gilbert Place, Bloomsbury; and CHRISTOPHER BOTT, 24, youth leader, of Hungerford Gardens, Holloway.

The crowded court was heavily guarded by C I D and uniformed police.

Greenfield and Anna Mendelson, who stood side by side in the dock with their arms about one another, are also charged that between Feb. 12 and May 11 they conspired with WOLF SEEBERG, CHRISTOPHER BOTT, MARTIN HOUSDEN, PETER TRUMAN, IAN DONALD PURDIE, JACK PRESCOTT, CHRISTINE ANNE HAISELL, ROSEMARY FIORE and other persons unknown, to cheat and defraud such persons who could be induced to part with money and goods by the use of stolen cheque books, credit cards and identity documents, and other fraudulent means and devices contrary to common law.

Restrictions stay

Reporting restrictions on the case were not lifted. No pleas were taken from the accused.

Commander ERNEST BOND, of the Central Office, New Scotland Yard, was told by the magistrate, Mr J. D. Purcell, that evidence of arrest was not necessary.

Commander Bond opposed bail for all the accused.

Mr ARNOLD ROSEN was representing Mendelson, Barker and Creek. Mr BENJAMIN BAKER appeared for Greenfield and Bott, while Mrs TESSA GILL, of B. M. Birnberg & Co., solicitors, represented Christie.

After applications by the solicitors for the accused, Mr Purcell, granting legal aid, said that all of them could have counsel at later hearings in view of the gravity of the charges.

BOY, 14, AT RISLEY 8 WEEKS

Daily Telegraph Reporter

A 14-YEAR-OLD boy spent eight weeks in Risley Remand Centre because there was no suitable alternative accommodation, Rochdale Juvenile Court was told yesterday.

Mr LOUIS BRODY, his solicitor, said it was a "monstrous situation" in which the Home Office should be interested.

Mrs DOROTHY J. HEAP, the chairman, said: "We are very concerned that a situation like this can arrive where there is no suitable and secure accommodation for a boy of this age. We do feel it should be taken up at a higher level."

The boy was said to have committed 96 offences during the last two years. He was convicted eight weeks ago of six charges of housebreaking and the court had been told at previous hearings that he had escaped several times from remand homes.

Without success

Mr ALAN BUCKLEY, a child care officer, said that he had tried to get remand home accommodation for the boy in Carlisle and Hull without success. Now he was hoping to get him into a special care unit.

The boy was sent back to Risley for another week unless alternative accommodation is found for him.

Tourist board 'gave wrong prices for European hotels'

By R. BARRY O'BRIEN

A STATEMENT by the British Tourist Authority comparing London and Continental hotel prices has brought complaints from hotels in Paris, Rome and Geneva that the prices quoted for them are too high.

The British statement gave prices of 20 Continental hotels to show that London and Continental prices are about the same.

But the prices of eight of the Continental hotels are given incorrectly, the error in one case being £10.

Prices were quoted for a double room with private bathroom, including Continental breakfast, service charge and taxes, at hotels graded by the American Express travel agency as luxury, first and second class. The gradings are not official classifications.

In several cases, however, it seems that the British Tourist Authority quoted rates not for bed and breakfast but for full or half pension, including two lunches or dinners or both.

£3½m budget

The authority, headed by Sir Alexander Glen, is a statutory body with an annual budget of £5,500,000 from the Government, a staff of 500, and offices in 26 overseas cities, including Rome and Paris. The Swiss office is in Zurich.

Its statement is said to have been based on a study by American Express, but the London office of the agency, after confirming the price errors, said: "We don't know about this study. We are writing to New York to find out what it's all about."

In the luxury class, the authority's statement gave the Excelsior in Rome a starting rate of £28, although the real price is £18 and the top price for the most expensive de luxe room, including air-conditioning, is £22.

The Ritz in Paris is placed in the £28-£32 price range, but the prices range from £19·42 to £27·98, and most of the double rooms are £25·45, including breakfast, service and tax.

Mrs Audrey Hooper, London representative of both hotels, has written a letter of complaint to the authority.

Among American Express A grade (first-class) hotels, the Ambassador in Paris is given a tariff range from £14 to £16, but the top price for its 20 luxury rooms is 180 francs (£13·54) and it has 280 double rooms at 115 francs (£11·66).

In Rome, the Hotel Flora is given a rate of "just over £17," but the top rate is 20,000 lire (£13·40), raised to 22,000 lire (£14·74) by optional air-conditioning. The hotel said it would write to the authority's Rome office.

In the American Express B grade (second-class) list, the Bedford Hotel in Paris, graded by Michelin as first-class, is quoted at £14·40, but the hotel said: "Our most expensive room is 130 francs (£9·77) for two people with breakfast, tax and service charge, and many of our twin rooms are 110 francs (£8·27).

The statement did not quote prices for the American Express C (third-class) grade, but said that although 11 of the 54 C-grade hotels in London were in the £8-£10 range, only three of the 31 C-grade hotels in Paris were in the £8 range.

In fact, American Express lists 58 C-grade hotels in London, and 29, half of them, are above £8, with 15 (25·8 per cent.) at £7-£8, 12 (20·7 per cent.) at £6-£7 and only two (3·4 per cent.) at £5-£6.

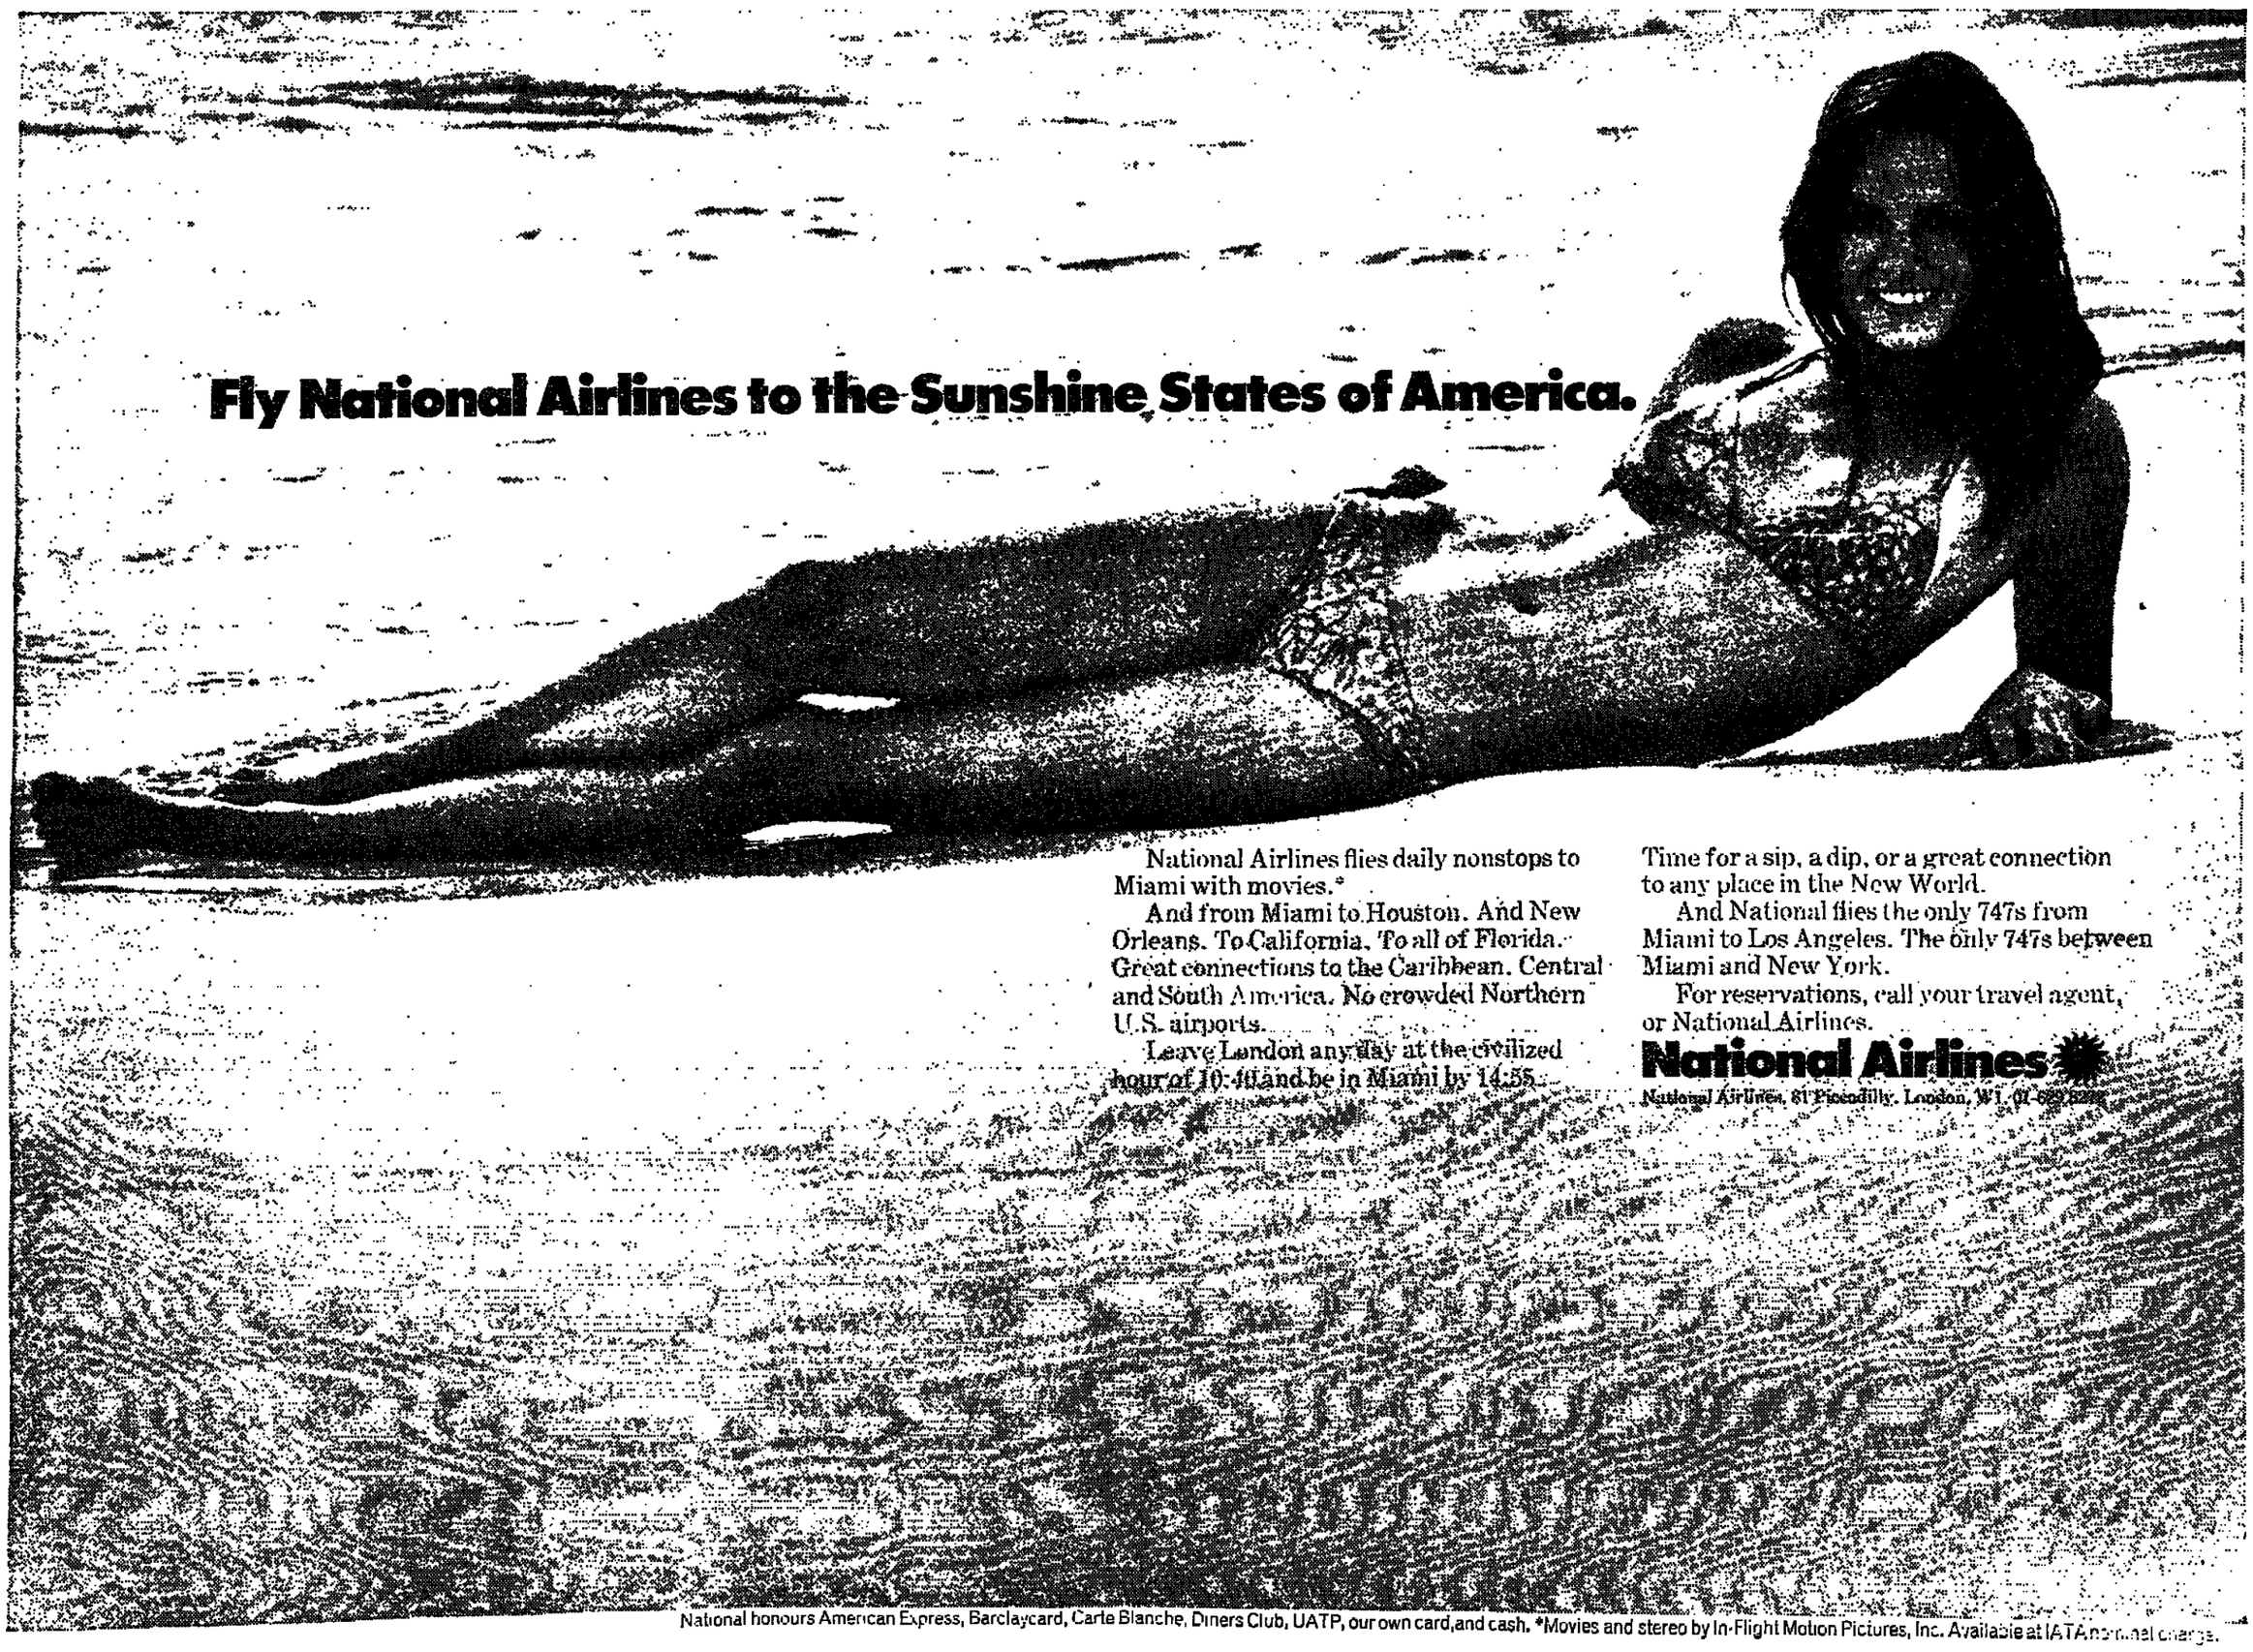
The authority said last night: "We obtained the price listings from American Express, and issued the figures in good faith."

5 BOYS ESCAPE FROM BURNING HOLIDAY BOAT

Five boys escaped unhurt yesterday from their holiday cruiser which burst into flames and sank following an explosion on the River Yare at Reedham, near Great Garmouth.

In the cruiser, Isadora, were Robert Wetherill, 17, his brothers Nigel, 16, David 15, and Paul, 14, of Bristol Road South, Birmingham, and James Swain, 14, also from Birmingham.

The boys, who had been on holiday for 10 days, said the explosion happened as the cruiser moved away from the quay. Flames spread quickly and they jumped overboard.



INDIA AT LOSS AS REFUGEES RISE TOWARDS 12m

By DAVID LOSHAK in New Delhi

WITH the influx of refugees from East Pakistan showing no sign of abating, at a rate of about one million a month, there is mounting concern in India that the figure will reach an almost unmanageable total of 12 million before the end of the year.

This estimate has been reached after consideration of the likely effects of an expected famine in East Pakistan, which needs two million extra tons of food grains even in good years, and will be at least three million tons short this year.

But the Indian Government is at a total loss about how to handle the increasingly serious situation.

An urgent policy review has begun under Mr D. P. Dhar, the former Ambassador to Moscow, who played a key part in negotiating the recent Indo-Soviet treaty. He has been given a special appointment as Chairman of Policy Planning in the Foreign Ministry.

India has completely abandoned earlier plans for all the refugees to be re-settled within six months. This is now seen as unrealistic.

But no alternative policy has been formed. The Government has been unable to come up with any answers either over *the refugee problem or its pre*cise attitude towards the East Pakistan secessionists, who are claiming independence as the new state of Bangla Desh.

Russian surprise

Mr Gromyko, Soviet Foreign Minister, and his advisers were surprised, during their treaty consultations in New Delhi, by India's apparent indecision

Policy planners are divided about whether to take the refugee issue to the United Nations, or what attitude to adopt if the matter is raised there.

A major Government worry is the effect of the huge refugee influx on conditions in the turbulent industrial state of West Bengal, which is already on the edge of social and economic breakdown.

RESHUFFLE OF GREEK CABINET

By SAM MODIANO in Athens

MR. PAPADOPOULOS, Greece's "strong man" Prime Minister, has decided on a broad reshuffle of his Army-backed Government. He announced his decision to his 27 Ministers yesterday by asking them to tender their resignations.

Some 15 Army officers appointed by the revolution as "Secretary Generals" to different State Departments have also resigned to ease the task of the Prime Minister.

No official announcement has been issued so far, but it is expected that the names of the new Ministers will be made public when they have been sworn in before the Regent, Gen. Zoitakis, sime time today.

The last reshuffle of the Revolutionary Cabinet took place in June last year.

Civilian changes

It is believed in Athens that the changes will mainly affect civilians in the Cabinet. Key posts held by the leaders of the revolution are not expected to change hands.

Mr Papadopoulos also holds the portfolios of Defence and Foreign Affairs and Gen. Patakos, the Deputy Premier, is also Interior Minister. Mr Nicholas Makarezos, Co-ordination Minister, supervises all sectors of the country's economic life.

There is wide speculation in Athens that Mr Papadopoulos may ask some former M Ps belonging both to the Conservative National Radical Union party and to the late George Papandreou's Union of the Centre party to join his cabinet.

In the past few weeks Mr Papadopoulos has been in touch with some 20 of these former M Ps. In associating them with his Government he will seek to prove the unity already attained by his revolutionary administration among nationally-minded Greeks.

TIGHTER CLAMP ON U.S. JAILS

By MABEL ELLIOTT in New York

TIGHTER security in all Californian prisons has been ordered in the wake of "Soledad Brother" George Jackson's escape attempt at St Quentin at the weekend, and reports that mass escapes are being planned.

Mr Raymond Procurier, California Chief of Prisons, said yesterday that because of rumours of a simultaneous escape attempt at other prisons, he ordered a warning to be telephoned to wardens immediately after the San Quentin incident, so that they could lock prisoners in their cells if they wished.

Such rumours, he said, had been circulating for months. He called a meeting of all state prison wardens and superintendents a week ago to discuss measures to prevent uch breakouts.

The new security measures included a ban on tape recorders, and expulsion of "underground" newspapers which were of a revolutionary nture, and gave prisoners an impression of massive support from outside.

San Quentin inmates and visitors will in future be separated by screens.

Writer seeks penal inquiry

Daily Telegraph Reporter

A CALL for an immediate investigation into America's penal system following the shooting of George Jackson was made in London last night by James Baldwin, the American negro writer.

Mr Baldwin, 47, said last night that he hoped Jackson's death would become a rallying point for black people in America. "He was not murdered on Saturday. He was murdered when he was 18," said Mr Baldwin.

Jackson was jailed $10\frac{1}{2}$ years ago, at 18, for a $70 robbery on a "one year to life"

Berlin fears 'sabotage' of Four-Power pact

By DAVID SHEARS in West Berlin

YESTERDAY'S verdict of the West Berlin man-in-the-street on the four-Power agreement on Berlin was: "We will believe it when we see it."

After 26 years of tensions, uncertainties and crises this scepticism in the isolated city is understandable.

A hotel porter shook his head and observed: "It won't do a thing for the poor devils cooped up on the other side of the wall."

A taxi driver reluctantly acknowledged that the pact would improve access to Berlin from the West and allow West Berliners to cross the wall for visits to friends and relatives in East Germany.

"But when we listen to what that Communist régime is saying"—and he jerked a finger towards East Berlin—"we wonder if it won't find a way to sabotage the agreement."

Allies' mistake

The view that it was a mistake for the Allies to delegate any part of the negotiations to East and West Germany is widespread in the city.

Critics claim that it not only opens the door to Communist mischief - making but also amounts to an upgrading of Herr Honecker's East German Government.

But Allied diplomats and Bonn officials reply that the British, French, American and Russian negotiators have laid down precise guidelines on Berlin access and it will be very difficult for the East Germans to throw spanners in the works during the impending East-West German technical talks.

B Z, West Berlin's biggest-circulation tabloid newspaper, complained that Russia had only accepted "responsibility" for civilian Berlin traffic, instead of "guaranteeing" free movement on the Berlin autobahns.

Mayor satisfied

The same commentator said the draft pact laid down that no traveller should be "turned back" at the border checkpoints, but there was no mention of the word "arrested."

But Herr Schütz, West Berlin's Governing Mayor, who belongs to Herr Brandt's Social Democratic party, claimed that Berlin's vital interests had been fully respected.

In Bonn, Herr Brandt hailed the pact at a Ministerial meeting as a "very important provisional result" of West Germany's policy.

SAIGON POLL BAN ON U.S. TROOPS

By IAN WARD in Saigon

ALL American servicemen in South Vietnam were yesterday confined to base during off-duty hours until after the country's National Assembly elections next week and Presidential election on Oct. 3.

The order was issued after an American Embassy directive requesting Americans to keep aloof from the election proceedings. Civilians were not affected.

President Nguyen Van Thieu held a series of talks with top poliitcal advisers yesterday to explore the implications of Vice-President Ky's withdrawal from the election race, which has left Thieu the only candidate.

Vice-President Ky's withdrawal followed that of the third candidate, Gen. Duong Van Minh, who called the elections a "despicable farce."

Both have alleged rigging of the polling procedure by President Thieu, though the common fear of defeat was probably the paramount reason for their withdrawal.

Silent Thieu

The one-man election that has resulted has seriously damaged President Thieu's image at home and abroad and Communist propaganda is having a field day at his expense.

In a characteristically cautious reaction, Thieu has chosen to remain silent but this has tended to give weight to the charges against him.

Vice-President Ky's refusal to fight unless the President resigns his post, hands Government over to interim control, and delays the elections for three months, is regarded as unacceptable to the South Vietnamese leader.

Some observers feel he could work towards a compromise solution, whereby he avoided conceding to his Vice-President's terms, which would be tantamount to admitting his Government's incapacity to hold legitimate elections.

But this theory is dismissed by those close to President Thieu.

ISRAELI REBUKE FOR U.S.

ISRAEL last night publicly attacked the American State Department for *creating the wrong impres*sion of its policy in the Middle East.

The attack was levelled at American statements following last week's speech by Gen. Moshe Dayan, Israeli Defence Minister, and the meeting in Damascus of the leaders of Egypt, Libya and Syria.

"We regretfully have to point out that these statements do not create the proper impression," an Israel Foreign Ministry spokesman said.

Gen. Dayan said in a speech last Thursday that Israel should take "unilateral and immediate" measures to make itself the established Government of occupied Arab territory.

Two days later he added that he was not proposing annexation of the Arab lands Israel captured in the 1967 Middle East war.

"Harmful" speech

An American State Department statement described Gen. Dayan's speech as "harmful" to peace prospects in the Middle East.

On Monday, a State Department spokesman, commenting on the Damascus meeting, said a federation of Arab States would meet with acceptance in America if it was "a genuine reflection of the public will."

The Israeli reply said that Gen. Dayan's remarks were only an assessment of the situation and not intended to alter Government decisions.

But the Damascus declaration (of approval of the proposed federation's constitution) was official policy "and therefore much gravity must be attached to its emphasis on there being no peace or negotiation with Israel."—U P I.

24 hours to read 1m words

By JOHN BULLOCH in Cairo

LAWYERS defending the 91 people accused in the Egyptian treason trial yesterday were handed the documents containing the million words of evidence amassed by the prosecution.

That left the various counsel rather less than 24 hours to read the papers and prepare their defence.

The trial, to be held in a former hotel in a Cairo suburb will open in public, though the relatives of the accused have been barred "in the interests of public security."

It is expected that the court will take evidence in private once the indictments have been read.

The chief accused is the former vice-president, Mr Ali Sabry. Also in the dock will be seven former Ministers, as well as members of the Supreme Executive of the Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's sole political party.

Court martial

Gen. Mohamed Fawzy, who was War Minister, will be tried at the same time as the civilian defendants, but will appear before a court martial.

All the charges arise from the alleged attempt by Mr Ali Sabry and supporters to overthrow President Sadat last May.

According to the prosecution they planned to spread disorder, broadcast false reports of what was going on, then call in the Army under Gen. Fawzy.

There have also been reports of plans to murder President Sadat during a trip he was to have made to Alexandria.

BOMB EXPLODES IN PARKED JORDAN PLANE

By Our Madrid Correspondent

A time bomb exploded yesterday aboard a parked Jordanian airliner at Madrid airport only hours after nearly 100 passengers had disembarked. The bomb, according to the Spanish Air Ministry, was planted aboard the Alia Airline Boeing 707 jet before it flew in late on Monday night.

The blast in the early hours of yesterday damaged the rear of the plane and tore a hole in the fuselage. There was no one on board or near and no one was hurt.

Anguillan rebellion wins new period of colonialism

By IAN BALL in Anguilla

AFTER public and private celebration of their new political status, the once-rebellious Anguillans are looking forward to the ushering in of a new golden era of colonialism.

They are probably the only people in the world eagerly awaiting a return to tutelage by a mother country, but this does not seem to bother the 6,000 islanders.

Not even among the spirited young, surprisingly well-read in the contemporary history of Black self-determination, is there any discernible embarrassment over a return to a 19th-century arrangement of Her Majesty's Commissioners, British police and an advisory council of islanders.

"We are not really concerned with what label is put on our new form of government," Mr Ronald Webster, the erstwhile "President of the Republic of Anguilla" told me in an interview: "We are quite happy to be back with the British, and I don't think anybody is anxious to end the relationship."

Experimental colonialism

The new arrangement offered to the islanders by Whitehall over the strenuous protests of Anguilla's former masters, the St Kitts Government of Mr Robert Bradshaw, provides, in effect, for an experimental period of colonialism to last from three to five years.

Mr Webster, who once spoke of blowing the Royal Navy out of the sea with Anguillan cannon and picking off British paratroops with an armoury of automatic weapons from Chicago, told me that the colonial period would actually last far longer.

"The talk about a three-year period and then a referendum on the island's future we regard as a joke," he said. "We are thinking of 10, 15, 20, even 25 years of this arrangement.

"It is not only a financial link with Britain, we also need a period of administrative teaching."

Mr Webster, who enjoyed a short-lived reputation as "Anguilla's George Washington," is fully prepared to concede now that his unilateral declaration of independence was a tactical step rather than an end in itself.

"This had to be done, although UDI was not our goal. We had to get Britain involved, to stop the British Government saying that the Anguillan situation was an internal matter to be settled by St Kitts."

The spirit of republicanism on the island was now dead.

At the public inauguration of island councillors over two weeks ago, Mr Wallace Rey, who made the bitterest anti-British statements before and after the invasion of March, 1969, refused to take the oath of allegiance to the Queen.

Mr Webster explained that the confusion had arisen over a technicality. "Mr Rey was simply concerned about the part of the oath that runs '. . . . according to law.' He said he did not know what law was involved . . . British, St Kitts or what. We hope he will swear the oath of allegiance at the next council meeting."

Whatever Mr Rey's reasoning his defiance at the oath ceremony reminded some of the heady days of the "confusion," as the Anguillans like to describe the British invasion and occupation.

Holiday occupation

The "occupation" has evolved into a lackadaisical arrangement performed by 30 Special Branch officers from Scotland Yard and a small detachment of Royal Engineers. Once English skins have roasted to a mahogany tan, the assignment offers about as much challenge as peeling a banana.

When I landed at Anguilla's main harbour, Sandy Ground, Scotland Yard men, whose outpost is a yellow bungalow on the beach, were 175th of the way towards completion of a 750-piece jig-saw puzzle sent out from Britain.

Others were polishing giant conch shells, observing the fattening process of a black pig or swimming in the turquoise waters.

In the unlikely event of a police emergency, walkie-talkie radios crackled beside the bottles of sun-tan lotion. The men readily agreed that the assignment was hardest on the wives and children left at home.

The last emergency occurred nearly three weeks ago as the islanders were gathering in Ronald Webster Park for a thanksgiving ceremony to express gratitude for "success after 50 months of political struggle."

One man started the festivities well ahead of time, got thoroughly intoxicated and went home to beat up his wife. With the court system reopening next month after a long lapse, he will have the honour of being the inaugural case.

The only discontent I found on the island came from a group of young men who seemed to feel that the "cult of personality" had served its purpose on Anguilla. Ronald Webster Park, they felt, should be renamed Freedom Square as the island begins its second round of colonialism.

PORTUGAL ARRESTS

Twelve people, including a woman, have been arrested and charged with "activities against the security of the state," Portuguese police said yesterday. No details were given and no bail was granted.

Around America

PROFESSOR OF MATHS AGED 22

By Our New York Staff

DR CHARLES FEFFERMAN has been appointed a Professor of Mathematics at Chicago University, aged 22. He is the youngest full professor in its history, and probably the youngest at any American college.

He was so brilliant that he was allowed to skip secondary school, going straight from junior school to the University of Maryland, when he was 14.

He celebrated his 20th birthday by receiving his doctorate from Princeton University. Dr Fefferman's father is an economist and his mother says she hates mathematics.

A Chicago University spokesman said the young professor was "the best man to have appeared in his field" of advanced mathematics in the last 10 of 20 years.

THE GOOD LIFE

Gleason's fun house

JACKIE GLEASON, 55, is building a £200,000 five-storey house in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, with a bar in nearly every one of its 14 rooms. The comedian, temporarily on £41,000 a year "unemployment pay" from the Columbia Broadcasting System, calls it his fun house.

He designed the main bar and a sunken pit for his pool table. Since the Jackie Gleason Show went off the air early this year, he says he has been living the good life of "golf, booze and romance" with his bride, Beverly McKittrick.

PAYING THEIR WAY

Litter advertises

NEW YORK officials have found a way of making the city's new street litter baskets pay for themselves. They are being used as "billboards" with advertisers of such products as Scotch Whisky, Coca-Cola and Broadway shows paying for installation and maintenance.

Because of an irresistible desire by New Yorkers to steal litter baskets, the new models are designed to be bolted to lamp-posts or weighed down by a 250-lb lump of cement.

JAPAN SALES DRIVE

Binocular market

THE JAPANESE, whose exports to the United States deeply concern President Nixon, are distributing beautifully-printed free maps, showing endangered species of American birds, to American schools. Americans are also being urged to campaign for Government action to save the birds.

The Japanese campaign is not entirely disinterested. Japan has captured 75-80 per cent. of the American market for binoculars, which has an annual sales total of £25 million, and the greatest users of binoculars are bird-watchers.

30 RACEGOERS HURT

Panic over machine

ABOUT 30 racegoers in New York were injured yesterday when people panicked because a soft-drink machine appeared to be about to explode. The noise of escaping carbon dioxide gas was so menacing that spectators at the Roosevelt Raceway "stampeded, galloping like horses."

Two weeks ago a number of racegoers were injured at the racecourse in a similar incident caused by a faulty automatic drinking machine.

Death break-out

TWO prisoners attempting to escape from a Newark, New Jersey, jail fell to their deaths when the string of sheets they were using ripped apart 90ft above a second floor roof. The men stripped sheets from a dozen beds on their 13th floor dormitory cell to make a 150-long rope.

Charity gift or jail order

A judge in Cincinatti, Ohio, ordered a businessman on Monday to give $20,000 (£8,300) to charity or go to prison for three years for tax evasion, it was reported yesterday. Judge Hogan, who said that he was not sure his action was legal, also fined the businessman $10,000 (£4,150).

NEW KAPWEPWE PARTY PLEDGE

The United Progressive party, the new Zambian opposition party set up by the former vice-President, Mr Simon Kapwepwe, 49, pledged itself in Lusaka yesterday to follow a socialist line. It said it aim to stamp out capitalism in Zambia.

Sources close to the Government said yesterday that there had been no mass defections so far from President Kaunda's United National Independence party to the new party.—Reuter.

Britain sympathetic on Ghana's £300m debts

BY OUR DIPLOMATIC STAFF

DR KOFI BUSIA, Prime Minister of Ghana, was given a sympathetic reception in talks with Mr Heath at Chequers last night on Ghana's problems in trying to repay £300 million worth of overseas debts.

Britain is believed to be ready to increase aid to Ghana, which has been about £6 million annually, and to use her influence on other foreign creditors to take a more flexible attitude over debt repayments.

The view, gaining support in London, is that Ghana cannot be expected to make any appreciable headway in paying off her huge debts for the next 10 years.

Millstone of debt

Dr Busia has stressed that Ghana's development must not be wrecked because of the millstone of debt left by the regime of Kwame Nkrumah, the former Ghana leader.

The Ghanaian Prime Minister had hoped to keep his mission to Chequers secret until the result of the talks was known but the news leaked out in Accra and the trip was described officially as a "private" visit.

He is flying home today and will be followed to London by Mr J. H. Mensah, Ghanaian Finance Minister who has criticised Britain recently for maintaining a "harsh attitude" in face of Ghana's pleas.

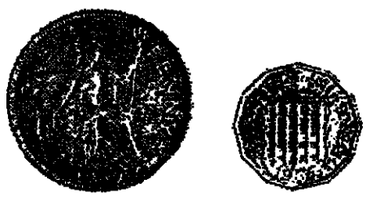
There is concern in Whitehall that Dr Busia's pro-Western Government might not survive a severe economic regression. British investment in Ghana exceeds £100 million and trade between the two countries is worth £50 million a year on each side.

Ghana owes about £60 million of the £300 million debts to Britain which, with other International Monetary Fund countries, agreed last year on 50 per cent. relief initially for Ghana's debt payments.

Britain has also granted a £3,500,000 re-financing loan to Ghana this year, with another £2,250,000 development loan. A further loan of £1,250,000 is believed to be under consideration.

Mr Richard Wood, Minister for Overseas Development, discussed Ghana problems with Mr Heath on Monday and was called into the talks last night together with Mr Joseph Godber, Minister of State at the Foreign Office, and Mr Terence Higgins, Minister of State at the Treasury.

DECIMAL CURRENCY BOARD



After August 31st old pennies and 3d bits cannot be used as money

Decimalisation has gone so smoothly that the "changeover period" (during which old and new money may both be used) will now end on August 31st, 1971.

From September 1st, therefore, our money will be fully decimal. This means that:

- All cash transactions will be in decimal money.
- Old pennies and threepenny bits should be used up before the end of August. Look them out and use them in amounts of 6d ($2\frac{1}{2}$p). Or pay them into a bank or savings account. Banks will accept them in amounts of 1/- (5p).
- Shillings and two shilling pieces will continue as 5p and 10p coins.
- Sixpences will continue as $2\frac{1}{2}$p coins until at least February 1973.

Before ending their work, the Decimal Currency Board wish to thank the public and the business community for their co-operation and understanding, which led to such a smooth changeover.

Use up your old pennies and 3d bits before September 1st

THREAT TO MOTOR FIRMS AS STRIKE CRIPPLES LUCAS

By MICHAEL GREEN, Industrial Staff

ALL nine Lucas automotive and electrical division factories in Birmingham were brought to a standstill last night as a result of a strike by 300 maintenance engineers. The measures, which were sooner than expected, have made 13,000 Lucas workers idle.

Major car manufacturers all reported adequate stocks of electrical parts to cover the next few days. But there were fears that production would be affected if the strike lasted a week or more.

The engineers want holiday pay in line with 13,000 production workers who receive holiday pay at the level of average earnings.

Lucas has pointed out that the engineers' pay deal 12 months ago did not cover holiday pay. But in an attempt to resolve the conflict the company has indicated that when the agreement is renegotiated, the men's holiday pay will be brought into line.

The company has also offered a £10 "ex-gratia" payment to compensate for this year's holiday, but the offer has been refused.

Talks on a new agreement for the engineers are due to begin next week.

Extra £48

The recent settlement for production workers gave skilled men an extra £48 a year—£16 for each week of holiday—on top of their basic holiday pay. With skilled rates going up from £17·50 to £19 at the end of the year, holiday pay next year will be £25 plus the £16 supplement.

The engineers will be determined to win at least that. The men, members of the Amalgamated Union of Engineering Workers, are not due to meet again until Friday.

Average earnings for the engineers are normally about £35 a week, although a lot of short-time working recently, due to a slack demand from motor manufacturers, has tended to lower pay levels.

A Lucas spokesman said last night that the factories had to be closed sooner than expected because the strike occurred at the weekend and the engineers were needed when a lot of machines were starting from "cold."

He was "fairly optimistic" that the dispute would end quickly. Lucas has stocks of vital parts for about 10-14 days.

British Leyland said its stocks were "quite healthy" and should keep them going "for some time." But the situation [illegible] and would be reviewed daily.

Chrysler said it had stocks for the rest of this week. Avenger production was due to resume today after a hold-up caused by an overtime ban by Coventry toolmakers.

Vauxhall commented: "We have got good stocks of Lucas components. There is no immediate problem."

Ford said production could be maintained "certainly this week and, we hope, the majority of next week."

RB-211 DATE EXTENDED TO SEPT. 8

By Our City Staff

A FURTHER extension to the deadline for completing the revised contract under which Rolls-Royce will supply RB-211 engines for the Lockheed TriStar airbus was announced yesterday by the Department of Trade and Industry. It makes the date to Sept. 8.

A Department spokesman said: "It will allow time for final terms for the TriStar to be negotiated with customers and for the United States Administration to complete arrangements for the American Government's loan guarantee."

The first deadline expired on Aug. 8 and the second yesterday.

Still in doubt is the effect of President Nixon's measures to protect the dollar. Continuation of the 10 per cent. surcharge into next year could add £10,000 to the cost of a set of engines and associated equipment for the plane.

The floating of the dollar could also affect the ultimate price of the aircraft.

B.S.C STRIKE ENDS

£60 bonus claim

AN EIGHT-DAY strike by 2,000 white-collar employees at the Port Talbot works of the British Steel Corporation ended yesterday.

The strike was over a claim for an increased cost-of-living bonus, amounting to about £60. Officials of the Iron and Steel Trades Confederation are to take up the claim with the British Steel Corporation.

Mini-car stoppage

ALL Mini car production at British Leyland's Longbridge, Birmingham, was halted yesterday and 1,092 car and engine assembly workers laid off because of an unofficial strike by 24 engine shifters. A further 1,550 men were laid off at the Castle Bromwich car body plant.

NEW TOWN POST

Mr Jack Hughes, 55, a senior partner in the London firm of chartered surveyors, auctioneers and valuers, Jones, Lang, Wootton, has been appointed chairman of Bracknell New Town Development Corporation.

He will take up his post on September 1. He succeeds Mr Charles Pilcher, who was recently appointed chairman of the Commission for the New Towns.

FREE MILK IN SCHOOLS 'ILLEGAL'

Daily Telegraph Reporter

MERTHYR Education Committee which started the revolt against the Milk Act decided yesterday by 22 votes to two to continue supplying free milk to schoolchildren.

The committee were warned by Mr R. K. Lacey, corporation treasurer, that to supply milk to children over seven without charge would be illegal. The district auditor would have to surcharge the expenditure incurred upon those members of the committee who supported such a policy.

It was estimated that £5,000 would be spent on the milk during the remainder of this financial year and the surcharge would be "significant."

Political issue

Mr Lacey said he would be placed in an embarrassing position. It was a political issue rather than one of simple legality but he was not able to "opt out."

He would have to face the choice of vetoing a decision of the authority or run the risk of being surcharged himself.

Mr Selwyn Jones, town clerk, [illegible] duty to disallow any item which was contrary to the law and to surcharge those who voted for its payment.

Councillor Claude Stanfield pointed out that it was possible that the resolution would not be implemented and it was a "queer kind of democracy" when elected representatives could be overruled by the corporation's officers.

ROAD PLAN REJECTED

Mr Walker, Secretary for Environment, yesterday rejected plans for a diversion of the A1 road at South Mimms, Herts. He thought the ¾-mile road would intrude unnecessarily into unspoilt countryside. New proposals for road improvement will be published in the next few months.

Industrialist's pledge gives Clyde new hope

By JOHN RICHARDS, Industrial Staff

MR ARCHIBALD KELLY, the Scottish industrialist who is preparing a bid for Upper Clyde Shipbuilders, is expected to meet Sir John Eden, Minister for Industry, in London tomorrow, to discuss Government aid for his rescue operation, which would save the jobs of up to 6,000 shipyard workers.

Mr Kelly said yesterday that he would make a bid for all four UCS yards. He said: "I have no intention of closing them down, but they will need reorganisation."

It is estimated that Mr Robert Smith, the liquidator, has quoted a price of between £6 million and £8 million for the fixed assets of the yards.

Shop stewards and full-time union officials yesterday gave a guarantee of co-operation in the future running of the yards, mass redundancies and fewer dismissals combined, perhaps, with smaller earnings at first.

After meeting Mr Kelly, the Communist chairman of shop stewards co-ordinating committee, Mr James Airlie, said: "We are very hopeful about the situation."

Weekly collections

In Birmingham, Mr Airlie's Communist colleague, Mr James Reid told a meeting outside one of the British Leyland plants that men already under notice of dismissal would be given work "until victory is achieved."

About 1,000 British Leyland workers agreed to hold weekly collections to support the UCS "work in" fund.

It was confirmed yesterday that the Trades Union Congress economic committee, accompanied by representatives of the Scottish TUC and the shop stewards, would meet Mr Davies, Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, and Sir John Eden in London on Friday.

On the same day, Mr Ridley, Minister of State, Department of Trade and Industry, will see ship owners who have orders outstanding at the UCS yards.

Exchequer grant

Among Mr Kelly's possible demands to the Ministers could be a 50 per cent. once-and-for-all Exchequer grant to help finance his take-over and some form of guarantee indemnifying his new company against losses already being built.

Mr Davies will clearly question the would-be buyer very closely about his financial discipline, asking whether there are sufficient reserves to maintain materials and wages until the new company can get over its teething stages.

The Government will not depart from its basic policy of refusing to bolster a "lame duck" enterprise. Mr Kelly will have to convince it that his plans are water-tight before any cash concessions are agreed.

OPTIMISM AT DINKY TOY FIRM

Daily Telegraph Reporter

MECCANO sets, Dinky cars and most other well-known toys made by Lines Brothers, which went into voluntary liquidation last week, should still be available at Christmas.

A spokesman for the firm, Britain's biggest toy manufacturer, said much depended on the liquidator and possible take-over bids. But production was continuing as normal, and he thought it unlikely that brands such as Triang, Pedigree, Dinky and Meccano would disappear.

He said there was a chance of other companies taking over production of the well-established toys. "Without singling things out I am sure there are many ranges which are not only popular but very profitable."

Mr Douglas McHard, marketing manager for Meccano Triang, said: "There's no reason why there should be any shortage of these toys this Christmas or any Christmas."

Trading increase

The subsidiary had been profitable since 1964 and trading [illegible]

"We are going ahead with a programme of new models. I am absolutely certain that this is such a viable concern and that the products are so well established they need never die out."

At the Triang model railway division a marketing spokesman said: "Model railways have been increasingly popular over the past two or three years and we are manufacturing and delivering like fury."

Parcels service to stay but Post Office cuts likely

By JOHN PETTY, City Staff

MR WILLIAM RYLAND, the Post Office chairman, said yesterday he was looking to see what services could be cut out or slimmed down. But he promised that the parcels service would be retained.

He said during a visit to Plymouth that he wanted to end speculation that the parcels service would be abandoned as unprofitable.

His aim was to see if it could be changed "for the better." The service was vital to many large firms and to mail-order customers. That was why he wanted to give a categoric assurance about its future.

"We have been in the parcels business for 100 years and are going to stay in it, giving a service from anywhere to anywhere every day at a fair price," said Mr Ryland.

What is a fair price?

The question of what is a fair price is likely to be the point at issue as the Post Office fights to escape losses.

Mr Ryland said the Post Office was "adopting an aggressive type of business approach." This was aimed at winning new trade and making the best of its resources.

The whole range of services was being reviewed. The results would be put to staff and to the Post Office Users' Council next month.

"We shall cut out and slim down those services which we feel are not what the customer wants," added Mr Ryland. "But we are not aiming to truncate or decimate postal services purely for the sake of economy."

PAINTING FIRMS RISK LOSS ON TENDERS

The re-negotiation of tenders for major painting work on new buildings has been called for by Mr Ron Cox, president of the Federation of Painting Contractors.

He says in a letter to federation members: "In the present trading climate, which looks as though it is going to last for some time, anybody tieing himself to a fixed price is [illegible]

Mr Cox emphasises that although he is in sympathy with the Confederation of British Industry's pledge of a five per cent. price increase ceiling, painting contractors were faced with escalating labour costs and, because they were last on a job, they lost money because of other people's delays. They were also the last to be paid.

ARMY SEEKS MORE BOY RECRUITS

By Our Military Correspondent

A NEW unit, the Junior Infantry Wing, at Fulford Barracks, Preston, Lancs., is to be opened for 240 boys in training for all divisions of infantry, other than the Guards.

Additional accommodation has recently been made available at nine junior training establishments and is now to be made available at a further 12.

The Army expects to recruit 2,000 more boys into junior training units than the 7,200 enlisted in 1970. A September entry of 4,700 is expected, against 3,665 last year. There will then be 13,700 boys in training.

Those to whom these figures refer are in the 15-17½-year-age group on enlistment. They do not include "Young Soldiers," who enlist in adult training units between the ages of 17-17½. There will be some 11,000 Young Soldiers under training next month.

Increased demand

The increased demand for places affects all corps of the Army.

Among the largest increases in the current expansion are: 215 extra places at the Royal Artillery Junior Leaders Regiment, Bramcote, Nuneaton; 130 at the Guards Depot, Pirbright; and 100 at the Junior Leaders Regiment, Royal Armoured Corps, Bovington, Dorset.

In the earlier expansion the Guards Depot provided 244 extra places, the Infantry Junior Leaders Battalion, Oswestry, 230, and the depot of the Scottish Division 220.

The reasons for this upsurge in recruiting are not easy to assess. The difficulty which school leavers are having in finding jobs must help, but there [illegible]

Pay and conditions

Other factors, probably, are improved pay and conditions of service: and widening recognition that after a period of cuts and uncertainties, the Army now offers a secure career.

Terms of enlistment for apprentices and juniors have been changed as a result of the recommendations of the Donaldson Committee, issued last November.

Previously juniors had to serve for six or nine years, and apprentices for nine years, after reaching the age of 18.

Now on reaching the age of 18 they can re-confirm their original terms of enlistment or elect to terminate their service three years after reaching 18 or completing their training.

A second home for the weekend

By ARTHUR BOWERS
Property Market Correspondent

THE increasing amount of leisure that the population has shows itself in various ways. For some it is the rural cottage, where perhaps the choice is walking, gardening or just sitting. For others it is the trek to the coast, to watch, go into or sail on the water, perhaps with fishing line, perhaps not.

Others again either make their own sport, or become spectators at someone else's games.

From the property market point of view, those who can anticipate, rather than follow the lead of others, are the most successful financially, but the rest do not appear to do too badly.

Some leisure pursuits are transient. Bowling alleys could be a case in point: cinemas which once used to be converted to these now invariably wind up as bingo emporiums.

A recreation that has had a long innings and becoming ever more popular (possibly likely to be increasingly so because of the Prime Ministerial interest in it) is sailing. For the property market this has meant that the maritime pied-à-terre, replete with boathouse as well as garage and a place to hang the dripping oilskins, is almost as much in demand as the country cottage.

Fortunately for the yachtsman, it is often easier for a builder to set up somewhere for him to sling his hook than it is to provide cottages in the country.

In the Medway area, the Gillingham contractors, Wards, have had plenty of opportunity to study watersports and those who indulge in them. The firm accordingly has come up with a specially-designed marine house, which can be seen on a small development at Conyer Creek, a waterside village near Teynham, Sittingbourne, Kent.

The site overlooks the boat basin and small harbour. It is claimed as a truly superb location for yachting enthusiasts.

Basically the house is a three-bedroom, three-floor building in Georgian style with the ground level arranged as a car-and-boat store.

At first-floor level the balcony and special bay window enable wives/girl-friends to watch the antics of their husbands/sweethearts mucking about in boats, or ignoring them for the fine views up the river. Ground level at the rear is made up so that the occupants have a garden at first-floor level.

The homes will relieve the buyers of something like £7,380 each.

Overlooking London's river are flats and penthouses in a scheme called Thamespoint, off Broom Road, Teddington, Middlesex. Most have balconies from which are river views, and a limited number of fixed moorings are available, on a rental basis, as are garages and covered car spaces.

The flats, costing £9,750 to £17,500 (£29,500 for the penthouses), are subject to ground rents of between £35 and £65 a year until 1996, after which date they rise by £20 each 25 years (Gilland & Co.). They have two or three bedrooms and one or two bathrooms.

Thames views, too, with the added convenience of being only 10 minutes' walk from Parliament Square, is the Rivermill scheme of 42 flats built by Wates.

Each of the one, two and three-bedroom flats has its own balcony overlooking the river. Four penthouses are built on two floors with the bedrooms and bathrooms on the lower floor, with a roof terrace as well as large balconies on the lower floors.

On long leases, the flat prices range from £10,400 for a one bedroom to £22,000 for three. (Jones Lang Wootton).

Brundall Gardens with its lakeland setting near Norwich

There are rejuvenated flats for sale at about £14,250, inclusive of views of the Thames and its Valley, on Richmond Hill (Acland & Co.). They have four bedrooms. Others with two, three and four bedrooms in similar blocks at Hurlingham, by Putney Bridge off Richmond Green and by Richmond Bridge are also coming forward as they are vacated by present tenants.

Holiday retreat

CATERING for the rising demand for a second home for leisure or holiday use, William Cowlin & Son, Cardiff builders, have embarked on a project to provide among others, the style seen in the picture below.

The homes, all in timber have been designed by Hird & Brooks, Penarth architects, following a research exercise which included an inspection visit to Denmark. The homes are planned as permanent structures with covered terraces, the space around being seen as important as the buildings themselves.

Coastal and inland sites will be developed, the latter being in areas of high scenic value, where peace and quiet will be the main ingredients with leisure pursuits such as fishing, pony trekking and walking. Some developments will be in small groups of a dozen or so while others will be very much larger. Forest sites are seen as ideal, with small clearings to each holiday house.

Where few trees exist, planting will take place to provide all the qualities of integration, privacy, shelter and sheer beauty, the aim being to enhance the environment.

On Cowlin development sites the company will sell the houses and retain the land to ensure by the use of restrictive covenants that the naturalness of the areas is retained. To assist in this they intend to encourage owner management committees. On larger sites it is the intention to have a caretaker.

Negotiations are in hand for Cowlin projects for 12 fishing lodges along a river in Mid-Wales, 40 holiday houses near the coast in South-West Wales and 160 near the coast in West Wales.

The houses manufactured by Cowlin will also be made available to other developers. They can be transported in prefabricated units.

Depending on the size of the holiday house, quality ordered and delivery distance, costs vary basically from the smallest (255 sq. ft) at £1,740 to the largest (445 sq. ft) at £2,980, which includes the furniture and fittings.

The prototype of a holiday house which is being developed in Wales

Attractive setting

SWITZERLAND in East Anglia might be the title on the picture above, of Brundall Gardens, five miles from Norwich, which is to be developed by homes built as far as possible to buyers' own requirements (Irelands), and the development has in fact been given the title Petite Suisse.

Prices will be around £12,000, for properties which must be acceptable in the general aim of preserving the total beauty of the site. A feature is the restored Roman duck, around which, along with a 4½-acre lake, detached houses are planned.

On the site, which covers 18 acres, will also be maisonettes and high-value flats. Exacting specifications are being insisted on by the promoters.

Near the beach

WITH the disappearance of Kemp Town Brewery within 10 yards of the seafront road at Brighton, some fine early buildings are being revealed. In the large square created by the demolition of the brewery buildings, landscaped gardens will be laid, and around them four-bedroom town houses in the style of surrounding properties are being built by Pierpoint & Sons.

With four bedrooms, two bathrooms, air conditioning and small gardens a stone's throw from the beach, they will sell for about £15,500 (Bernard Thorpe & Partners).

Penthouse flats costing £40,000 were sold before the foundations had been completed for a £235,000 scheme, Compton Lodge, Eastbourne, designed by Hubbard Ford & Partners. From some of the flats, which have two or three bedrooms, occupants will be able to enjoy watching cricket: the site of 1¼ acres adjoins the Saffrons ground.

Welsh villa

IN the Pembrokeshire Coast National Park comparatively little new building has gone on. A villa in a sheltered situation overlooking the seaside hamlet and cove of Cwm-yr-Eglwys—Bay of the Church—at Dinas, five miles from Fishguard, was recently put up for sale at £15,000 (J. J. Morris).

PROFESSIONAL SOCIAL WORK COURSE 1972/73

Applications are invited from men and women over the age of 25 years for approximately 20 PROBATION places on a one-year course providing professional qualification for both Probation Officers and Social Workers beginning in June 1972.

Candidates for the PROBATION option should normally:
(a) have achieved a good standard of education; be able to show a capacity to undertake a period of sustained study, and have experience of social work or of employment affording a sound background for such work; or
(b) When the candidate is over the age of 40 or has no formal educational qualifications, evidence of substantial relevant experience must be shown as well as a capacity to undertake a period of sustained study.

Selection for 1972-73 begins in October 1971 and early application is invited. The final date for application is [illegible] 1972.

For further particulars and application forms please write to the address below, clearly indicating an interest in the Probation Option.

VEHICLE ENGINEERING

(Major option in the C.N.A.A. Degree Course in Mechanical Engineering.)

Vehicle Engineering—the engineering of structures for the transport of persons or things, especially by land—is principally concerned with the static and dynamic properties of vehicle structures, their appearance and their manufacture.

This course is a new major option of the B.Sc. Honours and Ordinary degree studies in Mechanical Engineering. It is design based and includes study of vehicle structure, vehicle dynamics, production technology and aesthetic design, and some fields of production technology and metallurgy. The carefully planned mixture of studies, including contacts with industry, makes the course unique in this country. It has the full support of motor industry manufacturers. Entry is by "A" level passes in Physics or Engineering Science and in Pure Mathematics or Mathematics (Pure and Applied), or "A" level Pure Mathematics and "A" level Applied Mathematics.

Those graduating from this course will qualify for employment over a wide field but, particularly, in the design and development of road and rail vehicle and other future surface transportation.

Further details and admission form from the Secretary and Academic Registrar, The Hatfield Polytechnic, P.O. Box 109, Hatfield, Herts. (Hatfield 68100).

MOTORING

By COLIN DRYDEN

The awful parking-fine dodgers

THE parking ticket system, probably one of the most unpopular motoring innovations by any government, is in imminent danger of breaking down. Year after year the Metropolitan Police Commissioner complains in his annual report that the situation is getting from bad to worse.

Less than half the million-odd tickets issued in 1969 were actually paid and the word is getting around among the more unscrupulous motorists that "crime pays up."

The fact is that workable law needs either to have the support of the public—very few will literally try to get away with murder—or to be strictly enforceable. Nobody likes paying £2 fixed penalty parking tickets although they were introduced to save time for both the motorist concerned and the overburdened magistrates courts.

Anyone can dodge the column by delaying for six months when the ticket becomes unenforceable. Thus a measure designed to assist both society and the offender becomes so completely unworkable that it may have to be replaced by something more draconian.

Few prosecuted

A £2 ticket costs at least £2·25 to enforce and yet the success rate has been lamentable, simply because people have realised they can get away with it. The figures show that in 1967 when 19,849 tickets were issued 55·2 per cent. were paid and 20·6 per cent. written off. There were prosecutions in 2·5 per cent. of cases and 23·7 per cent. were still outstanding at the end of the year.

In 1969 the number of fixed penalty tickets issued in London had risen to 810,580, of which a little more than 43 per cent. were paid on the nail. Some 31·9 per cent. were written off, 1·1 per cent. were prosecuted and 24 per cent. were outstanding.

By "written off," the Commissioner means that the payment of the £2 could not be enforced for various reasons, including diplomatic privilege. It is the "various reasons" that make interesting reading. Four years ago embassy staffs parking their cars under the cloak of diplomatic immunity amounted to 15,000. This was a mere bagatelle compared with the 37,000 foreign holidaymakers who parked and then fled. (Illegal parking is not yet an extraditable offence.)

In 44,000 cases police or traffic wardens were unable to trace the driver. The six months ran out in 20,000 cases—skilful dodging by the offender no doubt.

But the more fascinating reasons for not enforcing payment are contained under the heading "Mistakes on the ticket" which amounted to 11,000 and "Traffic warden resigned or not available," 925. It looks like a war that neither side wants: the motorists go to ground and a disheartened authority seeks to bring them to book with singular lack of success.

Legal loophole

Yet on the face of it the Commissioner holds all the aces: the central ticket office and its staff of hundreds, a computer, the entire Metropolitan police force, and wardens, all working together with months to catch the culprit.

But there is a loophole through which the miscreant can wriggle. As the law now stands the driver at the material time is liable for the £2 penalty. But there is nothing to stop the unscrupulous denying that they were driving at the time.

Sir Joseph Simpson, the Commissioner in 1961, pointed out that unless the motoring public showed a "greater respect for the law both in conforming to regulations and replying to legally authorised notices, further short cuts would be inevitable." In his report for 1970 Sir John Waldron says much the same thing.

Sir John refers to the new procedure now being adopted at the central ticket office under which registered keepers (owners) of cars are prosecuted for failing to disclose the driver's identity when asked to do so by letter.

He points out that this is administratively cumbersome and far from being the complete answer to the problem of bringing the number of dodgers down to an acceptable level.

What Sir John is really after is prosecution of the owner of the vehicle — easily traceable through the registration number —for the parking offence whether he was using his car or not at the material time.

This could cause genuine hardship and even injustice and it is being advocated only in sheer desperation because of the way the present law is being flouted. But this is mild compared with the lengths that the Tokyo police go to. Bilkers find their car doors padlocked and have to report to the police station before they can be unlocked.

It will probably never get to that here but official patience is near to breaking point. It's probably better to pay a little now as an insurance against the probability of having to pay a lot more later and swingeing fines for being obstructive.

Fasten your belts —or else . . .

AN official hint of the possibility of sterner measures about the use of seat belts came from Mr Eldon Griffiths, Joint Parliamentary Under-Secretary at the Department of the Environment, this week.

He spelt out once more what Mr Peyton, his chief, and previous Ministers have said. The message basically is this: We make you fit seat belts in your cars. You know it makes sense to wear them but if you don't we may be forced to compel you to do so.

Compulsion runs counter to the Department's philosophy, and, as Mr Griffiths said, it would be used only after exhausting all the possibilities of persuasion. But he said that the Government would not be averse to legislation if forced to it.

Likely measure

Department spokesmen are not prepared to discuss what forms compulsion could take but my guess is that a passive restraint seat belt system will become mandatory on new cars by 1974.

This way a driver, or front seat passenger, is compelled to "belt up" whether he likes it or not, merely by getting into the front seat and closing the car door.

Ford of Britain gave the Road Research Laboratory its patent on a passive restraint belt system which has the diagonal belt attached to the door's top corner. The laboratory contracted out further development work to Auto Restraint Systems, a company jointly owned by Kangol Magnet and Smiths Industries.

The cost

The Government is doubtless hoping that a simple, cheap and foolproof passive restraint belt system can be developed in the next year or two. Such a system would be in line with the making of one-handed operation belts compulsory on new cars from Jan. 1 next year.

As Mr Griffiths pointed out, 30,000 drivers and front-seat passengers were killed or seriously injured last year, a figure which could have been halved if they had been wearing seat belts. Despite the overwhelming evidence that seat belts saved lives only a mere 15 per cent. bothered to wear them.

Unless people have the sense to belt up, the Government may well be forced to step in and protect them from themselves.

Edinburgh Theatre

Off-beat food for thought by Ronder and Crane

By JOHN BARBER

ANYONE hungry for drama around lunch-time in Edinburgh may be recommended to the Little Pool Theatre. Two off-beat plays are being performed there by professional actors, and you can eat before or after you see them.

I do not know about the food, but the plays are not for the sweet-toothed.

"Free Ranger" is an ironic parable by Jack Ronder, whose "Confessions of a Justified Sinner" is a principal Festival event. It is an amusingly sour squib, reminiscent of Beckett's "Play" where three characters were immobilised in urns.

Mr Ronder supposes that the world is being run by hens instead of humans. His armless and legless trio share memories on the roost of the bad old days when they were artists and sang rowdy songs. But now, regularly fed and sluiced down, they are perfectly content.

"The Tenant," by Richard Crane, is a thriller about a flustered clerk who advertises a room to let and finds himself having to cope with an urbane [illegible] violence. It is capitally acted by Richard Harbord and Oscar James.

Neither play cuts very deep, but both have a wry relevance to the times.

CHURCHES MAY SHARE ABBEY

Selby Abbey, one of Yorkshire's biggest Anglican churches, may soon be shared by Methodists.

A committee has recommended that the two Churches should have equal rights to the building for Sunday services, services for special occasions, christenings, marriages, funerals, Sunday schools and exhibitions. The plan will go ahead if it is fully supported by members of both Churches.

Dublin

USE of "non-violent political means" in Northern Ireland was agreed at a meeting in Dublin between Ministers of Mr Lynch's Government and non-Unionist MPs and senators from Stormont.

After a three-hour meeting it was agreed that "all should work towards the objective of building equality of treatment for everyone in Northern Ireland, irrespective of political views or religions."

Young Vic

'Muddletown' draws lively audience

By HAROLD ATKINS

SIX actors of the Exeter Northcott Theatre's young people's department, who travel around the schools of Devon with small plays, produced the fantasy "Muddletown" (by Bernard Goss and the department) at the Young Vic yesterday.

With an audience of about 200 children, mostly between five and 10, it was a modest but interesting experiment in "theatre in the round."

Audience participation in the form of direct intervention, information, exhortation and advice, was rife and the actors took it in their stride.

The aim was to act out a story with simple ideas. This concerned a Tommy Steele kind of character named Billy the Borrower (Alan Penn). Though honest, his propensity to borrow anything from spades to buses impeded the day-to-day working of his town.

He even appeared in court for it, but the magistrate, the awe-inspiring Miss Kretch (Jessica Claridge) turned out to be much the worst offender by her secret accumulation—through a dishonest rag-and-bone dealer—of a large collection of Victorian objects stolen from the town.

The simple mindedness sometimes became painfully long-drawn-out, but Miss Claridge was an excellent eccentric of considerable promise, and Gary Shallenberg a spirited policeman, and there was one community song about form-filling with rueful overtones from the real world.

GROUP FORMED TO SAVE THEATRE

A preservation group at Portsmouth is planning to raise money to buy the 115-year-old Theatre Royal.

The theatre, which was rebuilt at the turn of the century, has been derelict for several years. It cannot be used for stage shows because of a restrictive covenant.

When the owners, Portsmouth Theatres Ltd. applied for permission to demolish the building, listed as being of special historic and architectural interest, permission was refused by Mr Walker, Environment Secretary.

NEW NATIONAL THEATRE SHOWS

By Our Theatre Correspondent

The National Theatre is to stage two more new productions in December, one at the Old Vic, the other at the New Theatre. Goldsmith's "The Good Natured Man" will open at the Old Vic on Dec. 9, with Jim Dale and Bill Fraser heading the cast. John Dexter will direct.

On Dec. 21 Laurence Olivier will appear as James Tyrone in "Long Day's Journey Into Night" by Eugene O'Neill. Constance Cummings will play his wife and Denis Quilley and Ronald Pickup his two sons. It will be directed by Michael Blakemore.

International character of visual arts

By TERENCE MULLALY

NOTHING could better represent the international character of the Edinburgh Festival and, where the visual arts are concerned, the way it effortlessly moves across the centuries than the exhibitions being held this year.

At the Royal Scottish Academy, The Mound, the main festival exhibition is devoted to "The Belgian Contribution to Surrealism," while at the Arts Council Gallery, 11, Rothesay Terrace, there are Dürer engravings and woodcuts from Scottish collections.

The Dürer Exhibition, with an admirable catalogue by Keith Andrews of the National Gallery of Scotland, is a model of how these things should be done. On the other hand the surrealist exhibition is disappointing.

It was an admirable idea to celebrate the 25th anniversaries of both the festival and Belgo-British Cultural Agreement with this exhibition.

What is unfortunate is that a better exhibition was not organised for Edinburgh's first major exposure to Surrealism. The weaknesses of the movement are laid bare.

The visitor, who after passing through the sculpture gallery at the top of the stairs, which contains works from the Summer Exhibition of the Royal Scottish Academy, bears right, enters a room devoted to Delvaux. It is the best part of the exhibition.

Here are nine large works, ranging from his macabre "The Burial" to the piquant wit of "The Age of Steam," in which a nude with a splendid hat lies before a train. They range in date from 1940 to 1951.

There is something intriguing about Delvaux's nudes moving in a fashion so very distant through a landscape of railway engines, or reclining without sex.

The room to the left of the entrance is far less satisfactory. If it was intended to show that the spirit of Surrealism lives on in Belgium, it does so, but by any purist definition, Alechinsky is not a Surrealist, and he is certainly, at any rate in Belgium, an overrated artist.

Even less satisfactory is the big gallery. In the centre are showcases with photographs, volumes of poetry, and other literary material.

Compared with the force of Dürer's imagery and his wonderful craftsmanship, which through the centuries has continued to crystallise man's fears and hopes, Belgian Surrealism looks both clumsy and juvenile.

HORRIFYING STORY OF DEMONIAC POSSESSION

By JOHN BARBER

NO work could be less festive than the Edinburgh Festival's dramatisation at the Royal Lyceum of a dark and feverish Scottish novel about demoniac possession, James Hogg's "Confessions of a Justified Sinner."

Hogg's voluptuously tormenting book, as André Gide called it, tells how a young man fell under the influence of a trusted friend who became his second self.

He murdered on his behalf and finally drives him to suicide.

In dramatising this early 18th-century Jekyll-and-Hyde, Jack Ronder follows the book almost page by page, not always with happy results.

Stripped of Hogg's obsessed prose, and of much of his anxiety over an aberrant religious theory, a gory melodrama often stands naked. But if the cauldron of horror takes too long to come to the boil, it finally achieves something of the book's turmoil and power.

Robert is a puritan fanatic brought up to believe himself one of God's elect, guided by his satanic counsellor, who appears to be a man just like himself. He believes he is "justified" in cleansing the world of sinners. In the name of religion he kills his jolly brother and inherits a fortune.

Or it may be, of course, that he has simply allowed his subconscious self to take over. In allowing for this modern interpretation some of the book's stress on religious perversion gets lost.

The play is acted on a permanent stepped platform and fussily directed by Richard Eyre with much roistering to scraping fiddles in the early scenes. Later on the stage is plunged into Rembrandtesque black or hell-fire red, with plenty of off-stage storm-noises and nasty apparitions of Draculas in long cloaks, or of harpies with long plastic finger-nails.

An actor more saturnine of aspect was surely needed for the haunted Robert than cheery Richard Kane, with his cock-sparrow pertness. Jack Shepherd made a suitably sinister other self.

That fine actor Russell Hunter played the narrator Hogg and a confusing host of minor roles.

However, the play may be counted a success because it should certainly send audiences to read a horrifying and supremely imaginative book.

BERGANZA BRILLIANT IN 'CENERENTOLA'

By MARTIN COOPER

ROSSINI'S "La Cenerentola" is a retelling of the fairy tale of Cinderella with an admixture of 18th century philosophising and a strong dash of the comic artifice and exaggeration that distinguish Italian from French comic opera.

In Jean-Pierre Ponnelle's production at the King's Theatre, Edinburgh, this artificiality and the farcical element were strongly emphasised.

The 18-strong male chorus was given great formal and visual importance, with puppet-like gestures amusingly miming musical phrases and a discipline that suggested that of the old-fashioned revue.

Dandini was represented as a character who seemed to have wandered out of Offenbach and the part was played by Renato Capecchi with superbly easy humour and natural style, that still did not justify his apparently instinctive hogging of the stage throughout the evening.

Paolo Montarsolo's Don Magnifico, though also a caricature, was left heavily charged and sung with greater attention to the intricate detail of Rossini's unremitting scales and arpeggios.

The restoration of a large aria that Rossini added some years after the first performance gave the part of Alidoro (represented as a frock-coated character out of Hoffman) an added importance. But Ugo Trama unfortunately lacked the commanding quality of voice needed to make this effective.

Eugenia Ratti and Laura Zannini, though too often sacrificed to the producer's whims and made simply figures of fun, were well contrasted as the two sisters Clorinda and Thisbe.

But "Cenerentola" is only revived for a singer who can combine the tenderness and brilliance needed for the title-role, and it was Teresa Berganza who alone made this performance really memorable.

Her sense of timing, precise but never mechanical, was equally impressive in the Act I ballad and in the brilliant florid writing of the final scene.

She gave her descending scale passages an impetus and an accurate grading of weight that any instrumental player might envy and she used the extraordinary lyrical appeal of her middle and lower voice in soft passages as a means of characterisation that was wonderfully effective.

The playing of the London Symphony Orchestra under Claudio Abbado was not remarkable for sparkle or rhythmic vitality.

Letters to the Editor

Indian Princes were victims of haste

SIR—Mr James Cameron in his article in The Daily Telegraph Magazine (Aug. 13) gives a one-sided view of what happened to the Princely States.

The Indian Princes, together with less exalted Indians (two million dead and 12 million homeless), were the victims of the haste of the British withdrawal ordered by Mr Attlee's Government.

The Montagu-Chelmsford reforms of 1919 had stressed the necessity of gradualness. This was endorsed by the Simon Commission in the 1930s—a body of men who went to immense trouble to investigate the complex situation which British India, the Native States and the two main religions of India presented.

Their report is a fine description of the problems involved: their recommendations were that progress must be gradual.

This excellent advice — the truth of which all those who served in India in the years before the election of 1945 well knew—was thrown to the winds by Mr Attlee's Government with disastrous results.

Mr Cameron says that the States of Hyderabad, Junagadh and Kashmir, who demurred at joining the new India, were soon disposed of. A remarkable understatement.

HYDERABAD's independency was not tolerable when power was transferred in British India: the Princely States had the right to hesitate, or indeed to do nothing at all.

HYDERABAD was ruled by a Moslem. The Nizam's Government decided against joining either the new India or Pakistan. The State was promptly invaded by Mr Nehru (the disciple of the non-violent Mr Gandhi) and forced to join the new India by an act of aggression.

JUNAGADH was ruled by a Moslem, who elected to join Pakistan. As the majority of the State subjects were Hindus, Mr Nehru again sent in troops and compelled the State's union with new India by force.

KASHMIR caused the war between Pakistan and the new India. The State was ruled by a Hindu. Mr Nehru's family were Kashmiri Brahmans, but the majority of the State subjects were Moslems. The Maharaja, after some vacillation, opted for new India. Mr Nehru accepted the proposition with celerity.

He sent in troops to drive out the Moslem tribesmen, whose infiltration the Pakistan Government had unwisely encouraged. But with the Indian subcontinent divided on a religious basis, and with the examples of Hyderabad and Junagadh before them, the Pakistanis could not accept the incorporation of the Moslem population of the State of Kashmir into the new India.

Incidently Mr Cameron is wrong in stating that India shook off British rule. When Japan was defeated the prestige of the British in India, especially with the country people, was on the up-grade. In particular your stock with the martial races—the classes from which our Indian soldiers were recruited—was as high.

We could have stayed in control of India without much difficulty for any reasonable period had the Government at home wished it.

We were not shaken out of India: it was the Socialists at Westminster who did the shaking.

Price of palace

SIR—We would be interested to know from where Mr James Cameron obtained the information that the last palace to be built in India, which we had the privilege to design for the Maharaja of Jodhpur in 1929, cost £7 million as stated in the caption to the photograph in his article on the Indian Princes ("Ride an elephant into history") in The Daily Telegraph Magazine (Aug. 13).

A telephone call to this office would have told him that the actual building cost was less than 5 per cent. of the figure quoted, i.e. under £350,000. Perhaps there is confusion between rupees and pounds sterling.

The correct figure might not of course have suited so well the general underlying attitude of the article, but we think that many readers of Mr Cameron's article would be interested in getting this fact, at least, correct!

At a Swiss hotel

SIR—I spent my holiday in Interlaken in a large, well-known second-rank hotel.

After five weeks' stay I contracted a severe form of food poisoning, and an argument with the head-waiter—a West German—developed. When I complained to the owner, a Swiss woman, about his arrogant behaviour, she refused to intervene, saying that these days it was easier to get new guests than new personnel.

This although I had been paying the maximum price allowed by the Swiss Hotel Federation.

Silver Street

SIR—I have always been under the impression that the name Silver Street was derived from the Latin word silva, meaning "a wood." Some little time ago, I confess, I saw a denial of this in print. But then people today, from theologians downwards, make a speciality of denial!

In Wells we possess a charming little Silver Street. It has houses on one side only and directly overlooks the ancient Bishop's Park. Here, to me, is ample evidence of the Latin origin.

SIR—In Maldon the Mint was situated in Silver Street. Hence its name.

ZOOS SAID TO EXPLOIT WILDLIFE

By HUGH FERGUSON
Environment Correspondent

THE growing exploitation of wildlife by the setting-up of commercial zoos is condemned today by Mr Peter Conder, director of the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds.

"Collections of birds and other animals can be important educationally and scientifically," he says in an article in the society's magazine, Birds. "But there are some collections which are solely out to exploit wildlife."

Mr Conder acknowledges what, in broad terms, are the admirable efforts of the Federation of Zoological Gardens to set standards and conserve endangered species.

But he points out that it has no powers to insist that organisations not conforming to good standards should be disbanded or penalised.

Taken illegally

The society believes there are instances of birds on view having been taken illegally. It also believes that birds have been imported from countries with weak conservation laws.

"Our problem now seems to be to persuade people that birds and animals are much more beautiful in their proper places," Mr Conder adds, "and that there is, or can be, a sense of achievement in seeking out wild nature, especially in the most difficult and lonely places."

He also strongly deprecates the increase of "a peculiar sort of vandalism of nature" illustrated by the theft of ospreys' eggs from a society reserve earlier this year.

He says that that since then the society has learned of the destruction of four golden eagles' eggs, and of the robbing of at least five more eagles' nests in the Scottish Highlands and three kites' nests in Wales.

FARMS MANAGER APPOINTED BY QUEEN

Mr Robin Reeks, 29, a graduate of London University, is to succeed Mr Adrian Pelly as manager of the Royal Farms at Windsor, it was announced by Buckingham Palace yesterday. Mr Reeks will take up the appointment in October.

Mr Pelly, 55, who has been in charge of the Royal farms for 20 years, announced his retirement in January. A Palace spokesman said then Mr Pelly was leaving at his own request to make a change while he was "still young enough."

His successor will be one of the youngest managers employed by the Queen. Mr Reeks spent four years as a management assistant on a farm in Kent, three years as manager of a farm in Norwich and last January joined the Milk Marketing Board as a consulting officer. He is married with two children.

ROYAL CAR IN BRIGHTON RUN

The Queen has entered her 1900 Daimler, originally bought by her great-grandfather, King Edward VII, in the London-to-Brighton run on Nov. 7, the R.A.C. announced yesterday. It will be the first royal car to be entered in the run.

The Daimler, considered one of the most valuable cars in Britain, was the first car owned by the Royal Family. King Edward VII, then Prince of Wales, took delivery of it in June 1900.

GENERAL TO BE UNDERGRADUATE

Maj-Gen. Ronald Dare Wilson, 52, who retired recently as director of Army aviation at the Ministry of Defence, is to resume undergraduate studies in agriculture at St John's College, Cambridge, after having them interrupted by the 1939-45 War.

Maj-Gen. Wilson who lives at Coombe End, Dulverton, Somerset, said yesterday: "I am not sure whether I will be Cambridge's oldest undergraduate, but I suppose I could be."

Fading tans, beach-blown hair and uncertain weather which has you reaching for a sweater one minute and longing for a cool cotton the next, mean end-of-summer dumps and time for the kind of lift that women were supposed to get when they bought a new hat. Nowadays, for hat read dress, or a shining new gadget which brings beauty salon techniques into your own room.

BEAUTY TO BEAT END-OF-SUMMER BLUES

Dress with that in-between air . . .

WILL it be hot? Will it be cold? They are days of fashion indecision, these straggling last days of August, and most women feel the instant need just now for a dress with a between-seasons weight and air, something to lift their spirit on return from holidays.

We've found it, in the new Courtelle Softwill—a pleasant gentle-feeling cloth that's ideal for outdoors now and for a centrally-heated dinner party all winter long.

The dress, by Dorville, has the snug bodice and dropped dirndl skirt that look right in view of recent couture shows, and is obviously nicely covered up for town wear. It is, of course, washable, and is cream with patterns in mauve with turquoise, red with orange. It costs £19·50 in the shops now, including Gordon Lowes, of Sloane Street, London, S.W.1, and Marney's, 187, Hyndland Road, Glasgow, W.2. Picture by Myrtle Healey.

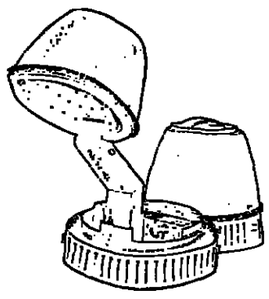
STYLE, WITHOUT SPLITTING HAIRS

THERE are those who can do their own hair, and those who can't. It helps, of course, if you have an honest hairdresser who will cut and shape your hair so that you can manage it in between trims. It also helps if you have a home dryer.

The most luxurious of the dryers I have tried lately is the Lady Schick Beauty Salon portable table model. Dome-shaped (see sketch below) about 12in high and 13in in diameter, it is surprisingly light to shift and opens up easily into a capacious, adjustable drying hood. Dial settings run from "off" through "cool" and "warm"—for wigs and children—to "hot," and it has an additional feature: a steam mister.

You add water (a measure comes with the dryer) to a special well, flick a control to mist, and gentle steam from the hood moistens dry-rollered hair; you finish the set by flicking to plain hot air.



This mist can also be used to speed up the action of colouring or conditioning.

The Beauty Salon costs £15·50 at John Lewis, Oxford Street, and main branches, from early September. A similar model, the Consolette, without the mist feature, is £13.

Those with fine hair can do with a bit of additional assistance. Thicken Hair, a three-in-one liquid—thickener, setting lotion and protein conditioner—is combed through the hair after it is towel-mopped.

It feels sticky while wet, but dries crisp. Amazingly, it does what it says it will: coats each hair transparently to give enough bulk and body to hold a set and shape, immediately and thereafter. You need far less lacquer; during the week, you simply dampen the hair for a re-set. As it tends to retard oil flow from the scalp, hair prone to grease doesn't turn oily so soon.

Nutress, the manufacturers, have been testing Thicken Hair for some weeks now at Mane Line, a lively, unisex West End salon in London which specialises in expert tinting and treatments. They like it, too.

Price: about 18p a phial at chemists and department stores, enough for three applications, unless your hair is very long. Dilutable, if necessary, for short, very fine heads of hair.

STEAM BATH, AT THE FLICK OF A SWITCH

CHEAPEST, easiest and most effective end of summer beauty treatment you can give your face is a steam bath. A bowlful of boiling water and a bath towel are all you need. Five minutes with your head under the towel and over the rising steam will loosen a holiday build-up of sun oil and après-beach make-up.

After steaming, splash your face with cold water to close the pores and your skin will be cleaner than it has ever been, even after the most thorough soap and water scrub or cleansing cream treatment.

The facial steamer sketched above is the electrical, luxurious, time-saving version of the bowl of boiling water and towel.

To use it, you pour a small amount of cold water into the sauna's tiny tank and switch on. The water vaporises into what the gadget's instructions call a "Beautifying Mist" — steam — and the clear, plastic face mask, which traps it as it rises, can be adjusted to the most comfortable angle for use at the turn of a knob.

Unlike the towel, the plastic mask covers only your face or throat, so that your hairdo doesn't get ruined by the moisture. A telephone-like dial on the mask is for regulating the amount of air allowed in so that you needn't gasp for breath, and the water heating section is thermostatically controlled.

As well as cleaning your skin, steam can be used to help along a creaming treatment—remember the old trick of creaming your face before getting into the bath? But in that case, use the steam to cleanse first before creaming and steaming once again.

Lady Schick, who make the steamer, call it a Facial Sauna, and it costs about £9·57 from the beauty counters at big stores.

WARNING YOUR CHILD ABOUT PLAYGROUND PERSECUTION

By Sally Holloway

WITH the new school year almost on us, thousands of children will be tasting classroom life for the first time in the next few weeks. Inevitably, too, some mothers will find themselves asking: "How can children be so cruel?"

Even in this gentle, Spock-orientated age, an almost inborn streak of unkindness seems to have persisted in the make-up of many children.

A mother whose 5-year-old started school for the first time last term told me: "He came home absolutely stunned. The other children turned on him in the playground and shouted: 'You're cross-eyed — old cross-eyes — what's wrong with your eyes?'"

In fact, the child was in the middle of a series of operations to correct the fault, but in the sheltered world of home, it had never bothered him. Now it was a shock like icy water.

By chance, in the same week, Mandy, a 4-year-old Canadian, came to stay with us. "Howja like my goggles?" she demanded, within minutes of arriving, as she peered up through heavy, square, horn-rimmed spectacles.

Her mother said that the arrival of the spectacles had been an enormous success. "She took to them straight away, poor kid. She'd discovered what it was like to see properly for the first time in her life."

All was one until she started nursery school and the other children immediately ganged up. "Four eyes," they jeered. "Why are you so ugly?" She, too, went home in tears.

These instances of cruelty were bad enough, but barely equalled the terrible effect on a quiet, 5-year-old boy who on his first day at a village school was greeted by jeers from the other children and shouts of "Who's your father?" He was illegitimate and was discovering this for the first time.

What can parents do in the face of such misery?

Talking to the child helps most. Recently a small girl whose scalp had been burned as a baby was the centre of a High Court action. "Some of the other schoolchildren wouldn't play with her. They said she had a hole in her head," explained counsel.

Luckily, her mother had talked to the child about it and explained that although she was a little different physically, it was nothing to be bothered about.

Sometimes, if a quiet chat at home does not help, it is worth having a word with a child's teacher and asking her to keep a watch during playtime to make sure that there is no persecution, or even to have a word with the other children concerned.

In some cases, though, the blame for the cruelty must lie with the parents of the persecutors, although they are probably quite unaware of it.

How often have they commented unsympathetically on a physical handicap — "You'd think she'd get something done about that child's eyes; she looks dreadful, poor little thing"—without knowing whether anything had been done or not?

And in the case of the boy's illegitimacy, no child could know about that unless he had heard of it through adults.

Sometimes it helps to foster a particular skill in a child with a handicap. A mother whose daughter had been crippled with polio found she loved water and had her taught to swim until she could beat anyone in the school at the backstroke. Another, whose son was particularly small, took him to a local judokai and made sure that he would not come off worst if there was a playground punch-up.

The philosophic Mandy, full of sympathy, confronted a total stranger in the street with "Gee, I sure am sorry for you, who sawed your arm off?"—but at least it was kindly meant, and accepted with pleasure.

On her own problem, she confided in me before leaving for home: "If anybody still calls me 'four-eyes' when I get back, you know what? I reckon I'm going to have to push him off the wharf."

Stacey's first film—as Truffaut's leading lady

By Jane McLoughlin

STACEY TENDETER keeps pinching herself to make sure she really is the girl top French director Francois Truffaut chose to play a lead part in his new film, "Les Deux Anglaises sur le Continent."

For Stacey and Kika Markham, the other young English actress in the film, are the first English actresses Truffaut has worked with, and only a year ago 22 year-old Stacey left the Central School of Speech and Drama dreaming of just such an opportunity.

She has not stopped working since college, with TV parts in "Elizabeth R," in "Uncle Vanya" and with Rex Harrison in "Platonov."

"I get the feeling all the time that 'God, it's too good to last.'" she said in her tiny one-room-and-a-garden flat in West Hampstead.

Of her first film part, she said: "It's such a good part. I was very lucky to get it. They had already cast the girl, but weren't happy.

"A woman who once worked for my agent suggested they try him for someone suitable, and within hours I was being fitted for costumes."

She loved working for Truffaut.

Her husband, young British sculptor Andy Elton, went with Stacey to France during filming. He spent the time sketching Truffaut, and felt he got to know the man, observing him like this.

He has done a bronze head of the famous director which he is sending to France as a surprise gift: "Though he knew I sketched him—it may not be such a surprise," he said.

Both fell in sympathy with Truffaut's outlook: "He has a very classical creative approach to his work that isn't really 20th-century at all. And we're not, either.

"If Stacey did a scene well or put her own interpretation on it and he liked it he would leave it alone. He seemed to do less and less directing and more and more watching."

Stacey returns to France for a few close-up shots before the film is launched in Paris in November. She has no work plans then, but is not too worried: "Somehow I've always felt I will succeed. I've just never doubted it. I want to do some good films, and I've always longed to do a cowboy film. Well, I never thought I'd work with Truffaut . . . so you never know."

Our Film Critic ERIC SHORTER watched Truffaut directing Stacey and Kika Markham on the set in Paris. He writes: Not many English actresses get their first break in the cinema in such distinguished, promising and agreeable circumstances, or under such pleasantly meticulous direction as Truffaut was calmly dispensing.

Although the Markhams have a cottage in the Dordogne so that Kika has been long accustomed to visiting France, and though Stacey has habitually paid visits to her husband's aunt in France, the dialogue of the film (which is based on a novel covering the period 1900-1920) will be suffused with an elegance not often found in modern everyday French conversation.

But if they felt nervous, they certainly didn't show it as they worked . .

"Cut," he cried (Truffaut's pronunciation of cut), and we all started to breathe again. Not many film sets possess such an easy-going atmosphere: no raised voices, no displays of temperament.

Learning to be a loser

ABOUT the middle of May this year a small paragraph in The Daily Telegraph conjectured that probably more than 2,000 Conservative councillors lost their seats in the recent local government elections. Well, where do flies go in the wintertime?

A very large number of this particular variety (circa 1965 and 1968) were elected, as I was, at a time when nearly every available candidate had already been made a member of one council or another in answer to freezes, squeezes and whatnot on the dizzy heights of Westminster.

Ward committees were pressing into service road stewards, organisers of coffee mornings and so on, people whose highest ambition had been to run successful functions and make a few extra pounds for the party coffers.

By the nature of things then, the majority of those who lost their seats last May were women—the often laughed-at frilly-hatted women of the Tory party. But it ought to be noted that many of these women tackled their new job well and went a fair way to making their marks on many local scenes.

How then have these three- or six-year spells of public office affected the lives of women who perhaps otherwise would have continued a serene middle-class existence to the gentle ending of their days? Take my own case.

May 13 ended predictably. The opinion polls could be ignored, there was no obvious hostility, but the writing on the wall lay in the looks of indifference from those who had until now greeted one with pleasure if not enthusiasm.

There are "thank you" letters to write for even in defeat one still has friends. There is a neglected house and garden to eat up a few hours of days which have suddenly become stretched to a small eternity; perhaps the renewal of acquaintanceship with family and friends and for a few of us co-opted membership to a council committee.

But for an active middle-aged woman with grown-up children whose mind has become stretched by council work and who has adjusted to a heavy timetable, the hours are long and empty. Even ward work is not enough. But most of all the cut and thrust of politics has gone. Above all, one realises that to most people there is nothing more boring than an ex-anything.

So back to the drawing board.

"What about voluntary work?"

"I do some of that already."

"Do some more then or go back to nursing."

"After more than 20 years?"

"You had a go at the council after no years."

"Yes, but nursing is skilled work."

(Inane conversations with oneself are a disconcerting withdrawal symptom of denied political activity.)

Anyway, the opportunity arose and now, three months later, back to nursing it is—on a part-time basis. It is no doubt good for the soul to see how much medicine has advanced over the years and how little one knows compared to the bright and pretty young things who now run our hospitals.

Fame is but a short-lived thing—although there are still the few who feel that they must know me because my face seems familiar.

Still there must be quite a lot wrong with the National Health Service when one has time to look around.

VIOLENT CRIMES

VIOLENCE IN BRITAIN has been increasing and is increasing. The killing of a police chief and the shooting of two other police officers in Blackpool is but the latest in a steadily rising series of crimes of violence. It is not only such headline-catching events which give cause for concern. Every private citizen in this country must be aware, from his own experience, or from what he has heard from friends and acquaintances, that violence of one kind or another, whether petty or grave, whether directly associated with some other offence or not, is on the increase. The most serious is violence in robbery and in resisting arrest. Yet anyone who reads local newspapers must have noticed the increasing number of apparently senseless attacks reported, and be aware that for every one which reaches the attention of the police and the Press there are probably a score of others unreported. In many semi-urban areas, where there are open stretches of what used to be peaceful canal-side or common moor, local inhabitants have perforce become wary of walking on them. Muggings and pickpocketings involving violence are becoming more frequent on London's Underground.

The police, not for the first time but with heightened urgency, are voicing their disquiet. Their anxiety centres on two main aspects—inadequate sentencing policy, and lack of enough support from the public for their role in society. Taken over a long period, the number of policemen killed on duty has been increasing. The Police Federation does not call for reintroduction of capital punishment. Certainly there is not, yet at least, weighty enough evidence to justify that. They are without doubt right in calling for a stronger sentencing policy and in appealing for greater public awareness.

No one wants London and Britain's other cities to become like New York or Washington in terms of violent crime. Yet on the present trend that is the way they may be going. It is not for the private citizen to prescribe in detail what should be done; but it is for him to let the Government know he expects that something should be done, and also himself to support the police. On the public level, the first need is for longer sentences, served longer.

LEARNING FROM BEADS

IT LOOKS AS THOUGH the educational world will never be the same again since the "discovery" that small children are capable of logical thought, and may even be responsive to more formal teaching methods, from the age of three onwards. Times were when the findings of Dr Bryant and Prof. Trabasso would have been regarded as no more than the obvious—or, to put it another way, merely reflecting the accumulated wisdom of the ages. But of late "progressive" educationists in their wisdom have applied the theories of, in particular, the Swiss psychologist, Prof. Piaget. These stipulate that children should be taught by informal methods, and should learn to adjust to each other, until the age of seven. Hence play and discovery, both within and without the classroom, have for years been the theme of tens of thousands of primary schools throughout the country. The emphasis there has been not on what (if anything) children learn, but how they learn it, or on how they prepare to learn it in the future.

How refreshing it is that such ideas have apparently been so easily demolished. The so-called progressives will doubtless waste no time in mounting their counter-attack. But the onus lies on them to prove, if they can, by equally simple methods, why the experiments at Cowley are misleading. The approach there was so straightforward, like so much pioneering research, as to invite the question: "why has no one thought of this before?" Experiments with beads strongly suggested that children possess logical expression from the beginning; and not that such logical expression develops merely from informal experiences. Primary school teachers may at last—or again—now actually be allowed to get on with their function of teaching rather than minding fun parties.

WHO'S WHO IN ZAMBIA

MR SIMON KAPWEPWE, former Vice-President and Foreign Minister of Zambia, one time companion to Dr Kenneth Kaunda in the "liberation struggle," has flounced off into opposition. The long rift has become irremediable and Mr Kapwepwe is to found a party of United Progressives in alliance with Mr Harry Nkumbula's African National Congress. This is indeed a dangerous step that any African politician takes at risk of his liberty. For Mr Nkumbula's little opposition party is tolerated in Parliament because it is small and impotent. Mr Kapwepwe, however, would present a far more formidable challenge, and the arrest of his two aides may be a warning to him not to ignore the rules of African democracy.

Those rules are that the founder-figure does not step down, and that any attempt to make him do so is firmly answered. Mr Odinga, in Kenya, tried it and lost, and there is no record anywhere else in emergent Africa of an effective Opposition being tolerated. Africa has adopted what is basically the one-party system.

Mr Kapwepwe makes his challenge at a time when the falling price of copper and the squeeze of sanctions on neighbouring Rhodesia have added to Zambia's difficulties. He speaks of corruption and the Government losing the love of the people. There may be some truth in his assertions and some skill in his timing, but Mr Kapwepwe has yet to prove that he is anything more than a nationalist windbag. The way of opposition will be uphill, thorny and probably violent. President Kaunda has not lost his aura in the same way as Dr Obote of Uganda did and he has some shrewd lieutenants.

ASHES TO DUST

IF EYEBROWS WERE RAISED more highly than anywhere else in the cricketing world at India's victory over England at the Oval yesterday, and thereby in the three-match series, it may be in Australia, whence only a few months ago Illingworth and his men returned triumphantly with the Ashes. Even allowing that Wadekar's team thoroughly deserved their success, the implication must be that both in England and Australia the game has sunk to a pretty low ebb. In this country at least there are a variety of reasons for the decline. Lack of public support in mid-week has led to tampering with both rules and scoring systems in a forced effort to enliven play. At the same time, the one-day cricket which draws the crowds requires a different approach to all aspects of the game. Thirdly, few groundsmen seem regularly capable of preparing a pitch that gives a fair balance between bat and ball. Too often it seems that our players need a fair wind of some kind, to be helped by conditions of wicket or weather, in order to thrive.

Against this the Indians have shown themselves to be men for all seasons. If their batting here has been on the cautious side (not helped by conditions), they had previously demonstrated in the West Indies their capacity for high scoring at a brisk rate. Similarly their key bowlers are those who, by exploiting flighted wrist spin with its greater potential inaccuracy compared with more controlled finger spin, tempt the batsman to undo himself rather than setting out to deny him runs. Such bowlers, alas, are by now almost an extinct species in England: we should nourish them in future like avocets.

G. K. MANN questions whether the new Family Income Supplements will fulfil their purpose

The wrong way to fight poverty?

WHEN a punter has had a bad day at the races, it is not unknown for him to expatiate on his one winner, and remain tight-lipped about the also-rans that he backed. Sir Keith Joseph, the Secretary for Social Services, seemed to be acting like this when he told the Commons the other day that 43,000 claimants had qualified for weekly grants under the Family Income Supplements Act now operative. Sir Keith had asserted last November that this entirely new—indeed revolutionary — provision for national assistance to supplement the wages of "low earners" would "almost transform" the lives of 320,000 adults and about half-a-million children.

Thus the number qualifying for the grants is only 23 per cent. of the estimate — which affords only very limited endorsement of the Government's conviction that the Act was imperative to help those most in need.

Worse still, the figure of 43,000 is most misleading as a measure of the response of low wage earners to the new legislation, for of that number only 23,000 actually applied for the supplement: the remaining 20,000 were already receiving supplementary benefit, and the Act will automatically so increase their weekly allowances as virtually to put paid to the "wage stop" rule which limits assistance for the unemployed to ensure that a man's income is not greater than when he is working. It is among those 20,000, many of whom have not worked for years, that the most hardened scroungers and layabouts are found.

So a mere 12 per cent. of the estimated number of "low earners" actually working, whose lives and their families' the supplements would "almost transform," sought the supplements, qualified and now receive them.

Those who disagree with that diagnosis must explain the sluggishness of 88 per cent. of this poverty-stricken section of the community. Why this hanging back by potential beneficiaries—ranging from men with two children earning a miserable £1,000 a year, to men with seven children struggling along on £1,500, plus of course their normal family allowances?

Was the advertising campaign for the scheme perhaps too cheeseparing? Was £210,000 enough to devote to that appeal to add oneself to the four million already in the supplemented-income class of State dependants? That group cost us a record £615 million last year—well nigh treble the bill eight years ago. Why this sales resistance by "low earners"?

They have not flocked to Ministry of Social Security offices, or posted completed application forms, chiefly because they are not so desperately hard-up that they need means-tested State relief. There still survives, perhaps surprisingly in our deranged Welfare State, widespread distaste to the attaching of a poverty label. There is, too, a healthy awareness that State paternalism threatens personal freedom. And not least, knowing full well that State aid is abused to an infinitely greater extent than any Government has dared admit, they do not intend to risk association with the growing breed of parasites.

Incidentally, for many years amendment after amendment to the A Code, the criteria by which Ministry officials determine each applicant's level of benefits, have made the way of the workshy easier.

When low earners who are family men, having received their wages supplement (maximum £4 a week), then proceed to exercise the right, thereby acquired, also to cash in on the manifold benefits to which they are entitled—rent and rates rebates, free milk, school meals, clothing, prescriptions, optical and dental treatment and the rest—many will finish up far better off than hundreds of thousands whose higher wages exclude them from both supplement and attendant benefits.

What then? Well, income and supplement limits have been once increased already. To correct discrimination against that particular aggrieved slightly higher-wage group, will the Government raise both limits again? And thus, of necessity, create a new anomaly at the expense of the next-higher-paid class of workers? And so on ad infinitum?

On their own feet

It is unedifying to see a Tory administration, whose leaders have harped so much on the need to encourage people to stand on their own feet, urging nearly 200,000 adults who are standing thus, uncomplainingly, to be propped up by the State. The indifference, disdain or contempt of the non-applying 88 per cent. suggests they were much less impressed by the dangled carrot than by the certainty of transformation from free, self-supporting, self-respecting workers to men on public relief.

Mr Enoch Powell did not exaggerate when, in roundly condemning the Family Income Supplements Bill on second reading, he described it as "a momentous and fateful step." Family allowances introduced in 1946 by a Labour Government for the needy and affluent alike created two important precedents. They marked direct personal State aid with no means test. No longer was it the responsibility of an employer to pay a living wage. For 345 years, from parish relief to National Assistance, by excluding men in full-time work from State aid, the rational principle of avoiding encouragement to unscrupulous employers to exploit labour had been maintained. The process of finally undermining that supremely important provision to protect workers has begun with the wages supplement. Is this the best the Government can do in formulating an incomes policy?

The one departure over the centuries from the strict rule denying State relief for those in full-time work was the Berkshire Speenhamland system (1795-1834): farmers accepted the invitation to pay low wages. It was therefore singularly appropriate that this faint 18th-century echo should first be picked up by the farm workers' union leader. The minimum wage, he said, was well below the Government's "official poverty line." He saw the new Act as almost precise revision to parish-subsidised wages.

One report says that heading the queue for the new grants will be "hundreds if not thousands" of employees of the Ministry administering the scheme, and it had been necessary to set up special embarrassment-avoiding offices to deal with these civil servants' claims! Could poignancy be more exquisite?

What is this "official poverty line"? It is just a Civil Service phrase. It has as much to do with real poverty as an "official wealth line" would have to do with untold riches.

After juggling amateurishly with a lot of figures, those learned Leftist Professors of Poverty, Brian Abel-Smith and Peter Townsend, made great play with what they called "the subsistence level," a level of their own devising. With this as their yardstick they then proceeded in next to no time to establish to their own satisfaction that seven million in this country were struggling to keep themselves alive. That was in 1965.

Borrowing, it seems, from these "experts"—of all people—the Ministry's "official poverty line" is based on what superficially may be regarded as reputable figures, i.e. the current Supplementary Benefit rates, which vary with the size of the family, income and outgoings. These days this "official poverty line" could as reasonably be called the "minimum affluence line." Sir Keith Joseph clearly saw the utter absurdity of equating National Assistance rates either with "the subsistence level," or any "official poverty line," when last October he said: "The trouble is that over the last few years indiscriminate welfare benefits have raced ahead of the real earnings of millions of our people."

What remarkable aberration changed this sober appreciation of the facts into subscription to Socialist academics' infantile theories? All the evidence points to the persistent propaganda of an ultra-Leftist group cold-shouldered by the last Labour Government, the Child Poverty Action Group, as being the almost incredible catalyst.

Labour Marketeers fight back

THE Labour Committee for Europe, the party's pro-Market organisation, is putting final touches to a programme planned as a counter-blast to the party's official "No entry on Tory terms"

Main guns are to be Roy Jenkins, Lord George-Brown, George Thomson, Harold Lever, Michael Stewart and Shirley Williams.

The campaign officially opens on Friday week, eve of the special conference of the Co-operative Congress. The National Executive of the Co-op party recently decided by 10 votes to three that the Tory terms were acceptable.

The first meeting will be at Caxton Hall, followed by meetings in the regional population centres.

The right of the pro-Marketeers to put their case has been conceded by the party leadership. But MPs must obey the Parliamentary code of conduct and eschew personalities.

More and more American radio stations are being "taken over" temporarily by the British, I learn from New York. BOAC is sponsoring one or two British Radio Days a month on stations across the country. The Days include interviews with British personalities, all-British music, BBC news programmes, and "The Queen."

LONDON DAY BY DAY

Zoo memories

ANTWERP'S City Council has had to revise its carefully prepared programme for Emperor Hirohito's tour of the city during his coming visit to Europe.

Sent recently to Tokyo for approval, the programme arranged by the council has been returned with the Emperor's wish that a visit to Antwerp's Zoo be included.

It appears that in 1921, fresh from his first visit to London, he visited the Zoo incognito and now wishes to revive the memories.

Nothing new in pigs

THOSE who scream "Pigs!" at police may think that this use of the animal as a derogatory symbol is a recent American invention. As my picture illustrating part of a wood block engraving of 1892 shows, this is not so.

Drawn by a Chinese cartoonist, the engraving was one of a series sent by the British Consul in Hankow to the British Minister in Peking, Sir John Walsham. The pig-like figure tied to the crucifix represents Western and Christian influence in the East.

Captions to other drawings in the series, which can now be seen in the Public Record Office, suggested that in the West men could marry their own daughters or sisters. Sir John advised Lord Salisbury, then Foreign Secretary, that all this was serious incitement.

A few of the blocks were burned in public but the hostility continued and gave rise to the Boxer riots a decade later.

Local recruit

FOR the first time a man living in the village of Coldstream, Berwickshire, will today be enlisted into the Coldstream Guards at a ceremony conducted in the village. He is Robert Kennedy, whose enlistment ceremony will be conducted by Lieut-Col Peter Maudet, the Army Careers Officer, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

It will take place in the market square opposite the old headquarters of Gen. George Monck, the Coldstream's first commanding officer. The regiment dates from 1650, when he was given command of the newly formed Monck's Regiment of Foot. In 1660 the regiment marched to London, where it was nicknamed the Coldstreamers. It quelled an uprising the following year, and although Cromwell's army was disbanded, Charles II granted the regiment a reprieve. After Gen. Monck's death it was renamed His Majesty's Coldstream Regiment of Foot Guards.

Inspired by wine loss

BRIG. R. F. JOHNSON, author of "The Royal George"—to be published by Knight on Sept. 16—maintains that the account accepted for years by historians of the 100-gun man-of-war's sinking in 1782 is not true.

The court martial found that the ship, which sank at anchor in a flat calm off Southsea with the loss of 554 men—and 300 visiting women and tradesmen—capsized because her bottom fell out. The true story, says Brig. Johnson, is that the ship heeled over during loading as a result of inattention and confusion.

He was led to write the book by noticing a change in the labelling of two bottles in the Royal United Service Museum. After many years it changed from "Two bottles of wine, salved from the Royal George," to "Two wine bottles." They were empty.

He wondered, he told me yesterday, who had "scoffed" them. His inquiries led him to look at pictures and ships' log books. Now, he says, there is no question that his theories are right.

Conditional "pop"

FOR "pop" fans, Clacton is to be The Scene this coming holiday weekend, not the Isle of Wight. The island's tourist board hope this will be understood by fans who may otherwise drift in, and by their faithful holiday visitors, who may otherwise stay away.

"I'm afraid you've got elm disease."

The Isle of Wight is entitled to make the point. With considerable difficulty MPs have just got through both Houses of Parliament a private Bill enabling conditions to be imposed on "pop" festivals such as last year's.

Labour MPs fought it strenuously as an attempt to interfere with free assembly. The island's thinking, accepted by the majority, was that for large overnight assemblies in the open organisers must provide proper facilities on pain of a fine.

Clacton may well wish the Government had produced something on these lines for universal application.

It is interesting, if not ominous, that Russia should have chosen Monday to announce her agreement after 18 months of negotiation: to a Berlin "freedom" pact. This was the very anniversary of the German-Soviet non-aggression pact of 1939, which led to the carve-up of Poland and the outbreak of the War.

Danger for fish

THE decision by British Rail and other cross-Channel ferry services to stop dumping plastic cups and containers into the sea, following complaints from South Coast resorts, is being received with great relief by fishermen of the Pas-de-Calais, I learn from France.

They say that plastic containers have been responsible for the deaths of vast numbers of cod. The fish swallow sections of the containers under the impression that they are edible. The sections block the insides of the fish and they die of starvation.

Meat of politics

FOLLOWING my paragraph about an advertisement for a smart young butcher's assistant able to cut, skewer and serve customers, I learn that a Worcestershire shop has a tray labelled: "All Our Sausages Contain Conservatives."

DEATH BLOW TO A SACRED COW?

SIR—What a wonderful "Back to School" present for the coming academic year is Dr Bryant and Prof. Trabasso's finding on young children's capacities for logical thought from a very early age.

Thus is confounded the Piagetian theory which has held the field for years.

Dr Bryant and Prof. Trabasso have found a way to drive the Piagetian sacred cow from the educational field which it has occupied for far too long with its inane lowings, its low-yield academic milk, and general laziness. The followers of this animal in the last three decades have caused unrealised damage to innumerable young people, in low standards of reading and other basic attainments, poor concentration, and an anarchic attitude to life instilled into them from an early age.

Good riddance to this miserable beast! Perhaps now teachers in higher primary schools, in secondary schools, and in the universities and colleges can expect a rising standard of attainments. In the infants' schools too the vast majority of the teachers will be overjoyed to regain the lost freedom of being able to teach creatively and not to be highly qualified child-minders.

Parents, who have always been apprehensive over the way their children have been cared for, will breathe a sigh of relief. And the children? They have always wanted to come to school to work—they can, and always have, played after school!

ROBERT HUGHES
Headmaster, Whitchurch C.E. Junior School.
Whitchurch, Salop.

Powers underestimated

SIR—The picture drawn by your Educational Correspondent (Aug 25) of progressive teachers reeling in dismay at the results obtained by Dr Bryant is dramatic but misleading. Neither teachers nor education work like that.

Practice in the progressive English primary schools (probably 25 per cent. of the whole), so far as it is general at all, is certainly influenced by Piaget, many of whose theories have been supported by research at least as reliable as Dr Bryant's: but the freedom of English teachers to experiment and modify means that there is no "party line" and no programme of the kind that bedevils American schools.

One of the most important contributions of progressive practice has been to reveal how much greater are the capacities of children in the 3 Rs and in the arts than the traditional methods allowed, and it has long been known to teachers and others that Piaget underestimated their reasoning powers.

Dr Bryant's research will doubtless be repeated, and if the results are confirmed will make its contribution to educational theory and practice. It may modify, but it will not overturn.

JOHN BLACKIE
Alconbury, Hunts.

Teachers' fight

SIR—A great many teachers will breathe a hearty sigh of relief at Dr Bryant's findings concerning formal teaching methods. Many of us have fought for years against not just so-called modern methods but the attitude that anyone who doubted the marvellous advance that was going to be achieved, the educational millennium which was just round the corner.

What worried me about your report is that no reference is made to the countless teachers who have had to put up with a system which makes no or very little cognizance of the experience of the teacher in the classroom. He or she apparently matters very little: the opinions which are highly valued are of those who either have never been inside the classroom or have left it long ago.

I rejoice at the results of Dr Bryant's work. But is there no guarantee that some other academic in a couple of years' time will no-come along with opposite findings, which we shall all, whether we like it or not, have to follow?

Gems of knowledge

SIR—At last! A revelation from the heavens above! "Small children are capable of logical thought and may cope with more formal teachings methods as early as three years old." And I thought that all this time my five children had something wrong with them when having "logical thoughts" at an early age.

How the women of Britain must sigh with relief to know that their children are normal and not some sort of freak monsters put on this earth to baffle the dons and educationalists who seek to rule our thoughts.

Any more gems of knowledge about our poor children would be greatly appreciated.

Irishmen's privileges in Britain

SIR—Now that the IRA and their supporters in Great Britain have advocated violence in our cities, and London has been threatened with a complete day's stoppage (whatever that means), I suggest it is time that we stopped being nice to the Southern Irish in our community, and that the Government reappraises the special privileges granted to these aliens.

Among the foremost of these are the right to vote at our General Elections, a ridiculous privilege which is not reciprocated; the right to come and go from our shores without any hindrance; unlimited remittance of funds to Eire; immediate free medical and social benefits, and, with their large families, priority for council houses.

Indeed with 904,000 and the prospect of a million (according to Mr Vic Feather) of our people unemployed, and an estimated 860,000 citizens of Southern Ireland in Britain, the answer seems pretty obvious. The arrival of these immigrants in Dublin would take Mr Lynch's mind off Ulster.

In aid of IRA

From Sir KNOX CUNNINGHAM, Q.C.

SIR—The front page of The Daily Telegraph of Aug. 21 displays a picture of a public collection outside the General Post Office in Dublin in aid of the Provisional IRA for "cash, food, etc." These are the men who are engaged in killing our soldiers in Ulster and have stated that they are about to commence bombing in Britain.

Eire claims to be a civilised power seeking to join with the United Kingdom in the European Community. In the light of her present behaviour Mr Heath was right to reply as he did to Mr Lynch. He may, however, require firmer pressure to bring the Republic to a sense of her international obligations.

Price of gold

From Lord INCHIQUIN

SIR—Lord Boothby's admirable summing up (Aug. 17) on a "realistic level for gold" merits careful consideration.

Since the first world war the price of gold has remained pegged at various levels for political, rather than economic reasons, with the result that we now have the farcical 1934 price of $35 an ounce as the official exchange rate; obviously this does not produce sufficient liquidity to be of any value under modern world conditions.

Now that the dollar is no longer convertible on demand and all exchange rates are in the melting pot, surely the time has come to re-establish gold, as the basis of international reserves, at a realistic level.

Payment deferred

SIR—I have been involved over the past few years in the distribution of a booklet on the heroes of a Sussex parish. This booklet has been asked for by various public libraries, and has gone into several libraries, but it does seem extremely difficult to extract payment from these organisations.

Only after letters and telephone calls is payment sometimes made, and one well-known bookseller has never yet bothered to pay. I wonder if this is the experience of others, and why there should be this failing on the part of organisations one used to regard as impeccable. Certainly we have now learned not to deliver the goods until the cheque has been received.

Standards of living in Common Market

From Mr NEIL MARTEN, MP (Con)

SIR—The public is often told that the standard of living in the Common Market is higher than in Britain. Most people find this hard to believe. Can I now set their minds finally at rest?

In a briefing paper on how to deal with questions on the Common Market (dated Aug. 5, 1971 from the Conservative party) the question posed is about workers coming to Britain from the Common Market countries. The suggested answer contains the following sentences.

It is unlikely that British entry into the EEC would lead to any major increase in people from the Continent seeking jobs here, since the standard of living in the Six countries is broadly comparable to that in Britain

In a pamphlet entitled "This could be your future" certain prospects are held out to the British public if we join. One concerns larger paid holidays—it says:

"For instance, the Italian worker gets between 29 and 47 days a year, compared with between 16 and 21 days in Britain"

The implication is that our paid holidays could rise to the Italian level—otherwise, there would be no point in mentioning the Italian holidays.

The Department of Employment told Parliament on Aug. 5 that if our holidays rose to the lower Italian level of 29 days it would have the effect of 510 million lost working days and to the higher level of 47 days, of 650 million lost working days.

I merely thought your readers should be aware of the implications on our production of joining the Common Market. I seem to remember at the last election castigating the Labour Government for allowing six million lost working days!

And then there was that famous and expensive advertisement in the Times on July 26 signed by 71 of our leading businessmen who indicated their belief that, by joining the Common Market, there would be a European home market five times our present size and growing at twice our rate. They were wrong on both counts! The home market is not five times ours and our growth rate of 2.1/2% is much the same as the EEC (Hansard July 19 and EEC Quarterly Report No. 1 of 1971).

Who can now honestly say that there should not be a Select Committee to examine the case for joining the Common Market?

NEIL MARTEN

Legion of the lost

SIR—In reporting the provisional results of the 1971 Census (Aug. 19) you refer to the mystery of the 500,000 lost people.

If my experience is any guide-line the solution is simple. I was resident at my address on April 25 and duly and correctly filled in my census form. I am still awaiting an enumerator to collect it.

Flying ants

SIR—I was interested in Sir Noel Arkell's account (Aug. 21) of house martins enjoying a feast of flying ants.

I witnessed a similar sight in Devon on the evening of Aug. 19 when flying ants hatched over the cliffs at the east end of Teignmouth. On this occasion hundreds of herring gulls were wheeling and turning for an hour or two in pursuit of flying ants.

It was a remarkable sight to see these large birds performing aerial acrobatics in order to catch these unusual delicacies.

NO MONEY FOR TITIAN, HEATH TELLS DELEGATION

By ROBERT ADAM

THE £1,763,000 Titian masterpiece "The Death of Actaeon" is now irretrievably lost to Britain. At a meeting at Chequers yesterday with the Prime Minister a five-man delegation from the art world was told that the Government could not provide the money for the National Gallery to buy the picture.

The delegation, led by Sir Antony Hornby, chairman of the National Art Collections Fund, sought the meeting to try to convince Mr Heath that there was an unanswerable case for keeping the Titian in Britain.

But the answer was that the Government could not afford "this kind of money" for one picture.

From the Government point of view the difficulty is that they are concerned with the question of giving help to the country's 800 museums and galleries.

Although Mr Heath told the delegation that he could not advise the Government to provide money to buy the Titian, he said there was a strong case for looking again at the tax laws in relation to the donation of works of art to the nation.

This would indicate that if a benefactor wanted to donate a picture to the nation in his own lifetime, the Inland Revenue might be prepared to give a tax concession.

Mr Heath said the Government was trying to think of ways to facilitate the acquisition of important pictures for the nation.

Fair hearing

Sir Anthony said last night: "We got a fair and understanding hearing from the Prime Minister. We did very strongly make the point that we thought it would be a great disaster if the Titian was allowed to leave

The Titian was sold at Crishtie's in July to an American art dealer. Mr Julius Witzner, for £1,680,000. The same weekend he resold it to Mr Paul Getty, an oil millionaire, for £1,765,000, giving Mr Weitzner an immediate profit of £85,000.

Mr Getty then said that regardless of whether an export licence was granted, the National Gallery could have the picture on loan for two years.

Viscount Eccles, Minister for the Arts, who was at yesterday's meeting announced that an export licence would not be granted for the painting at the present time.

Yesterday's delegation was: Sir John Witt, chairman of the trustees of the National Gallery; Mr Patrick Gibson, who has been named as the next chairman of the Arts Council; Lord Perth; and Mr Dennis Sutton, editor of Apollo magazine.

COUPLE BACK TO FACE CHARGES

Daily Telegraph Reporter

A MIDDLE - AGED married couple have returned from Gibraltar to England to face fraud charges involving more than £90,000, Stockport court was told yesterday.

Mr BARNEY BERKSON, defending, said: "They will plead not guilty to all the charges. They returned of their own free will to face them. On my instructions, there is a complete answer to all the charges."

The couple, JAMES and IVY MCCLAY, were remanded on bail until Oct. 20. The husband is accused of 18 offences; his wife faces nine charges.

Insp. RALPH HEDLEY, prosecuting, said the charges involve fraud and fraudulent conversion of amounts of money in excess of £90,000. Extradition proceedings had been started, but the couple had returned voluntarily on Monday.

"They were met at Gatwick Airport and were arrested." They had lived in Gibraltar for 2½ years.

The offences are said to have been committed in Cheshire and some date back to 1966. Reporting restrictions were lifted.

STORK WARNING

PRIESTS MAY GO TO MONASTERY

Daily Telegraph Reporter

TWO Roman Catholic priests fined for stealing from shops while on holiday at a Butlin's holiday camp at Clacton, Essex, are to be called before their bishop.

The most likely outcome is that they will be sent to a monastery for a period of retreat.

It is thought improbable that they would be made to undergo laicisation, the procedure by which a priest is permitted to return to the lay state.

Fr. Tobias Aidan Kinsella, 40, of St Kevin's, Tinahely, Co. Wicklow, was fined £30 with £5 costs at Clacton on Monday for stealing items from Marks and Spencer and a shop at the holiday camp. Fr. Henry Sinnott, 33, of School Street, Wexford, who admitted similar offences, was fined £25 with £5 costs.

Civilian clothes

Both men, who are curates, will be questioned about the affair by the Most Rev. Donald J. Hurlihy, Bishop of Ferns, when they return to Eire.

Other clergymen expressed surprise yesterday that the priests had gone to a camp for their two weeks' holiday.

At Butlin's, a spokesman said that the men had not said they were priests when they booked two chalets at £18 each a week. They wore civilian clothes around the camp, although they did tell some staff that they were priests.

A spokesman for the Catholic Information Bureau in London, who stressed that he was not anticipating any action that might be taken against the priests, said that being sent to a monastery for a period of retreat—possibly for a month—generally meant a chance "to think things over and change your way of life."

The spokesman said that laicisation was a "very extreme" form of discipline.

AUDIENCE WITH POPE FOR Mrs WHITEHOUSE

Mrs Mary Whitehouse, secretary of the National Viewers' and Listeners' Association, is to have an audience with the Pope today to discuss "the whole question of moral pollution." She will be accompanied by representatives from five other European countries.

She took copies of the Oz "Schoolkids" issue and the "Little Red Schoolbook" with her when she flew to Rome yesterday. She did not know whether she would show these to the Pope. They would probably be used in later discussions with a cardinal, she said.

After the Vatican meeting Mrs Whitehouse will have talks with the European representatives on the possibility of setting up an international association.

NEWSPAPERS TO PAY MINISTER DAMAGES

The South African Supreme Court ordered South African Associated Newspapers to pay 2,500 rand (£1,470) damages yesterday to the Minister of Economic Affairs, Mr Louwrens Muller, for a defamatory report in its weekly publications, the Financial Mail and Sunday Times.

At a two-day court hearing earlier this month, Mr Muller claimed 40,000 rand (£23,500) damages. The reports alleged that the Minister used an indecent three-letter Afrikaans word when asked to comment on the correctness of a newspaper report.

Yesterday's award was divided into 1,750 rand against the Sunday Times and 750 rand against the Financial Mail.—Reuter.

Irishman back after two deportations

DAILY TELEGRAPH REPORTER

AN IRISHMAN, twice deported from this country, was jailed for nine months at Marylebone Magistrates' Court yesterday, and a further order for his deportation was made.

MICHAEL DORAN, 34, was told by Mr DAVID WACHER, the magistrate: "I think it is high time it was made more difficult for people to come into this country from Eire.

"You have already been deported twice and it seems to me to make a mockery of deportation and to be against the public interest."

Doran, unemployed and homeless, had pleaded guilty to dishonestly handling property while knowing it to have been stolen; taking a car without consent; driving it while uninsured and without a licence, and stealing from it a radio, brief cases, tools and other items, worth together over £770.

He also pleaded guilty to being in this country while the subject of a deportation order made in 1969.

Mr Wacher pointed out that this was the second case to come before him in ten days in which a man who had been deported had returned and committed an offence.

No curbs

The Home Office said last night that there were no physical controls between Britain and the Republic of Ireland to prevent a deportee returning.

If an Irishman who had been deported returned to Britain he was committing an offence. He could be sentenced to six months' imprisonment for this and a further deportation order made.

POODLE HELD FOR £132 RANSOM

By Our Rome Correspondent

Rome police said yesterday that they had charged three women, aged 66, 32 and 27, with extortion after they had kidnapped prize poodle named Charlie and held him to £132 ransom.

The dog disappeared while walking along a beach and the owner advertised for its return. The women were arrested in a doorway sharing out money after the ransom demanded in phone calls had been paid over.

3 ACCUSED OF BLACKPOOL JEWEL RAID

Three London men, each handcuffed between two detectives, made a two-minute appearance at Blackpool Magistrates' Court yesterday charged with robbery at a jeweller's shop in the town. They were remanded in custody until Friday.

They were Dennis George Bond, 43, of Aristotle Road, Clapham, John Patrick Spry, 37, of Doverfield Road, Streatham Hill, and Thomas Farrell Flannigan, 43, of Graham Road, Hackney.

They were taken from Blackpool police headquarters in a convoy of three cars with two motor-cycle escorts. They sat in court with blankets over their heads.

STRANDED CREWMEN DRINK RAIN

Daily Telegraph Reporter

MEMBERS of the crew of the British salvage boat Salvager, 620 tons, stranded on a reef off Guinea, West Africa, for the last six weeks said yesterday that they had lived on rainwater and fish speared from the sea when supplies ran out.

But the second engineer, Mr Don Dean, 48, said reports that they had been dragged from the ship at gunpoint by Communist militiamen were totally untrue.

"I can only think there must have been a misunderstanding because the natives spoke only French and hardly anyone on board the boat had more than a smattering of it.

"The country is virtually in a state of war, with many people carrying guns in the street as a matter of course," he said at home in Windmill Grove, Portchester, near Portsmouth.

He flew home on doctor's orders with the boat's part owner, Mr Terry Connelly, who is collecting equipment.

Valuable cargo

The Salvager left Southampton with 17 crew two months ago to investigate reports of a sunken German U-boat with a valuable cargo of mercury off the Malaysian coast.

"We were promised a substantial bonus," said Mr Dean.

After arriving at Freetown, capital of the former British colony of Sierra Leone, the boat's crew agreed to help in a second project, getting supplies of diesel oil to a lonely coastal bauxite mine 250 miles away in Guinea.

But near the end of the trip, with a barge in tow, Salvager grounded on a sunken reef because the charts on board were inaccurate.

Repeated attempts to get clear failed as anchors were lost overboard and the boat settled on to the rocks.

"I left with Mr Connelly under doctor's orders because I was suffering from the heat of working in the tropics in the boiler-room. He was trying to get supplies and equipment to get us off the reef."

Still stranded in Guinea are the company chairman, Mr S. Kingsley, of Eastoke Avenue, Hayling Island, Hants, who flew out to Freetown before the boat went aground, and 17 of the crew including Mr Dean's 25-year-old son, Richard.

Charter party sleep on benches after flight is cancelled

DAILY TELEGRAPH REPORTER

A PARTY of 40 Mauritians spent a night on benches at Gatwick Airport after their chartered flight home had been cancelled.

The angry passengers, returning to Mauritius after a month's holiday in Britain, were told by airport officials on Monday that their flight was off.

Mr Irenee Veerasamy, who was hoping to fly home with his wife and two daughters, said yesterday: "I don't know what we are going to do.

"We have no money at all. All we have with us are our tickets and baggage."

The flight had been booked in the name of the Phoenix Club, London, an air-travel organisation. Mr Moosa Beekan, secretary, said yesterday: "The party was to have gone on Monday night on a Southern Cross Airlines flight but Southern Cross cancelled it. I don't know why."

The flight had been arranged by Airmarkcharter brokers, who said yesterday: "Southern Cross let us down. They have not fulfilled their contract.

"We have laid on another flight with Pommair Airlines for Thursday and this will be confirmed as soon as we have contacted Mr Beekan."

"In wrong place"

A spokesman for Southern Cross said at their office at Crawley that they had cancelled the flight on Friday after they had discovered that their plane would be "in the wrong place." "The plane was in Kuala Lumpur and it would have meant bringing it back to Gatwick empty."

"Commercially it wasn't on. They can say we have let them down if they choose.

AI HOPE FOR CHILDLESS COUPLES

By JOHN KEMP
Social Services Correspondent

AN acute shortage of children for adoption has led increasing numbers of childless couples to seek artificial insemination as their only hope of becoming parents, it was disclosed yesterday.

The British Medical Association has decided to establish a committee to inquire into the technique following a growing number of inquiries from family doctors to the organisation's Board of Science.

Only a few doctors, all in private practice, are specialists at present in the technique which involves the artificial fertilisation of the wife with "donated" semen.

Artificial insemination is not available under the National Health Service, and its extension to general hospital and G P use, including the establishment of "semen banks" is certain to form part of the association's investigation.

Abortion effects

One doctor, who has advised in the birth of up to 3,000 babies by this method, said yesterday that the combined effect of the contraceptive pill and the Abortion Act had drastically reduced the number of children available for adoption.

"The result is that many couples who would have been content with an adopted child now come to me asking for a baby by artificial insemination.

The cost of the technique varies from about £150 to £200, and some experts are concerned that the present "crisis" situation might prove to be a charter for medical charlatans.

Dr Margaret Jackson, who has a private practice in Devon and also works at the Family Planning Clinic in Exeter, said she had had patients from as far away as Aberdeen. The shortage of specialists in the

Prices at highest for the year as equity rally picks up speed

CALM conditions in international money markets helped sentiment in the London Stock Exchange yesterday and, with investment buyers further encouraged by the overnight rally on Wall Street, active and firm conditions prevailed in the equity sections.

Numerous bright features developed in the industrial groups as operators found the market short of stock and, although the leaders were off the top in places at the close, the Financial Times Ordinary share index easily established a new 1971 "high" with a rise of 5·7 to 417·8.

Business in British Government securities remained fairly quiet, but further action by the Government broker in raising the price of the long "tap" Treasury 8¾ p.c. 1997 "A" by ⅛ to £96⅛ was a sustaining influence. "Shorts" were firm under the lead of Treasury 6¾ p.c., 1974, 7/32 higher at £101 23/32, while "mediums" showed gains ranging up to ¼. The "longs" and undated stocks usually remained at previous closing levels, with War Loan 3½ p.c. unaltered at £39½.

The 10p Ordinaries of Unitech received a good welcome in first-time dealings, opening at 80p and steadily improving to 88p. Among the special situation stocks, Fordath jumped 35p to 185p in late dealings on news of the Hepworth Ceramic counter-offer to the one from Foseco Minsep. Business started in Tozer Kemsley 8 p.c. convertible loan issued in connection with the offer for Price and Pierce, and the stock advanced from an opening quote of £125 to £128½.

Banking and other financial issues were in good heart. Midland moved up 4 points to 546p, while stock shortage accentuated gains in Schroders, 25 higher at 650p, and Jessel Securities, 13 up to 268p. Other bright spots were Slater, Walker Securities, at 287p. United Dominions Trust, at 218p, and Hambros, at 330p.

The latest turn of events in the Truman Hanbury bid situation seemed to convince the market that Grand Metropolitan Hotels would turn out winner. Truman hardened 1 to 460p. Watney Mann 5½ to 128p, after 150p, and I D V 4 to 75p, but Grand Met ended 9 down at 178p. Other brewery shares became more active and notable gains occurred in Scottish and Newcastle at 450p, Allied, at 150p, Courage, at 131p, and S. Webster, at 335p. Distillers advanced 7 to 157½p on a satisfactory reading of the full report.

Selective buyers were again operating in the building share market. Despite the trading loss and the passing of the dividend, Turriff Construction rose 4 to 56p, presumably on relief that the company is pulling out of the troublesome Barbican project. Richard Costain rose further to 190p and H A T Group (yesterday's Tailpiece recommendation) to 76p: the latter company's cheerful report came well after the official close of the market.

Although closing below the best price of 335p, Imperial Chemical Industries were still at a new 1971 peak of 331p, a net rise of 3. Other leaders enjoyed double-figure gains, in Guest Keen, 15 up at 400p, Tube Investments, 12 higher at 464p, and Great Universal Stores "A," 12 better at 416p. Bowater Paper, at 168p, and Reed International, at 232p, both gained 7 points.

Demand ahead of next month's interim figures brought strength in Vickers, which ended 7 higher at 78p, after 79p. A flurry of speculative activity saw B S A 5 up at 26p, after 29p, the move being accompanied by revived suggestions of possible bid developments. Other shares in the limelight included Metal Box, at 402p, and Ductile Steels, at 180p.

Satisfactory company news stimulated gains in Aaronson Brothers, at 312p, Courtney Pope, at 75p, and Kingsley and Keith, at 60p, but the closure of speculative positions after the property letting statement left Robert Kitchen Taylor 8½ down at 67½p, after 65p. J. Saville Gordon dropped to 55p, on the boardroom row before rallying to 41p, a net loss of 8: the company's results are due on Friday.

Hay's Wharf met renewed demand and closed 15 points higher at 515p, while other prime movers were Carlton Industries, 12 up at 114p, Leeds Assets, 11 better at 138p, and Lunt Comley and Pitt, 9 to the good at 114p.

Still recovering from the effects of widespread concern about the company's United States export position, B S R closed 15 points higher at 352p. B I C C rose 6 more to 186p, and Plessey 4 to 133p, after 136p, while Thorn Electrical "A" closed 7 up at 417p, after 420p, on continued enthusiasm about the company's trading prospects in the light of strong demand for colour television receivers.

A strong upsurge in the insurance group was continued after the official close of the market and net gains of between 10 and 15 points were secured by Commercial Union, at 460p, Equity and Law, at 272p, Legal and General, at 548p, and Royal, at 415p. Sun Alliance rose 9 to 472p, while General Accident (interim figures due shortly), improved further to 196p.

Despite news of a deterioration in the company's labour situation, Joseph Lucas ended 8 higher at 275p, after 275p. Hawker Siddeley were firm at 222p, after 224p, partly on news of the Chinese order for Trident aircraft.

Still reflecting suggestions of a possible takeover offer from Shipping and Industrial Holdings, Court Line jumped to 156p, but profit-taking saw the shares fall back to the overnight level of 147p. Shipping and Industrial held a rise of 10 to 260p, while General Steam Navigation were also 10 higher, at 610p.

Wall Street influences brought a good recovery in leading oil shares. B P were particularly prominent and closed 14 higher at 605p, after 603p, while net gains ranging from 3 to 7 points were seen in Burmah, at 430p, "Shell," at 593p, and Ultramar, at 289p.

Kaffirs remained in the doldrums and small offerings left losses in F.S. Geduld, at 560p, President Brand, at 465p, St

Several strong features developed in the food share section. Sudden demand found the market short of Clover Dairies and the shares jumped 13 points to 151p. In a similar situation, British Sugar advanced 11 to 325p, while solid investment interest saw J. Lyons "A" advance by 8 points to 524p.

Tailpiece

READERS have been asking whether it would be wise to take a handsome profit on the shares of Cooper Industries, recommended here at 18p on May 20 and now standing at 28p. In the recent annual report, the chairman, Mr C. Cooper, told shareholders that "prospects have never been better than they are today." With the chairman expecting record results for the current financial year, the shares, now selling on a price/earnings ratio of 11·4, look a firm "hold."

Slater to bid for Argyle Secs

THERE were sharp fluctuations in the shares of Argyle Securities, a property investment and development company, before the market got the news that Slater Walker and its associates have bought a 41·6 p.c. stake from the Scottish Homes Investment Company at 60p a share and will be bidding for the rest.

The shares started the day at 66p, raced away to 102p, came back to 65p and finally ended at 78p. These violent swings reflected market opinion that Argyle, whose net assets are worth 65p a share, could be the vehicle for a "shell" operation.

Good news from 'Classic'

IT LOOKS as if shareholders in W. N. Sharpe, the "Classic" greeting card publisher, are going to have their dividend increased for the 15th successive year with a one point higher interim of 6 p.c. on Oct. 27.

The board says nothing about the final, but first-half pre-tax profits are up from £399,164 to £404,161 and they add: "The outlook for the whole year is quite promising, subject to the usual reservation that much depends on important Christmas seasonal trade."

More from Rentokil

AS Rentokil Group's profits increase so too does its return to shareholders. They had a 2½ point rise last year and another is on the way. The interim dividend is going up ½ point to 9 p.c. on Nov. 17 and the board also intends lifting the 11½ p.c. final.

Over the first half of this year pre-tax profits have risen by 40 p.c. from £1,075,000 to £1,505,000 and the board expects the second half's to be "comfortably up too."

Austin-Hall upsurge

THE first-half figures from Austin-Hall Group, the sectional building maker in which First National Finance has a useful stake, show continued progress. The six months ended June 30 have produced pre-tax profits of £565,000—£10,000 more than for the previous nine-month trading period, and equivalent to an annual rate of increase of 54 p.c.

Chairman Lord Strathcarron comments that prospects continue "to be encouraging and the board anticipates a further improvement in the second half." Meanwhile, it has declared a 7½ p.c. interim and confirmed its forecast of a 20 p.c. total. For the previous nine months it paid equal to 10 p.c.

Court Bros. 1-for-4 scrip

BACKED by a 37 p.c. rise in its 1970-71 pre-tax profits Court Bros. (Furnishers) is stepping up its dividend, as forecast, and also plans in effect to pay more again this time.

The 12½ p.c. final means that the total is up from equal to 18 2/11 p.c. to 20 p.c. But again there's a scrip issue, this time of one non-voting "A" Ordinary for every four Ordinary or "A" Ordinary and a comment from the board that it intends maintaining the same rate of dividend on the increased capital.

Council loans cheaper

THE LATEST batch of yearling bonds shows that the rates local authorities are having to pay for their money are continuing to fall, for they are being issued at £99 15/16 p.c. and are carrying a 6¼ p.c. coupon.

Among the authorities raising money in this way are the County Borough of Newport (Mon.) and the City of Stoke on Trent with £1 million each; Chesterfield Corporation, £750,000; Rochford Rural District Council, £600,000; the City and County Borough of Belfast, Wigtown County Council, the Borough of Aldershot, and Mountain Ash Urban District Council, £500,000 each; and Antrim Rural District Council, £250,000. The issues for Rochford RDC and Wigtown CC replace maturing issues.

Carrington Viyella happy

THERE'S encouraging news for the market's textile section in the half-time statement from Carrington Viyella. The board of this group, which was formed last October by the merging of Viyella International and Carrington and Dewhurst says that trading conditions for the first six months of this year showed a steady recovery from the difficult conditions of the opening months of 1970. Over half the group has made a pre-tax profit of £2,437,000 and is paying a 2 p.c. interim. There are no comparative figures.

Questor—P16

Brown-Albany steps up

THERE is a two-point increase in interim dividend on the way for shareholders in Brown Brothers and Albany when it goes up to 6 p.c. on Sept. 22. The board says the move not only reflects the improved first-half results, showing pre-tax profits up from £744,000 to £851,000, but is also to bring the half-timer more in balance with the final.

Questor—P16

Black & Edgington holds

ALTHOUGH reporting lower pre-tax profits for the 36 weeks to June 5, Black and Edgington is paying a same-again 5 p.c. interim dividend on Sept. 30 and forecasting a rise of not less than a point in its final.

Trading profit of this tent and leisure equipment maker rose from £85,000 to £105,000, but this time it has had to bear a £51,000 (nil) charge for convertible loan stock interest. This loan stock was part of the price for Milletts Stores (1929).

Milletts was trading at considerable loss when it was acquired last August and for the first four months of the current year these losses continued, although on a decreasing scale as the benefits of reorganisation were felt.

For the full year Black and Edington expects its trading profits to show a substantial improvement over last time's £310,0000 and is looking for a further considerable improvement in 1972.

IMF shows its hand in planning currency rates

By ALAN OSBORN in Washington

A REPORT that the International Monetary Fund had suggested specific new parities for the world's leading currencies—including a revaluation of seven p.c. in the pound against the United States dollar — threw monetary officials in Washington and elsewhere into confusion yesterday.

M. Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, the fund managing director, conceded that "a variety of informal calculation" had been made, but said that none had been released or agreed to by the fund and none was therefore authentic. However, the substance of the report at least was considered genuine by other reliable sources.

According to the reports the IMF had determined a number of "proper" exchange rates based on its "objective examination" of its members' foreign trade situation and balance of payments position. These included a 15 p.c. appreciation in the Japanese yen, a 14 p.c. rise in the German mark and a seven p.c. increase in the value of the franc, in addition to the recommendation concerning the pound.

The dollar should be devalued by 5 p.c. in terms of gold, according to the reports.

New parity

The specifics of this package could be verified by no reliable sources in Washington yesterday. It was noted though that earlier M. Schweitzer had urged the United States to re-peg the value of the dollar to allow for a higher price for gold. Fund officials have privately indicated that a new gold-dollar parity of about $37 per ounce (or a shade over 5 p.c. more than at present) would be "acceptable."

At the same time M. Schweitzer said that it was his business to advise member countries on parities—a polite way of serving notice that the fund would, in fact, expect to play a major role in shaping whatever system of fixed rates—if there is to be one—emerges from the present float.

It would, in fact, be odd if the IMF had not, by this time, produced at least a working paper on the kind of parities it thought appropriate for specific countries though this would be essentially a staff document with no direct policy making weight.

United States Treasury officials yesterday said that it would be possible to produce almost any permutation of parities using as base material the trade and external payments situation of member countries. Depending on how much importance was attached to trade competitiveness, interest rates, capital flows, defence outlays, foreign aid and so on, the officials argued, you could show the dollar as over-valued by as much as a third or even perhaps under-valued.

Nevertheless there was strong agreement among monetary officials in Washington yesterday that the reported IMF recommendations made very good reading for the Americans and this did raise the question of a United States "leak."

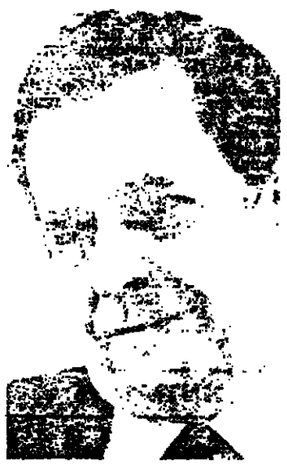
Patience tested

American monetary officials have made little secret of their disappointment with the performance of leading European currencies vis-a-vis the dollar in early trading on the newly-opened foreign exchange markets this week so far and their patience could be dwindling rapidly.

The United States, of course, wants a substantial effective devaluation of the dollar so as to restore price competitiveness to American goods and make Mr Nixon's bold dollar initiatives all worthwhile.

Ideally the Americans would like a lengthy "float" which they are convinced would yield them the best alignment of currency rates possible. But efforts by Britain and other trading partners of the United States to secure a prompt international meeting on currencies may be too much for them to resist.

Sr Ossola, chairman of the deputies of the Group of Ten rich industrial countries was in Ottowa for a conference with the Group of Ten chairman, Canadian Finance Minister Benson, yesterday, and the betting in Washington was that the deputies would meet on the currency situation in the first week of September—prior to a meeting of the ministers themselves around the 15th of the month.



M. Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, managing director of the IMF, "informal calculations" on possible parity changes not ready for release yet.

S. Africa calls for rise in dollar price of gold

By RAY KENNEDY in Johannesburg

ARGUMENTS for an increase in the dollar price of gold as part of a package deal of adjustments needed to solve the world currency crisis were advanced yesterday by Dr Theunis de Jongh, governor of the South African Reserve Bank.

They follow the announcement by Finance Minister Dr Nico Diederichs on Monday that the South African rand would maintain its value against gold and the dollar, which meant, in effect, a minor devaluation — about 2 p.c. against sterling and the other currencies now floating.

In his annual review delivered in Pretoria yesterday Dr de Jongh maintained that given the understandable resistance to large revaluations it seemed unlikely that the necessary far-reaching exchange rate realignment would be attained if action took the form only of revaluations of other currencies against the dollar.

He called for several countries to devalue their currencies in order to increase the price of gold.

For South Africa's man in the street the decision to maintain parity with the dollar inevitably means another twist in cost of living spiral, which, according to Dr de Jongh, has jumped 6·1 p.c. in the 12 months ended June 30.

Seventy-five percent of South Africas imports are from Europe and Asia, but the general manager of South African foreign trade organisation, Mr William Holles, said yesterday that parity adjustment with sterling was expected to be minimal and that trade with Britain would hardly be affected.

Where large revaluation of currencies was affected, as with the Japanese yen, imports would cost more.

Freight rates are not being altered and air fares remain the same. But in mining circles fears are being expressed that much needed Japanese coal and iron ore contracts might be endangered.

In an editorial the Star, largest selling South African English language newspaper, said: "Now is the time for the Government to plan an expansionist economy, one to stimulate productivity and increase employment."

But in Pretoria later Dr de Jongh said credit restrictions would remain.

Hepworth wrests Fordath from Foseco's grasp

LESS THAN three weeks since it accepted a £2·7 million offer from Foseco Minsep, Fordath is now irrevocably accepting a new bid worth around £3·1 million from Hepworth Ceramic Holdings.

Hepworth, a big producer of clay pipes, is bidding 14 of its shares for every five Fordath, worth 190p a share, compared with the Foseco share deal valuing Fordath at 160p. In view of the higher offer Foseco has decided not to go ahead with its bid.

Directors and other shareholders of Fordath, owning more than 50 p.c. of the shares, have committed themselves to the new offer and recommend other shareholders to accept the new bid.

The new offer left Fordath shares 35p up at 185p. Foseco rose 3p to 140p in front of the statement that it will not now be bidding.

An important side of the Fordath business is the manufacture of resins used for bonding sands to form the moulds and cores supplied to foundries. Hepworth is the largest supplier of sand used in British foundries and resin-coated sands is an important part of group sales.

Raglan property deal angers ginger group

OPPOSITION is building up to the Raglan Property deal announced over the weekend when Raglan chairman Mr James Rowland-Jones revealed that the company had sold two-thirds of its London properties for around £2·25 million.

A ginger group led by directors of Martlet Developments (Sussex), taken over by Raglan earlier this year, says it is dismayed by the deal whereby the bulk of Raglan's London properties had been sold off to a company (Frugonia Property) with an issued capital of £100.

In the deal Raglan sold 576 flats, 151 garages and two shops in the Chiswick and Wembley area, in the books at £1,778,000, for £2,275,000. £575,000 was payable to Raglan immediately and the balance over five years.

The Martlet group, which is thought to control around 12 p.c. of the Raglan shares, says in a circular to shareholders: "In our opinion this is a bad deal made worse by the terms of the sale." It adds: "Any property company claiming expertise should make better use of its assets."

The Martlet directors, headed by Mr J. I. Goldings and Mr A. J. Hanson, have arranged with Alliance Property Holdings to take over the running of Raglan if the resolutions at the extraordinary meeting on Friday week go in their favour.

Alliance together with Martlet control around 50 p.c. of Raglan shares. They are asking that three directors, including the chairman Mr Rowland-Jones, be removed from the board.

Keyser Ullmann tests potential at P.O. counter

KEYSER ULLMANN'S scheme to use the services of 21,000 sub-postmasters across the country to market its savings plans is a few steps nearer fruition.

Through Capital Life, a wholly-owned subsidiary bought from Hambros last year, Keyser has the exclusive right to sell life assurance plans through any member of the Sub-postmasters Federation.

However the potential in post offices as outlets for savings schemes has proved to be a hard nut to crack — Hambros, the previous owners of Capital Life made little headway and sold out to Keyser.

At present Keyser is testing the market cautiously, and is unwilling to make the mistake of its predecessor by spending a great deal on a promotion without sufficient study of the complexities of the market.

As it now stands visitors to certain post offices are able to buy the life assurance plan linked to the Nationwide Building Society. Keyser appears to be happy with the experiment thus far. If the reaction continues to be favourable a natural follow-up would be to market the newly formed unit trusts, Key Capital and Income, in a similar way as life assurance vehicles.

"Not every post office is ideal for selling life assurance, but those that we have tried have brought positive results," says Mr Geoffrey Dees, managing director of Key Funds.

Perhaps the most important switch in policy by the present owners of Capital Life has been to make the commission rates a great deal more attractive.

"We now pay commission in a lump instead of spread over the duration of the policy. This means that on the sale of a policy the postmaster gets an immediate payment of say £10 for his trouble," says Mr Dees.

"One or two are already making more from selling policies than from being postmasters."

Grand Met on brink of Truman victory

GRAND Metropolitan Hotels was approaching match point yesterday in the contest for Truman Hanbury Buxton with a total of 43 p.c. A spokesman for Watney Mann which has a little over 45 p.c. conceded: "It's obviously pretty difficult for us to get 50 p.c. now."

At the end of the day it looks as though the game has been won on Warburg's and Grand Met's connections which must be hard for Watney and its advisers Guinness Mahon.

At the crucial stages of the fight for shares one or two institutions sold out through the market to the Grand Met camp which persuaded others to follow in order to avoid the possibility of a stalemate. At least one of these had previously favoured Watney.

Today should bring some further acceptances for the Watney offer which closes at 3 p.m. If these amount to more than 1 p.c. there could still be a dead heat on the precedent that up to 5 p.c. of a company's shares are never flushed out in a takeover situation. But Watney felt that both sides were too intelligent to allow such a situation to last for long.

To help avoid a dead-heat dealers yesterday traded Truman shares only for cash as from midday. This is a new development in the takeover game, at any rate in recent times.

At the close Truman was 1p better at 460p—in marked contrast to Grand Met which lost 9p to 178p. Watney rose 5½p to 128p, which gives a pretty good indication of the value put on the victor's spoils by the market.

The loser on the other hand can look forward to a handsome consolation prize in terms of his profit on shares bought at lower levels.

Clarksons group collects 80 pc of £1m bad debts

CLARKSONS Holidays has already collected some 80 p.c. of the over £1 million debts outstanding as a result of computerisation, which led to the company's accounts being qualified. Sir Jocelyn Hambro, chairman of Shipping Industrial Holdings, Clarksons' parent company, told shareholders this yesterday, and added that "there is no reason to suppose the balance will not be collected in the ordinary course."

The company should not suffer any loss on this account, he said, and there has been a strengthening of administration. SIH as a group has benefited from its wider range of operations and should meet the forecast of the annual report.

The longer term effects on world trade of the present dollar crisis are "still imponderable" but the SIH shipping side is unlikely to be damaged in the short term as "commitments and earnings are in identical currencies."

Oil refiners plan 47pc expansion

By JOHN PETTY

THE OIL industry, having spent £700 million since 1947 in housing British oil refinery capacity from 2½ million metric tons to 112½ million tons a year, is planning further expansion involving another 55 million tons a year. This is stated today by the Institute of Petroleum in a survey of refining investment in Britain.

"Despite this massive post-war expenditure, the United Kingdom is only fourth in the list of Western European refining nations," states the institute. "She is currently headed by Italy (157,245,000 tonnes), West Germany (117,645,000 tonnes) and France (117,575,000 tonnes)."

As far as Britain is concerned, another 25 million tons capacity should be available by the end of 1975 if expansion plans at existing refineries materialise. Another 30 million tons is envisaged, at least theoretically, in "new grass-roots projects announced at mid-1971."

"Certainly one of these projects is now in course of construction," states the institute. This is a four million tons a year installation at Milford Haven. "While some of the remaining projects may be a trifle speculative, dependent upon official planning approval or adequate financial support, there is no doubt that the United Kingdom will remain one of the chief refining countries of the eastern hemisphere for as far ahead as it is reasonable to look," the institute comments.

The Milford project is for Amoco, where it will join refineries of Esso and Gulf. The Esso refinery is having its capacity increased from 6·5 million tons to 15 million tons. Esso's main plant, at Fawley, is increasing from 16½ million tons in 1970 to 19 million in 1975.

Other new projects are for two at Canvey Island, on the Essex bank of the Thames. They would be for ENI-Murco and Occidental. Across the river at Chloe, Kent, would be a Burmah-Total refinery.

The institute comments that the Fawley complex alone represents total capital investment of more than £150 million and that the Esso expansion at Milford Haven will cost more than £20 million.

British Petroleum's Isle of Grain refinery in Kent cost about £100 million, while a £75 million development programme is being completed for the company at Grangemouth, in Scotland.

Texaco has room to expand at Pembroke, where a £25 million refinery exists. Coryton, on the Thames, is the biggest Mobil refinery in Europe following its expansion, states the institute.

The survey lists 25 refineries in existence and another five wanted or under construction. Shell leads with five, while BP has four, Berry Wiggins two small, Esso two big and Burmah two modest ones. The others are held by Lindsay Oil (Total-Petrofina), Texaco, Phillips-Imperial, Mobil, Conoco, Gulf, Philmac (Phillips-Tarmac) and William Briggs.

Bonn's dollar flush to win a showdown

BY THE CITY EDITOR

THE IMMEDIATE future of the currency crisis depends on today's council meeting of the West German Bundesbank, which still holds around $10,000 million in its reserves, including at least $5,000 million which are surplus to requirements on any objective criteria.

These dollars are a powerful weapon in German hands. If the Bundesbank decides to unload those dollars, they would drive up the mark and knockk the dollar dealing rate right down. The dollar would drop in sympathy on all the major European exchanges and the Americans would have achieved the relative revaluation of European currencies which they seek, leaving Japan in an isolated position holding out against American pressure.

Rightly or wrongly the Bundesbank is unlikely to use that power immediately. Yesterday the bank repeated its policy, saying in effect that "no reasonable offer" for dollars would be refused. But in practice the bank sold no significant number. Selling dollars in quantity would put the mark already floating 8 p.c. above the April parity up to a 12 p.c. or more premium over the old dollar rate. The floating rate has already put German exporters at a disadvantage in the American market and President Nixon's 10 p.c. import surcharge makes matters even worse.

The Bundesbank is unlikely to take any action which will put German exporters in an even worse plight and encourage them to demand export rebates. More to the point, the German Government is unlikely to give away the power to move currency market rates which is a major bargaining card in German hands when the Group of Ten Ministers finally get round the table to talk in mid-September. Professor Schiller made it clear yesterday that Germany will bargain hard when the time comes. He said the idea of a 13 p.c. to 14 p.c. revaluation on the April parity, attributed to M. Schweitzer is "totally unrealistic," although it only means moving the mark as much again as it has moved since April.

In the meantime Germany is also unlikely to give away too much to its domestic lobby. Any decision to cut interest rates and cut the cost of export finance would reduce German bargaining power at the Group of Ten.

Accountants soldier on

UNDETERRED by the storms still raging around its previous suggestions, the Institute of Chartered Accountants has produced another of its exposure drafts on proposed accounting standards. The latest is the fifth in the line and deals with extraordinary items and prior year adjustments—an area much in need of a tidying-up operation.

The institute's own survey of 50 published accounts showed 1,300 items covered by the latest standard and of these 450 were in the profit and loss account while 850 vanished into the reserves.

The theory behind keeping these odds and ends out of the profit and loss account is that being exceptional or previous year items, they could distort the profit for the year and so mislead about the true nature of the company's trading. Unfortunately it also allows companies to make their figures look more favourable by putting profits in the profit and loss but quietly hiding losses in the reserves.

The new standard says all the information is to be in the profit and loss, though separately stated after the ordinary results have been calculated. It specifically mentions that the separate items must be unusual in being outside the normal course of business, like selling off a factory, alteration in currency values and so on. An unusually high debt will not qualify. Prior year items are carefully defined as the sort of thing that might lead to qualified accounts through auditing uncertainty, like court cases, with the amounts being "ascertained by persons other than management."

The tendency like the rest of the standards produced is towards greater explicitness. When items go into reserves, says Ian Hay Davison, of Arthur Andersen, "the opportunities for distortion are legion and the new arrangements involve nothing more than disclosure."

Sir Ronald Leach, chairman of the standards committee, said last night that it was "one of the standards we need most," though he is expecting a "good deal of chatter" on it. Banks and insurance companies are the main concerns which would have to change, though accountants have felt that they might have anticipated the new standard some time ago.

As Sir Ronald says, some people might be unhappy because "every standard does restrict freedom—which is what we are trying to do."

Two other controversial standards are still waiting decision. The much attacked paper on mergers and take-overs will be sorted out at a meeting in the autumn when the flood of letters on it have been sifted. And the even touchier discussion on inflation accounting will be taken one step further when the discussion paper is published in the ICA's magazine.

This is to give industry a chance to look at the options and air its complaints, the professionals have already boobed on it. Then comes the delicate proposition of negotiating with the Government to accept the much lower profit levels for taxation.

One way or another, inflation accounting, though urged for over 20 years, has still a long way to go before acceptance.

Treasury 'tap' running dry

SUPPLIES of the long "tap," Treasury 8¾ p.c. 1997 "A" are down to the last £100 million and the Government broker was able to put up his selling price yesterday. On past evidence this should be the signal for a quick rush to take up the rest of the issue and clear the decks for yet another Government stock. The previous long tap went out on a 9½ p.c. yield and the current stock is still selling well yielding 9¼ p.c., more or less the yield at the time of issue.

Market opinion yesterday inclined to the view that the Government broker could issue a new long tap yielding around 9 p.c. and still sell it. The authorities would probably be happy to see interest rates down and this is best done when a new tap is introduced rather than during the life of an existing one. Bank Rate could be cut around the same time although Bank Rate and gilt-edged yields are not directly interdependent.

It is nine years since the last gilt maturing after the turn of the century was issued, and a really long-dated stock might be appropriate now, recognising the likelihood that inflation will be a permanent part of economic life in the next 30 years. Otherwise the choice of maturity date is likely to lie in the nineteen-nineties, where the bulk of the last few stocks have been placed. The only unlikely dates are 1994 and 1997, both of which are "full" for practical purposes. But all other years in the decade have less than their full quota of maturities, which is now running around £150 million to £200 million a year and could be far bigger still when the last decade of the century opens.

Record Turnover and Exports up 33%

Sir George Dowty, Chairman

The seventeenth Annual General Meeting of Dowty Group Limited will be held at 11 a.m. on September 16th at Arle Court Cheltenham.

The following is an extract from the Chairman's statement:

The profit forecast made in my interim statement in February has been met. With full order books our prospects are good for sustained growth over the next few years. There has been an escalation of one third in exports which now account for 25% of our turnover. Exports to E.E.C. countries have increased by 85%.

The great merit of our Group lies in its wide diversification. For the first time in our history, aviation equipment sales account for less than half of our total turnover.

Financial

Turnover reached a new level of £52·5 million and profits before interest and tax at £5,465,000 were the highest ever recorded. After deducting interest charges of £450,000 profits before tax at £5,035,000 reached the forecast. At the time of the failure of Rolls-Royce last February, debts due from that company amounted to £1·5 million, over 30% of which is in respect of equipment for Government contracts. Your directors have considered it prudent to create a provision of 90% subject to tax relief.

Capital expenditure was adequately financed by depreciation cash flow but the expansion of our turnover and the inflationary effects of steeply rising costs created further demands for working capital. Bank borrowing increased by over £9½ million. A resolution will be proposed at the A.G.M. increasing the authorised capital from £18,500,000 to £21,500,000. The Board is considering some form of equity financing possibly by means of a rights issue of convertible loan stock.

Dividends

No change in the final dividend is proposed which is recommended at 5·25% making a total of 10·5% for the year.

Aviation

Orders for aviation equipment are larger than at any other time.

We recognize that advance developments are essential investments. Our variable pitch propulsion fan reduces engine noise levels by one half and permits greatly reduced take-off and landing runs. A new type of undercarriage shock absorber reduces the size and weight of conventional units by 30%. After some years of development our ram-air-turbines are now being used on many aircraft types.

Dowty Fuel Systems is rapidly expanding with equipment orders for the "Harrier", the "Jaguar" and the M.R.C.A. fighter. Repair and conversion programmes are providing much additional work and the demand for spares is an important part of our total aircraft business.

Mining

There is higher demand for coal and an increase in the use of longwall mining, equipment for which we are well placed to supply. Our roof support business has increased by 30% and exports have trebled, to over 50 countries. Record sales in equipment for conveying many minerals as well as coal, have also been achieved.

Industrial Hydraulics

Our P.3000 gear pump is being manufactured under licence and exports have expanded. The "Vardis" variable delivery pump has aroused much interest and licences have been negotiated.

Sales of "Dowmatic" hydrostatic transmissions continue to expand. With the introduction of a range of lower cost servo valves, several overseas manufacturing licences have been negotiated. Our equipment for use in hazardous atmospheres is increasingly adopted on oil tankers and in the petro-chemical field.

Rubber and plastics

Growth in our rubber activity approached 10% against a background of national industrial unrest and export orders were up by 55%, notably in America. Our rubber and plastics companies look set for continued expansion.

Approximate cost of interim ordinary dividend (gross)	700

Notes:

1. In view of the differing accounting periods of the Company and Viyella International Limited prior to the merger in October, 1970, comparative figures are not given.

2. PREFERENCE DIVIDENDS

Class of Share	Date Declared	Rate of Dividend	Cost £'000	Paid or Payable
6%	1st March 1971	3%	168	31st March 1971
7½%	1st March 1971	3¾%	173	31st March 1971

8%	20th July 1971	3⅞%	178	30th Sept. 1971

3. The rate of dividend on the 6% and the 7½% Cumulative Preference Shares of the Company was increased to 6½% and 8% respectively at an Extraordinary General Meeting held on 7th May, 1971.

The Directors have declared an interim dividend of 2% less tax, on the Ordinary Share Capital of the Company.

Trading conditions for the first six months of the year showed a steady recovery from the difficult conditions during the first half of 1970. The competitive state of the industry will probably play a greater part in maintaining a reasonable degree of price stability than voluntary price restraint. This situation could result in pressure on profit margins unless there is an adequate expansion of sales and production.

The present indications are that the level of trade in the second half of the year is likely to show a reasonable increase. Further progress in rationalisation following the merger should have continuing beneficial effects on productivity and trading results. Provided there are no adverse factors beyond the control of the Company, the Directors are hopeful that the trading results in the second half of the year will continue to show an improving trend.

COMPANIES

Aaronson Bros.

THE LEADING veneer merchant, Aaronson Bros. boosted its pre-tax profit from £339,000 to £467,000 in the six months to March 31, and is lifting the interim from the equivalent of 5·6 p.c. to 8 p.c. on Oct. 11. With turnover running at record levels the board forecasts that results for the full year will again show a very encouraging increase over the previous year. For 1969-70 the group produced a 31 p.c. surge to £778,000.

Courtney Pope

SHOPFITTING contractor Courtney Pope (Holdings) is paying a final dividend of 13¾ p.c., 2½ points more than forecast, to give a total of 20 p.c., against 18·7 p.c. Preliminary figures indicate that pre-tax profits for the year to May 31 will reach £300,000 for the first time in the company's history. This would compare with last year's record figure of £275,330.

W. J. Reynolds

A MUCH redured net loss of £48,096, compared with £186,537, is turned in for 1970 by W. J. Reynolds Holdings, motor dealer, and rare earth processor. But not only is there no Ordinary dividend—the last payment was 15 p.c. in 1967—but this time the preference payment is also passed.

William Denby

THE pressures which cut William Denby's pre-tax profits by some 50 p.c. in the first half of the past year have eased in the latter six months. This dyer and proofer has ended the year to June 30 with a pre-tax profit of £185,932 a fall of 39 p.c. from the previous year's £301,017. As forecast, a final dividend of 21 p.c. is to be paid on Oct. 20 to maintain the total at 33 p.c.

News International

TAXABLE profits of News International (formerly News of the World Organisation) exceeded £1,650,000 in the half-year to June 30, compared with £1,550,000 in the same period last year. Mr Rupert Murdoch, chairman, says rising costs continue to be the pattern, and as an offset it was necessary to increase the cover price of the Sun in July. All major publishing activities are trading profitably.

A same-again interim of 18¾ p.c. has already been declared. Total for 1970 was 37½ p.c. from record profits of £5,626,000.

Hindson and Reid

ON THE strength of a further rise in profits to a new record level, printer and stationer Hindson and Andrew Reid is again raising its dividend. On capital increased by a one-for-10 scrip issue the dividend total is being brought up to 30 p.c. with a 20 p.c. final.

The effective comparison, allowing for the scrip issue, is with 22·7 p.c. for 1969-70. Group profit is up from £105,500 to £147,000 on a turnover of £1·58 million (£1·29 million).

Greaves Org.

AFTER being slightly behind at half-time, Greaves Organisation, the Midland house-building, contracting and plant hire group, has emerged from the year to March 31 with pre-tax profits at a record £609,656, against £420,635 previously. The net profit after tax comes out at £350,856, against £222,383. The final dividend goes up to 35 p.c. and the total is five points higher at 55 p.c.

Rawlings Brothers

THE re-shaped Rawlings Brothers is applying for re-quotation. Its share quote was suspended in February at its own request in view of the sale of the major part of its property assets and the proposed acquisition of certain subsidiaries of Hawtin, who have a controlling stake in it. The enlarged Rawlings is forecasting pre-tax profits of not less than £222,000 for the year ending Jan. 31, 1972.

This compares with a pre-tax loss of £197,465, including exceptional losses of £144,981, for the 10 months ended Jan. 31, 1971. After reorganisation, the group balance sheet shows net tangible assets of £1·79 million, equal to 135p a share.

Negretti & Zambra

ALTHOUGH its full 1970-71 figures show a considerable recovery in the second half, Negretti and Zambra is dropping out of the dividend list. The board, which passed the interim, is now doing the same with the final because of the need to strengthen the group's cash resources. Holders got a 4 p.c. total last time.

At the halfway stage pre-tax profits were down from £72,115 to £27,238, but over the full 12 months, in line with the board's half-time hopes, the group has made £136,873, against £177,399. It has also made a better start this time than last.

IN BRIEF

Demodera Tea: Loss for year £1,895 (profit £5,316). Again no dividend.

Dene Shipping (controlled by Shipping & Industrial Holdings): Group profit £1,114,756 (£872,579), after depreciation £682,971 (£565,728). Tax £519,019 (£9,123).

Ellis and Co. (Richmond): Profit £84,708 (£98,124), before tax £56,000 (£45,000). Dividend 21 p.c. (21), pay about Oct. 22.

Flag Investment: Pre-tax profit £55,516 (£63,756). Dividend 6 p.c., as forecast (same), pay Sept. 20. Plans under way to raise loan capital by way of debenture.

Hackney and Hendon Greyhounds: First-half profit £56,200 (£54,500). Interim 7 p.c. (6), pay Sept. 24.

Jos Holdings: Net profit after tax £75,462 (£81,521). Final 4·7 pc (Oct. 20), making 7·2 (same). Net asset value 55p (41p adjusted).

London and St Lawrence Investment: Dividend 4½ p.c. for year (4 p.c.), pay Nov. 3.

Sennah Rubber: Profit £54,034 (£11,087) before tax £5,717 (£5,641). Dividend 4 p.c. (nil), pay Oct. 1.

Tavener Rutledge: Profit for first 24 weeks £55,071 (£51,622 for 26 weeks) on turnover of £704,000 (£587,000). Interim 10 p.c. (8), pay Sept. 27.

William Nash: First-half profit £29,000 (£64,000) on turnover £2·26 million (£1·92 million). Interim 5 p.c. (4). Trading results in second half expected to be similar to first half.

Interim Dividends: Alliance and Dublin Consumers Gas, 5 p.c. (5), pay Oct. 8. National Sunlight Laundries, 3 p.c. (3), pay Sept. 30. American Express, quarterly 35 cents, pay Oct. 1.

NEW ISSUES

D. W. Phillips Int.

NOBLE Grossart has completed arrangements for a placing, largely with Scottish financial institutions, of $1·6 million of equity and loan stock for D. W. Phillips International SA. This is the parent company of a European group which provides personal repair and other services under the name "Mister Minit."

London & Lennox

THE rights issue foreshadowed by London & Lennox Investment Trust in May is to be of 864,000 "B" shares at 88p each on a one-for-five Ordinary basis. Underwriting has been completed by Grieveson Grant & Co.

York Waterworks

SEYMOUR PIERCE and Co. has arranged underwriting for a £500,000 issue by York Waterworks. The issue is in 10 p.c. redeemable preference stock 1976, and the offer will be by tender for which a minimum price of £103 p.c. has been fixed.

BIDS AND DEALS

Crown House Brooks

CROWN HOUSE has sold its air distribution and filtration equipment subsidiary, R C M Equipment, to Brooks Ventilation Units for £180,000. Brooks expects that R C M will achieve a profit of at least £25,000 pre-tax for 1971-72.

Slater, Walker

THE FORMAL offer document from Slater, Walker Securities in connection with its agreed bid for insurance broker Wigham-Richardson and Begintons shows that since the original announcement in May the terms have been altered so as to include warrants to subscribe for Ordinary shares of S W S with a cash alternative. The terms of the offer are for every 70 Wigham - Richardson Ordinary shares 28 S W S Ordinary and 55 warrants to subscribe for Ordinary shares of S W S. Each warrant gives the right to subscribe for one S W S Ordinary at any time at 30p per share. Joseph Sebag and Co. is offering to purchase for cash the warrants at 140p each.

Malaya General

IN THE documents relating to the agreed merger with Yule Catto, Malaya General forecasts pre-tax profits of at least £120,000 for the year to Oct. 31 (1970, £253,009) with dividends totalling 12½ p.c. (17½ p.c.).

Earnings after tax of Yule Catto for the year ended June 30 were £125,240, including £40,050 received by way of dividend from Malaya General. The merged company will take the name of Yule Catto, and Lord Catto will be chairman.

Having considered the reply of Edger Investments to the offer made for the share capital by Amalgamated Investments and Property, Development Securities has rejected the offer as unacceptable in respect of its holding of 35·7 p.c. of the share capital of Edger.

APPOINTMENTS

Burton Group—Mr G. F. B. Grant appointed to board.

Antony Gibbs Pensions—Mr R. K. Sloan appointed to board.

Hogg Robinson—Gardner Mountain: Mr P. J. Ford-Robinson and Mr D. A. Lishman elected to the board.

D. W. Phillips International—Mr P. Stevenson appointed to board.

Office and Electronic Machines—M. C. Baker appointed financial director.

Purle Brothers Holdings—Mr R. Bowen appointed a director.

Storey Brothers and Company—Mr R. A. Atkinson appointed a non-executive director.

PROPERTIES

Taylor letting

ROBERT Kitchen Taylor confirmed yesterday that it had let its Chart Street building to the Inner London Executive Council of the National Health Service. Terms are a 21-year lease at £185,000 a year for the first six years, with five-yearly reviews thereafter. Improvements are to be carried out at the tenant's expense, and no rent will be payable until Dec. 3, 1972.

The rent of under £5 a foot is acknowledged to be considerably below that obtainable for comparable properties, but was agreed to because the tenant holds an office development permit. A professional valuation is being obtained and shareholders will be informed as soon as it is available.

CHAIRMEN

Amal. Anthracite Holdings—Mr W. M. Pybus: Given reasonable trading conditions in fuel distribution and our other activities, I am confident that the group as a whole will earn at least the same profit as last year. Last year and in the two previous years fuel distribution contributed increased profits, but as a percentage its contribution fell progressively from nearly 80 p.c. to 77 p.c. and then to 66 p.c. last year.

Eastern Produce (Holdings)—Mr K. P. Legg: Profits for first half of 1971 have been well up to expectations and prospects for whole year are encouraging.

An interim dividend of 7½ p.c. (5 p.c.) has already been declared and a final of 10 p.c. forecast to make 17½ p.c. for the year on larger capital, against 15 p.c. last time.

H A T Group—Mr A. C. Telling: Our results for first three months of this current year are much better than in the corresponding period last year and I forecast with confidence much better results this year.

Thomas Marshall Investments—Mr T. D. Parr: Results so far this year are up to expectations and we expect to lift the year's total dividend to 30 p.c.

For the previous 15 months Marshall paid 31½ p.c., equal to an annual rate of 25 p.c.

Power Tools Specialists — Mr A. N. Creed: Turnover to end of July is up by 11 p.c. and I am sure that when we are in a position to take full advantage of our new facilities this will lead to an accelerated rate of growth.

Wm. Cory and Son — Lord Leathers: In view of economic climate I am reluctant to give any accurate forecast of progress. We are, nevertheless encouraged by the growth achieved and the potential that exists.

THE QUESTOR COLUMN

Carrington Viyella wary of pressure on margins

By PETER WELHAM and DAVID BREWERTON

THE CARRINGTON Viyella interim figures are deemed not comparable, due to differing accounting periods prior to the merger, so the figures have to stand or fall on their own merits. If anything they tended to be slightly better than the market was going for and the shares finished 1½p up at 38p. But at this level they are still discounting quite a lot

Sales for the six month period to June 30 are £77·46 million and trading profits £6·65 million. After depreciation (£52·32 million) and interest (£1·9 million) pre-tax profits are £2·44 million to give earnings per share at the halfway stage and after a 38·6 p.c. tax charge of 0·85p.

For the latter part of the year Carrington Viyella looks for a continuation of the improving trend. But it will not be roses all the way. The industry is currently highly competitive and this factor, as much as any voluntary restraint, is likely to hold prices down. CV warns that unless there is an adequate expansion of sales and production this could result in pressure on margins.

The level of trading is expected to show a reasonable increase in the second half and the process of rationalisation should have a continuing beneficial effect on productivity and profitability. But then it needs all of this if the share price is to sustain its current level.

Historically Viyella has tended to earn second half profits in the ratio 1·1 or 1·2 to the first half and in the light of the interim report CV should earn a total of not less than 1·8p for the year.

This would put the shares at 38p on a price/earnings ratio of 21—a rating that would be looking ahead to the day when CV achieves its post merger target of a "reasonable" return on assets. Assuming a 12 p.c. return CV should one day earn 3p per share. But when that is achieved and the juice squeezed out of the merger is there much upside potential in a price/earnings ratio of 12?

Brown Brothers' wedded bliss

SO MANY mergers seem to be of the defensive "we'll all hang together" variety that it is refreshing to see one that made sound commercial sense from the word "go" paying off in the short-term.

The merger of Brown Brothers and Albany certainly fell into this category and after the first year in bed together benefits are still showing up.

At first sight a 5 p.c. increase in sales to £21·5 million looks disappointing—at any rate seen in the context of Albany's pre-merger soaring sales graph. But Brown Brothers, with annual sales on a plateau of around £35 million, was very much the larger in terms of sales. Albany's last reported pre-merger sales were a fast-growing but comparatively modest £3·3 million.

With the motor trade still flat it is reasonable to assume that much of the growth in sales this year came from the tyre side. What is encouraging is that across the board sales appear to be responding to the promised medicine. Margins have widened from 3·6 p.c. to 3·85 p.c. to give a 25 p.c. increase in profits before a full year's interest on the loan stock trims this to 11·5 p.c. at pre-tax level.

The latter part of the year should see a continuation of this process.

For the year a 15 p.c. gain in net earnings looks reasonable. This is small beer after the dazzling performance that Albany used to put up when on its own. But the group is much larger now and an historic price/earnings ratio of 16·3 at 163p is not expecting too much. If this falls to 14·2 there should be a few grumbles.

Rentokil justifies its glamour rating

THERE'S been no controlling the shares of Rentokil this year, and with the bulls coming in for the account they are already discounting maintenance of the historic growth rate for several years ahead.

Hence yesterday's sparkling interim figures produced only a 1p upward movement to 128p—to put the shares on an historic price/earnings ratio of close to 36.

That sort of rating takes justification, which the interim figures go some way to providing. From a 26 p.c. increase to £8·4 million in global sales, pre-tax profit spurted by 40 p.c. to £1·5 million.

Of the increase, the Thames and Etoxin acquisitions directly contributed about a net £75,000 after interest. Indirectly their contributions were greater for they brought in a better product mix and a higher volume of service work with the resultant beneficial effect on margins (up from 16·1 p.c. to 17·8 p.c.).

The traditional Rentokil profits split is 40 p.c. in the first half and 60 p.c. second half. This time it is not likely to be so favourable, since the second half of 1970 also included the acquisitions and the weather in the first half of 1971 was exceptionally favourable.

Assuming that the split this year drops to 45/55, the group is on course for £5·4 million before tax and earnings of say 4·75p a share. This puts the shares on a prospective price/earnings ratio of about 27.

Such a rating still takes quite a lot on trust. But with more and more houses changing hands, the order book in good shape, approaching half of turnover in contract work and premiums and a growing overseas side, this could be the right attitude.

HUMPHRIES HOLDINGS

The Annual General Meeting was held on August 24th in London, Mr PAUL ADORIAN, F.C.G.I., F.I.E.E., F.I.E.R.E., the Chairman, presiding. The following are extracts from his circulated statement:

The Group loss for the year is £528,552 against a profit before tax for the previous year of £562,686. In view of the loss, no dividend is recommended. The substantial turnabout in the Group's results from a profit to a loss is a measure of the continuing depressed state of the international film industry. Every effort was made to meet this emergency but hopes of an early recovery were not realised. Our main subsidiaries, Humphries Film Laboratories Ltd., and our rental company, Mole-Richardson (England) Ltd., and its subsidiaries, were particularly hard hit.

In May, 1970, the new 16/8mm colour and B & W plant of Humphries Film Laboratories became fully operational and I expect this part of our laboratory to make an increased contribution.

The De Lane Lea Ltd. studios continue to obtain a good share of recording work. During the year they also serviced a number of feature films. The foreign language division also completed a number of contracts including the German version of "The Life and Times of Lord Mountbatten." The building of the music centre at Wembley is now well advanced and will commence operations during 1971.

The manufacturing side of the Group experienced a very difficult year due to many major contracts being deferred and the fall away in demand for some electronic equipment.

Future prospects: In view of the very depressed state of the industry, I am not able to promise an immediate return to good profit levels. Nevertheless, I am convinced that your Group will show improved results in the current year and when recent capital investments become more fully productive, your Group will once again make good progress with healthy profits.

AARONSON BROS. LIMITED
(Veneers, Boards and Decorative Laminates)

AARONSON BROS. LIMITED announce the declaration of an Interim Dividend on the Ordinary Share Capital on account of the year ending 30th September, 1971, of 8 per cent. (1970 equivalent rate 5·6%), less income tax. Dividend Warrants payable on the 11th October, 1971, will be posted on Friday, the 8th October, 1971, to all shareholders registered at the close of business on the 10th September, 1971.

Group Trading Profit after Taxation	£279,000	£187,000	£463,000
Amount attributable to members of Aaronson Bros. Ltd.	£265,000	£175,000	£437,000

The Board are happy to report a continued improvement in the Group's profitability.

Currently, turnover is at record levels and the Board are confident that the results for the full year will once again show a very encouraging increase on the previous year.

Jacoll Hats

J. COLLETT LIMITED

The 54th Annual General Meeting was held on August 24 in London.

The following are highlights from the circulated statement of the Chairman and Joint Managing Director, Mr Maurice Harris:

★ Group sales were £2,698,277 (£2,807,594) and pre-tax profits were £158,757 (£282,099).

★ The year was not a good one for the hat industry. Apart from the general economic conditions and the postal strike the mild weather was not to our advantage.

★ Difficult trading conditions have continued throughout the Spring season but our Autumn hat showings indicate that the initial forward orders for next Autumn are at a satisfactory level.

★ In the four months that have elapsed since the beginning of the new financial year the pattern of trading has not improved. Although I would expect some improvement from the poor results for the year to 31st March, 1971, I would not expect to see the level of profits for future years reach the record profits attained in the year ended 31st March, 1970, unless some measure of diversification is achieved.

Copies of the full report and accounts are obtainable on application to the Secretary, Charterhouse Square, London, E.C.1.

Offer for sale by Tigon Group to raise £3.5m

BROKERS Rowe Rudd are arranging an offer for sale of sufficient new shares in Mr Laurie Marsh's Tigon Group to raise about £3·5 million—half the amount required to pay for the Classic cinema chain.

Of the total £6·5 million to be paid on completion of the Classic deal, some £2·5 million will be raised by a five-year Eurodollar loan carrying interest equivalent to around 11 p.c. and the rest through existing facilities.

Classic's pre-tax profits in the 53 weeks to April 1, 1972, are forecast at £574,000 against the £519,000 achieved in the year to March.

Restoration of dealings in Tigon is expected shortly after the extraordinary general meeting on Sept. 8, when shareholders will be asked to approve the Classic acquisition and also an increase in Tigon's authorised capital to £500,000 by the creation of five million new Ordinary 10p shares.

Carron dealings begin next Wednesday

DEALINGS in Carron Company (Holdings) are expected to start a week from today. The group, which was incorporated in Scotland by Royal Charter in 1773, is gaining a quotation on the London and Scottish stock exchanges by way of an introduction.

The group's business is now centred on products for the building trade, including stainless-steel sinks, of which it is the largest manufacturer, baths of cast iron, steel and plastic, and since 1969 gas and electric cookers.

Last year saw record pre-tax profits of £436,000 following a decline from £348,000 to £141,000 as the result of a price war in the bath trade.

This year turnover is 42 p.c. higher at the interim stage and the forecast profit is £800,000.

New housing starts during the first five months of 1971 were 9 p.c. higher and home improvement grants rose 28 p.c. Higher turnover is yielding better margins, while there is a continuing high capital investment programme financed out of cash flow.

Dealings are expected to start at upwards of 125p, where the prospective price-earnings ratio is about 11 compared with 15 for the much larger Glynwed.

Protecting the company against any down-turn in the housing industry is the growth of home improvement. Carron's concentration on the luxury end of the business, and the asset backing of 75p, which includes a 29,000 sq. ft. site at St Katharine's Way in the Pool of London.

Banks aid Doxford as State loan is repaid

ACCOUNTS from Doxford and Sunderland, shipbuilders, show that the company repaid a loan of £1·2 million from the Government but negotiated a bank overdraft of £1 million. The chairman, Mr J. G. Hugall, duly records appreciation to Barclays and the National Westminster for "considerable assistance."

The loan from the Government was the remainder of the £2 million made available in 1964 for the cargo ship North Sands, which was built as a floating testbed for the Doxford "J" marine engine. The ship was sold during the last financial year and a loss of £277,000 charged against reserves.

Mr Hugall says that the long strike last year "imposed pressure on liquid resources."

New contracts include escalation clauses and are expected to be profitable. But he gives a warning that the effect of the clauses has yet to be proved so "it is not considered prudent to take credit for these profits in the provision of future losses."

A pre-tax loss of £1,240,000 was reported on Aug. 12. The accounts now show that directors waived the right to fees of £2,900. Their total pay was £75,000, down by £17,000. There were charitable donations of £656, payment of £300 to the Northern Industrialists Protection Association and £100 to the Economic League.

ENCOURAGING PROSPECTS:
INCREASED DIVIDEND FORECAST

Points from Mr. K. P. Legg's 1970 statement to shareholders

Profits
Profit before tax for the year ended 31 December 1970 excluding Ceylon was £391,410 (1969: £259,195). Ceylon produced a loss of £101,127.

Tea Estates
Kenya – a record profit of £146,000 was earned.
Malawi – a controlling interest in Bandanga (Holdings) Ltd. and substantial minority stakes in other Malawi tea companies, which the group manages, were acquired.
Ceylon – a small profit is expected for 1971, following reorganisation, but the value of the company's Ceylon estates were written down to £1 in view of uncertainty of the future.

Acquisitions & Investments
High Income Trust Ltd. and Tamc Valley Developments Ltd. acquired in 1970 provided the company with substantial liquid resources for investment. Our interests now include a substantial minority stake in McLeod Russel & Co. Ltd. – an Indian tea producer, 15% of Plantation Holdings Ltd., producing rubber and palm oil in Malaysia, and 22% of Duncan Fox & Co. Ltd. (since the subject of a successful offer from Ralli International Ltd.) In 1971 the successful offer for British New Guinea Development Co. Ltd. has brought 13,000 acres of coconut and rubber into ownership and the acquisition of a 20% holding in First Finsbury Trust Ltd. is already proving to be a successful investment.

Future Prospects
Profits for the first half of 1971 have been well up to expectations and prospects for the whole year are most encouraging. A dividend of 17½% has been forecast for 1971 against 15% for 1970.

Copies of the Annual Report and Accounts are available from the Company Secretary.

LONDON TEA AUCTIONS

There was a strong and general demand for the 12,646 packages of Ceylon tea offered. The few bright liquoring high grown sold well, particularly hop lannings. Plainer teas were fully firm and often dearer, but low grown were irregular and sometimes easier.

The S. India offering of 1,347 packages met good demand at fully firm prices.

COVENT GARDEN

Supplies heavier with wide choice of seasonal fruits and summer vegetables. Fair demand for top quality stores. Tomatoes showing tendency to weaken. MONEY AND EXCHANGES

Pound closes at $2·44½ in good two-way trade

STERLING opened at $2·44 to $2·44¼ fractionally up on the Monday close but slightly lower than the overnight New York close which was $2·44¼-44½.

There was a reasonable two way business without any sign of intervention by the Bank of England, but the statement attributed to M. Schweitzer, managing director of the International Monetary Fund that the yen should be revalued by 15 p.c., the mark by 13-14 p.c., the pound and the French franc by 7 p.c. against the dollar, and the dollar should be devalued by 5 p.c. in gold terms led to a strengthening of currencies against the dollar.

The pound rose to $2·44¾ before closing at $2·44½ to 44¾. Forward sterling was firm, standing at a premium to dollars in anticipation of some form of revaluation of the pound.

The dollar opened at 3·42 marks and weakened to 3·39 before closing at 3·4012 marks. In Paris the dollar was steady against the commercial franc around 5·52 francs all day, and the investment franc closed firmer at 5·42 to 5·44 to the dollar after opening at 5·44 to 5·46.

Some selling of gold left the price 20 cents lower at the morning fixing at $43·10 an ounce. Later there was some recovery and the afternoon fixing was 10 cents up at $43·20. Silver prices followed New York down in reasonably active trading and fixing levels were 0·9p down at 64·5p an ounce for spot and 65·5p three months forward.

The supply of funds in the discount market improved and there was no need for the authorities to intervene. Rates ranged as high as 5⅞ p.c. initially but 5¾ p.c. ruled for most of the day and the close was easy at basic 4⅜ p.c.

ANOTHER RECORD YEAR

The following points are taken from the Accounts for the year ended 30th April, 1971 and from the circulated statement of the Chairman and Managing Director, Mr. W. BEST.

	1971	1970	1969	1968	1967
	£	£	£	£	£
Net Profit before Tax	122,035	109,730	91,850	73,950	68,262
Net Profit after Tax	72,035	58,730	50,150	42,680	39,512

Total dividend of 40%, costs £40,000 (covered 1·8 times).

Sales in the first two months of the current financial year show a satisfactory increase compared with the turnover of the first two months of 1969/70. The June 1971 turnover was the highest monthly figure ever achieved by the Company.

We are now the Major Distributor for GEC-Henley Limited's engineered products for the area covered by the South Eastern Electricity Board. We have not felt, as yet, the benefit to be derived from this distribution arrangement, but we are confident that this will prove of mutual benefit to all concerned.

CELESTION INDUSTRIES

★ TURNOVER UP "sales have increased from £2,096,800 to £3,488,000."

★ PROFIT UP "profit before tax increased from £92,496 to £157,482."

★ DIVIDEND UP "your directors recommend a dividend of 6% compared with 4% for last year."

"I am cautiously optimistic about the prospects for the current year. The first quarter's trading shows a continuation of demand . . . I expect that we shall be able to achieve a greater turnover and better profits. . . . Much will depend on our management's ability and ingenuity to improve our efficiency in design and production sufficiently to counteract pressures on margins and I am confident that they will succeed."

From the Annual Statement by the Chairman, Mr. D. D. Prenn.

Copy of the Report and Accounts may be obtained from The Secretary, 130 Mount Street, London, W1Y 5HA.

Production Director — about £4500
Volume Production Electro Mechanical Products

Established for many years in the London area, the company, subsidiary of a public company, is transferring its headquarters and production facilities to the Eastern Counties. Current turnover (approaching £2m.) represents nearly 100% increase in three years despite removal problems, and an exciting continuation of this rate of growth is scheduled for the next three years. The appointed candidate will have three primary tasks (a) to complete the move to the new factory with the minimum disruption; (b) to operate and extend established systems and controls to enable budgeted production to be achieved within defined time/cost/quality standards; and (c) to work constantly towards more efficient and economic methods of production in order to maximise profit margins. Engineers, 35 to 45, preferably AMIMechE or AMIProdE with successful works management experience in flow line production of electrical, electronic, or light engineering products and equipment should describe how their careers match the given requirements in writing to D. S. A. E. Jessop reference D.28175.

Technical Service Manager — up to £3500
Construction Industry — London

A commercially oriented engineer with an inventive mind is required to provide technical support for sales, and internal consultancy for General Managers responsible for contract work in a company, turnover £10m., pre-tax profits £400,000 in 1970, which installs the sophisticated building products it markets and manufactures. Reporting to the GM Central Services he will keep abreast of technical matters and take action on improvements or new developments which appear commercially promising. Candidates, up to 35 years, must be graduates (or equivalent) with MICE and have had general experience in the construction industry at a responsible level. This may include site-work, structural design, technical sales or technical development. Experience in the technical service function with modern systems and materials would be an advantage. Please write stating how each requirement is met to Dr. E. A. Davies reference D.40019.

Chief Accountant — about £3000
Property Development — South East

Part of a £100m. finance group, the company expects to double its present property holdings of £5m. in the next two years and has the financial backing for substantial further growth thereafter. The man appointed will control a small department providing full accounting support, with involvement in the areas of management information, cash flow, budgeting and forecasting. He will develop the function as the company expands. Around 30, he will have had at least five years' commercial experience since qualifying – ACA or ACWA – and will now be leading a small team ideally but not necessarily in property or a related field. Non-contributory pension and other normal benefits. Please write stating how each requirement is met to J. D. Jones reference D.61012.

Junior Managers — from £2250
Poultry Processing

Following a recent substantial enlargement of activities, this company will be processing and selling over £5m. of food products in the current financial year. The demands of this programme are likely to exceed present management availability from internal promotion, and it is proposed to recruit one or two young men who after a brief period of acclimatisation could undertake supervisory responsibilities in one of the food processing plants. They will be (a) graduates in agriculture or equivalent; (b) probably 25 to 30; (c) with at least two years' experience in the processing and/or marketing of food, and desirably, poultry products; and (d) with the ability to adapt themselves to a situation of rapid and continuing growth, and the potential to grasp the opportunities which the future is likely to offer. Contributory pension. Life assurance. Assistance with re-location. Please write stating how each requirement is met to D. S. A. E. Jessop reference D.28177.

Sales Manager — £3000-£5000
Horticultural Products

The company, located in the Eastern Counties, is the British subsidiary of an international horticultural business founded about 100 years ago. It prepares and markets seeds, bulbs and shrubs, loose and prepacked. The task of the sales manager will be to extend the area of distribution of the company's products particularly in the direction of supermarkets, chain stores, and other multiple outlets. Success in achieving challenging targets projected for the next two or three years would open up the opportunity for early promotion to the Board for a man able and willing to accept increasing levels of responsibility. Essential experience: complete familiarity with, and a record of successful personal penetration into, the particular markets involved. Experience of the horticultural industry useful but not essential. Salary probably within the indicated bracket (but could be negotiated to meet exceptionally well qualified candidates), plus generous fringe benefits. Please write stating how each requirement is met to D. S. A. E. Jessop reference D.28143.

Design and Construction — Arabian Gulf

ALBA (Aluminium Bahrain) is a major international aluminium producer on the island of Bahrain; the final stage of the new 120,000 ton p.a. smelter comes on stream next year. The company is now establishing a Design and Construction Department, within the Engineering Services Division, to support its future development. These senior appointments carry full overseas benefits including free housing and medical care. The emoluments quoted – salary plus allowances – are at present tax-free and there are no exchange control restrictions. Please write or telephone for further information to D. A. Ravenscroft quoting the appropriate reference.

Dept. Superintendent — about £5000

A chartered civil/mechanical engineer, probably in his thirties, he will establish and develop the department. Candidates should have at least eight years' experience in design and construction of major engineering projects, ideally overseas, and already control a sizeable staff. Reference D.2567.

Design Draughtsman — about £4000 who will also train and supervise junior staff and control a records office. Around 30 and qualified to HNC, candidates will have spent at least five years in engineering design, preferably with a materials handling bias. Reference D.2568.

Construction Engineer — about £4000

Candidates, around 30 and with HNC mechanical with electrical endorsements, should have at least seven years' experience, some at supervisory level, of heavy mechanical/electrical installation and commissioning, including materials handling plant. Reference D.2569.

Civil Engineer — about £4000

Candidates should have a background of at least seven years' civil construction work, ideally with experience of design, estimating and supervision. Around 30, they should hold HNC in civil engineering. Reference D.2570.

Financial Accountant

for a medium engineering company, part of a large diversified British group. 2,000 are employed at a number of locations and turnover approaches £10m., with a significant export content; the product range includes several market leaders. He will be responsible for all financial accounting, including monthly and annual accounts and preparation of management control information. A key task is to assimilate the accounts of a major subsidiary following re-organisation and he will play an important role in a computerisation programme. Candidates, professionally qualified, should have several years' experience in manufacturing industry; familiarity with computerised accounts an asset. The appointment could also interest older men facing re-deployment. Starting salary about £2,750; pension; 4 weeks' holiday; re-location assistance to rural East Midlands. Please write stating how each requirement is met to R. M. Cooper reference D.60062.

Accountants
Glasgow, Bristol, Coventry, Derby

With the formation of Rolls-Royce (1971) Limited, and the restructuring of our organisation, we are actively strengthening our financial control function. Consequently we need a number of qualified accountants to fill vacancies at various levels—these, in turn, dictating the experience and ability each man should have. We need both young men with a minimum of two years post-qualification experience and those who have had several years management accounting experience in industry.

They will be involved in forecasting, budgeting, cash flow analysis, expenditure control, and financial accounting. These disciplines will be applied to the analysis and review of specific projects as well as to the investigation of the financial aspects of a wide variety of our activities.

This work in the new company will present considerable challenge and responsibility to the successful applicants. They should be within the age range 24 to 40, and attractive salaries will be offered.

The vacancies exist at our operating centres in Glasgow, Bristol, Coventry and Derby. Please write, giving brief personal details, and location preference, to:

H. N. D. Bailey, Rolls-Royce (1971) Limited, P.O. Box 31, Derby DE2 8BJ.

KEY ACCOUNTS SALESMAN
for challenging assignment with SCM (UNITED KINGDOM) LTD

The assignment is the selling of our range of Smith-Corona portable typewriters to, and through, our key accounts – department stores, national multiples, mail order companies, etc.

It requires the ability to negotiate at a high level, the imagination to originate promotional schemes, and the drive to see them through to a successful conclusion. Evidence of management potential also is high on our list of criteria.

The man we need is unlikely to be less than 25, and will certainly have a successful selling record. He will be based in London. Knowledge of our particular market is not needed as full training will be given. Our salary/commission/bonus structure should ensure minimum earnings of £2,500 p.a. and a company car will be provided.

Please apply in writing to Mr. C. Hedges, SCM (United Kingdom) Ltd., 248/250 Tottenham Court Rd., London W1P 0BE.

Manager— Adult Training Centre

We are looking for an experienced Manager for a small industrial unit carrying out varied contract and service work.

As part of its long-term programme to help the mentally disabled, Lambeth will shortly be opening a new, purpose-built Adult Training Centre. The Centre will be situated on a new light industrial estate in the Brixton area.

The Centre will replace an existing one and will provide work facilities for up to 200 mentally subnormal people. The Centre aims to simulate industrial conditions and pressures in a controlled situation for training and rehabilitation purposes, as well as providing some "sheltered" employment. An important part of the Centre's function will be the social and educational development of the workers in the communications area and the teaching of personal skills. A wide variety of contract work will be able to be carried out, including light assembly, simple batch production, and woodwork. The Centre also includes a comprehensive laundry and it is proposed that it should supply this service for several of the Council's establishments.

Within reason, the scope for this centre is unlimited, dependent only on the Manager and his team. He will be an energetic man capable of translating the centre's objectives into practical reality. He will need his strong personality and his sympathetic humanity to carry out these tasks. His industrial management experience, preferably supported by a professional qualification, will enable him to motivate and guide the group of 20 staff for whom he will be responsible. If you feel that you would be able to meet this challenge we should like you to write or phone for an application form.

SALARY: in the range of £2,543 to £2,601.

Systems engineering

The Private Communications Group–ITT Europe, is establishing a specialist engineering centre to provide leadership in the planning and design of its line of switching and data communications systems, and to guide and co-ordinate related technical projects throughout Europe. This centre will be located at Harlow, Essex. The Private Communications Group comprises sizeable research and engineering, manufacturing and sales organisations located throughout Europe, with particular concentrations in the United Kingdom, France, Germany, Belgium, Scandinavia and Spain.

The Group seeks senior professionals with outstanding qualifications and five-ten years' relevant experience in one or more of the following fields–system engineering, switching, data technologies, computer software, reliability engineering and product engineering–plus significant qualifications in electrical/electronic engineering. Suitable experience as leaders and members of creative multi-disciplinary teams is mandatory.

The work will include collaboration with an exceptionally competent group of men, contributing technical guidance for advanced and ambitious projects in professional environments throughout Europe.

for an international communications company.

Software analysis in complex real-time systems

The work will involve co-ordination and direction in development of software for switching system control and data handling; conducting design reviews of operative programs; leading and participating in program-planning for systems development; and providing a consultancy service to programming teams.

Applicants should have had experience in the design of complex software systems with the practicalities of communications switching and data communications. Demonstrated success in complex systems programming with a definite aptitude for trouble-shooting at system level, is also desirable.

Systems analysis & programme planning

Work will comprise both individual roles and multi-disciplinary team participation to provide the analytical bases on which the most critical forward-planning decisions will be taken.

Applicants should have had experience in system engineering in communications and/or data systems, including requirements analysis, concept development, parametric analysis, system-specification development and control, preparation of programme plans, system-performance analysis, cost-effectiveness analysis, technology assessment, and design reviews.

Product engineering & design

Work will include direction and participation in Group product engineering functions including mechanical design, appearance design, applications of components and materials, preparation of manufacturing data, design for efficient manufacturing, cost forecasting and monitoring, scheduling and help with management of programmes, product cost reduction programmes, and application of standards.

Applicants should have had experience in complex communications and/or data equipment development.

Circuit analysis & technology

Work will consist of direction and participation in circuit analysis/technology applications for voice and data communications systems requiring Group management attention. Such positions will involve responsibility for design cost-effectiveness; standardisation; identification and analysis of key parameters; controlled introduction of new technology; detailed design support for key circuit aspects of system planning, and consultation and design assistance to the development staffs of operating divisions.

Applicants should have had experience in complex communications and/or data equipment development. A considerable knowledge of communications switching theory and/or digital design theory, and demonstrated success in the development of complex equipments are required.

Reliability engineering

This position will entail carrying out trade-off analyses in support of system planning; developing reliability assessments of current and planned projects; installing monitoring procedures; developing and applying information-collection procedures; supporting ITT Europe reliability activities and policies for maximum exploitation of the present body of knowledge.

Applicants should have had experience in the application of modern concepts of systems reliability engineering. Experience in complex system reliability prediction typical of space or weapon system reliability analysis, plus some experience with communications or data systems, is desirable.

Data terminals

This position entails application of data terminals to current and future communications systems–making comparative analyses of terminal performance, developing system interface specifications, specifying special interfacing hardware and user procedures. Other duties will be to make the data-terminal contribution to system planning, to give advice on special customer systems, and to design in detail special circuits and and hardware for compatible terminal operation.

Experience in terminal design and application across the broad field of the technology is desired.

Applications including detailed statements of qualifications and experience should be made in writing to:

G. Peter White, Director of Personnel,
Private Communications Group,
ITT Europe, c/o Standard Telecommunication Laboratories, London Road, Harlow, Essex.

Wightman Cup Lawn Tennis

ALL EYES NOW ON CHRIS EVERT'S PROGRESS ON GRASS

By LANCE TINGAY in Cleveland, Ohio

THE final measure of the American victory over Great Britain in the Wightman Cup was 4-3 and if this were the best score achieved in the United States for 12 years, there was not much cause for British self-congratulation after the defeat in Cleveland.

In the closing rubber Britain narrowed what was already a winning lead when Virginia Wade and Joyce Williams beat Carole Graebner and the wee Chris Evert 10-8, 4-6, 6-1.

Accordingly, Mrs Williams finished as the unbeaten member of the British side, winning both the singles and doubles. The crux of the American victory was the earlier 6-1, 6-1 win by Miss Evert, 16, over Miss Wade.

In the history of lawn tennis was there ever such a thing as this, a slightly-built junior high school girl taking on the fifth-ranking player of the world in a major contest and knocking her off the course with 40 minutes of devastating play?

Positive merits

Miss Wade did not, perhaps, put her best foot forward. One can say she looked flustered and fraught but the positive merits of Miss Evert were manifest and from the baseline she projected winner after winner for all the world as if nerve and unforced error did not exist in the game.

Not even the late Maureen Connolly performed a like feat at the same age. Whether Miss Evert, who is perky and self-assured, will achieve what Miss Connolly achieved, I know not.

But when it comes to fast grass, it may be that her double-fisted backhand, so strong a weapon on the curious carpet court at Cleveland, will be vulnerable.

Miss Evert volleys better than did Miss Connolly at the same age, though, like Miss Connolly, her power lies in her wonderful ground strokes from the back of the court. The interest now is to see how she fares in the grass tournament this week at South Orange in New Jersey, and afterwards in the United States open at Forest Hills.

Question of rules

After retaining the trophy with a second-line team and with two players injured, the American captain, Mrs Graebner, declared that she would recommend to the USLTA that the rules of the competition be clarified. One can only echo her advice for the situation on Monday morning merged on the farcical.

If the referee, Monta Tanger, seemed slow in making a definite ruling on the many problems put before him, he perhaps cannot be blamed. What are the rules of the Wightman Cup? Some thought this and some thought that, but where was a copy of the rules anyway?

They used to exist—I can vouch for that for I have seen them—but nowhere in Cleveland or, it seems, in the United States, could a copy be found.

In the end, what seemed like common sense prevailed, and the incredible situation was avoided of the same player appearing in two different doubles pairing.

THE RESULTS

United States 4, Great Britain 3 (U S names first): Miss C. Evert bt Miss W. M. Shaw 6-0, 6-4; Miss J. M. Heldman bt Miss J. Salt 5-7, 5-7; Miss K. Pigeon lost to Mrs G. M. Williams 5-7, 6-3, 4-6; Miss V. Ziegenfuss & Mrs L. W. Carter bt Mrs G. J. Janes & Miss F. Truman 6-1, 6-4; Miss Ziegenfuss bt Miss Shaw 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, Miss Evert bt Miss Wade 6-1, 6-1; Miss Evert & Mrs Graebner lost to Miss Wade & Mrs Williams 8-10, 6-4, 1-6.

Tiny Chris Evert towels down while (left) Virginia Wade changes end during their match in Cleveland which the American won 6-1, 6-1.

PAT LOWE AGAIN MEETS MISS FALCK

By JAMES COOTE

PAT LOWE, European 800 metres silver medallist, will face Hildegard Falck, world record holder for the distace who fell in the Helsinki final, in the match against West Germany at Crystal Palace on Saturday and Monday.

In Helsinki Miss Lowe ran an outstanding 2 min. 1·7 sec. and with this confident memory behind her could finish her European year on an even higher note, by beating the world record holder.

Harald Norpoth, European 5,000 metres bronze medallist, as might have been expected, has moved down to the 1,500 metres, thus missing a potentially exciting clash with Britain's European record holder Dave Bedford over 5,000 metres.

Smallest girl

Ellen Tittel, from Leverkusen, the smallest girl in the European Championships, who added a world mile record to the bronze medal she won in Helsinki over 1,500 metres, again meets Rita Ridley, who was fourth in a British record. The West German team is:

Women's Bowls Championships

Mrs Abraham races into third round

By OUR BOWLS CORRESPONDENT

WINNIE ABRAHAM (Northants) showed unwavering concentration for the second successive day in beating Mrs G. Gilbert (Isle of Wight) 21-2 to reach the third round of the singles of the English Women's Bowls Championships at Wimbledon Park yesterday.

Mrs Gilbert scored just two singles, and the match was completed in only nine ends, so providing arithmetical evidence of the accuracy and consistency with which Mrs Abraham piled on the threes and fours.

Grace Locke-Hooper (Norfolk) continued to pose immense scheduling problems by remaining in four of the five events for which she originally qualified until near the end of the day.

Nine hours' bowling on Monday, and seven yesterday, preceded her first-round match against Dorothy Beale (Worcestershire), who had been waiting patiently since nine o'clock on Monday morning while all the other singles competitors completed two rounds.

Mrs Beale began strongly, but Mrs Locke-Hooper found consistency of direction halfway through. Drawing level at 13-13, she drew three beautiful shots and dropped only one more point

Mrs Locke-Hooper was beaten in the triples, and the other Norfolk team in this event, Audrey Neal, Gwen Wright and Olive Youngs, suffered the saddest fate of all. The taxi they so thoughtfully ordered overnight arrived three-quarters of an hour late, and so they reached the green a minute too late to avoid being scratched.

Swimming

BRINKLEY IN FOUR EVENTS

By PAT BESFORD

BRIAN BRINKLEY, of Peterborough, was yesterday named to swim four freestyle races for Britain in the Division II men's European Cup, in Turin, on Saturday and Sunday.

Brinkley, 17, will be swimming in both freestyle relays and the 200 and 400 metres, for which he set British records in Waldkraiburg in the match against West Germany and Holland last weekend.

His performance on Saturday, in covering 200 metres in 1min 59·1sec, made him only the second Briton to beat two minutes, but team coach Hamilton Bland is confidently tipping him to do ever better at the weekend when the team move from their training camp in Germany to Italy.

Bland told me: "We think Brian can do around 1min 57sec.

Welsh international Vivian Davies, who earned his first British cap in the Waldkraiburg match, is named again for the 400 metres medley in the European Cup competition.

200 & 400 METRES FREESTYLE: R. Brinkley (Middlesbrough). 100M freestyle: M. Windeatt (Torquay Leander). 200M individual medley: C. Cunningham (Widnes). 100 & 200M butterfly: J. Mills (St James). 1,500M freestyle: M. Benny (Luton). 100 & 200M backstroke: M. Richards (Nottingham Northern). 400M individual medley: V. Davies (Southampton). 100 & 200M breaststroke: M. O'Connell (Southampton).

TEAM RACES: From above, plus A. Wildowson (Nottingham Northern).

Second City Tournament

Snell saves his best for last six holes

By MAURICE WOODBINE

DAVID SNELL, who won the British Match-play championship 12 years ago, put in a strong finish to win the Second City professional tournament with a 36-hole aggregate of 135 at Sutton Coldfield yesterday.

After a five-under-par 67, he shared the first-round lead with Maurice Bembridge, and they remained level when they both had twos at the 130-yard second in the afternoon, Snell hitting an eight-iron to five feet, and Bembridge a nine-iron to two feet.

Bembridge went ahead when he was on the green in two to birdie the 476-yard fifth, and they both had fours at the long seventh. The lead changed when Snell's seven-iron tee-shot ended two feet away for a two at the 150-yard ninth, where Bembridge three-putted.

Snell holed from 12 feet to increase his lead at the 10th, but it was level pegging again two holes later when he drove into rough to take five, and Bembridge landed his six-iron second two feet away for a birdie three.

Bembridge falters

The issue was decided over the last six holes, for Bembridge dropped shots at the 13th and 16th, at both of which he took three from the edge of the green.

Snell was on the front edge at the 500-yard 14th with a drive and a five-wood to record a birdie four, and they both played the other holes in par figures.

That gave Snell a 68 to the 71 of Bembridge, who was in turn three strokes ahead of Hamish Macdonald and Ted Large. The leading 18 qualified for today's pro-am tournament, in which seven members of the successful British Walker Cup team will be competing.

135—D. Snell (Worsop) 67, 68.
136—M. Bembridge (Little Aston) 67, 71.
141—H. Macdonald (Drollwich) 68, 73; T. Large (S. Staffs) 73, 68.
142—J. M. Lower (Nuneaton) 73, 69; P. J. Butler (Harborne) 71, 71.
143—D. J. Llewellyn (Olton) 69, 74; E. J. Waites (Notts) 70, 73; S. Fogarty (Blackwell) 71, 72.
144—M. Peel (Buxton & High Peak) 71, 73; E. Darcy (Erewash Valley) 74, 70; J. T. Byard (Nuneaton) 75, 69.
145—R. L. Moffitt (Coventry Hearsall) 72, 73; F. R. Bottell (unatt.) 72, 73; D. Playden (Kenilworth) 74, 71.
146—R. D. S. Livingston (Churchill & Blakedown) 73, 73; R. A. Beattie (Robin Hood) 73, 73.
147—R. H. Kemp (Priors Hall) 76, 71.

Girls Golf

ENGLAND BEAT IRELAND TO KEEP TROPHY

By ENID WILSON at North Berwick

ENGLAND retained the Stroyan Cup at North Berwick when they defeated Ireland 5-2. Scotland finished in second place with a 5½-2½ victory over Wales.

Michelle Walker, the holder of the British women's title, beat Josephine Marsh, the Irish girl champion, by 4 and 3 in the best game of the series.

Both played faultless golf up to the greens where Miss Walker gained the edge by sinking putts of between three and four yards for birdies at the second, third and eighth, and holing from the back edge for a birdie three at the 12th. Miss Mark was equal par when she lost.

French players

The first round of the British girls' championship followed the international matches and the outstanding games involved five French players.

Sabine Lamidey won on the last green from Lynn Ghent (Wetherby), Caroline Riguad beat Janice Caldwell (Thorpe Hall) 6 and 5 and Laurence Levique won by 5 and 4 from Elizabeth Roy (Cardross). Ann Robert of Paris was defeated by Ursula Holt from the Midlands 4 and 2. And Pascale Lebrifon of Nantes lost to Christina Hogg of Muckhart by 5 and 4.

VO GOODWOOD ILE RIVALS ONLY)R 'BRIGADIER'

By HOTSPUR (Peter Scott)

IGADIER GERARD will have only two opponents in Saturday's Goodwood Mile. l Rod and Ashleigh face the daunting task rying to prevent Mr and Mrs John Hislop's erb colt gaining the eighth win of his eaten career.

Saturday's race has been known as the Wills Mile e 1967, during which time it established a reputation small fields, with odds often being laid on the horse had won Goodwood's ssex Stakes a month lier.

hree acceptors on Satur- will not cause the spon- to regret their decision lrop out. The Goodwood e's added money has been from £10,200 to £5,000.

very Sussex Stakes winner e 1967 went on to contest Wills Mile and Brigadier ard maintains that custom. torm and Petingo were Sussex es winners surprisingly beaten he Wills Mile. Only Humble y won both races in the same ion, but this will not deter kers from laying long odds on adier Gerard.

rigadier Gerard shocked the airers of Mill Reef and My illow by handsomely beating m on 2,000 Guineas day. Deep ound and the courage of pace- king Sparkler almost proved gadier Gerard's undoing at val Ascot, but he was back in minating form in the Sussex ield.

Never headed

Brigadier Gerard led through- t at Goodwood to beat Faraway n by five lengths and I expect will make his own running sin on Saturday.

Ashleigh was fourth in the ssex Stakes, almost 10 lengths hind Brigadier Gerard at level ights. Ashleigh now receives 5lb allowance, but that courag- us four-year-old Gold Rod must ncede Brigadier Gerard 8lb as e weight-for-age scale requires. Falkland will have no more than e opponents when running his Leger trial in Saturday's March akes at Goodwood. Selhurst d Bassompierre, who both dis- ppointed at York last week, have en left in against him, along ith Alderney. Peter Boat and alkland's stable companion De- stable make up the six ceptors.

Realm has been withdrawn from e Goodwood Mile and retires to e Greenmount Stud in Ireland ithout running again. The ueen's four-year-old Charlton as also ended his racing career and is for sale privately as a stallion.

Charlton finished on a high note with his close fourth under top weight in last Wednesday's Johnnie Walker Ebor Handicap. He won five times for the Queen and finished fourth to Nijinsky in last year's St Leger.

Jungle Boy napped

Jungle Boy is napped for the George Robey Challenge Trophy at Brighton this afternoon. He is more favourably treated here than in Saturday's richer Northern Goldsmiths Handicap at Newcastle and trainer John Winter seems to have made the right decision.

Tasks like carrying top weight in the Totalisator Free Handicap meeting Sparkler and Spoiled Lad in Epsom's Diomed Stakes and clashing with older horses in the Bunbury Cup have proved beyond Jungle Boy this season, but to- day's assignment is easier.

Although Vistella has not run since finishing second to Pert Lassie at Newmarket in April she is fancied for Yarmouth's Hall Quay Plate. Visp, Vistella's dam, was a fast two-year-old in 1965 when she won the Queen Mary Stakes at Royal Ascot.

Hants, with two easy victories to strengthen her confidence, looks set for a hat-trick in the Cobholm Stakes. Pete Anderson, a leading American jockey on holiday in England, rode without success at Newmarket last Satur- day but Capistrano (4.15) may provide him with a Yarmouth win.

Wise Old Owl is the type of improving colt who should be followed in two-year-old handi- caps and I expect him to win the William Hill Vase at Beverley.

A slip of the pen yesterday caused me to describe Countess Batthyany's St Leger entry Basileus as having won the Grand Prix de Paris. He actually won the Grand Prix de Vichy, a rather different proposition.

The Queen's Charlton, who is for sale as a stallion.

Course Notes & Hints

LUANDA IS BEST OF THE DAY

By Our Course Correspondent

LUANDA*, who won con- vincingly at Folkestone earlier this month, should follow up successfully in the Hollingbury Stakes (1.30) at Brighton this afternoon.

This Track Spare filly had been off the course since April when she ran very green on her debut. But the long lay-off seems to have benefited John Winter's charge and she should have little difficulty in holding her five rivals.

Winter's Jungle Boy is likely to start favourite for the afternoon's feature race, the George Robey Challenge Trophy (2.30), but my preference is for Legionnaire, who will be worth an each-way investment.

Palatial may find the task of giving Sofonisba 14lb too much in the Telscombe Handicap (3.30) and King Cloud is fancied for the Goldstone Stakes (4.30).

From Newmarket

CONFIDENCE IN VISTELLA

By Our Resident Correspondent

Vistella showed promise when second to the smart Pert Lassie at Newmarket in the spring. After that race she met with a slight accident from which she has now fully recovered.

Recent gallops show that she has lost none of her ability, and she is napped for the Hall Quay Plate at Yarmouth today.

In the George Robey Challenge Trophy at Brighton, Jungle Boy could register his first success of the season.

YARMOUTH.—2.15. Vistella (nap); 2.45. Lissaleen; 3.15. Wherry; 3.45. Hants; 4.15. Capistrano; 4.45. Tessason.

Folkestone Racing

PAUL COLE EQUALS TOP SCORE

PAUL COLE, who at 29 is one of the present crop of young trainers who have been making their mark in recent seasons, equalled his previous best total of winners when Genuine captured the William Hill Handicap at Folkestone yesterday.

Cole, who has sent out 11 winners from his Lambourn stable — including Billy Whizz and Country Queen at Ostend — gave strict instructions to Willie Carson on Genuine and the Scottish jockey carried them out to the letter.

Carson was told to make full use of Genuine and he jumped the four-year-old off in front to make all the running in great style, scoring by a length from Forty Winks.

"Genuine is a difficult horse to ride, but he's as game as they come" said Cole, adding "I bought him for hurdling, but he lost his confidence after a couple of races and will not be going jumping this winter."

Carson double

This success completed a double for Carson, who had earlier brought Hopping Hill with a late flourish to land the Sandling Selling Handicap by three parts of a length from Gay Palm. Hopping Hill will carry a 7lb penalty in today's Newhaven Selling Handicap at Brighton.

Capacious, who made an impressive debut at Newbury, was odds on for the Twiss Stakes and duly retained her unbeaten record, but she had to pull out all the stops to hold off the fast-finishing Galleon by a short head.

The Duke of Norfolk's filly had no sooner mastered pacemaking Firedancer when Brian Taylor launched a tremendous late run on Galleon which only just failed.

Romany, successful over the course and distance last month, supplemented that victory when readily holding off La Perla by a length in the Wakefield Handicap. Romany, owned by Dan Prenn, will be retired at the end of the season to be mated with Prenn's crack sprinter Balidar, who is at stud in Ireland.

World Cycling Championships

Porter likely to retain title

By DAVID SAUNDERS in Varese, Italy

GREAT BRITAIN'S team faced an immediate setback to their chances in the 4,000 metres team pursuit in the World Cycling Championships, which start in Varese today, when Birmingham's John Patston crashed during training on Monday evening.

Ray Ward, another Midlander, came off in the incident, suffering cuts and bruises, but Paston was taken to hospital and had several stitches inserted in a head wound. He is expected to be discharged this morning.

But the shake-up may affect his riding. One of the strong men of the quartet for the team pursuit, his absence could well upset the team's rhythm.

There is an outside chance of a medal in this event, but the 446 metre track is very fast and Italy and East and West Germany have looked most impressive in their training rides for the event.

Hallam's chance

Ian Hallam, silver medallist last year in the individual 4,000 metres pursuit, may now have a good opportunity of taking the gold, since the man who beat him, Swiss Xavier Kurrmann, is unfit after a broken collar bone and may not ride.

Hallam's biggest rival could well be Dutchman Fedor Den Hertog, but in the professional 5,000 metres pursuit, Hugh Porter should not have difficulty in taking the title for the second successive year.

In the amateur sprint, Daniel Morelon, of France, looks all set to take yet another title, while the professionals could have a close battle with defending champion, Australian Gordie Johnson, likely to be hard pressed to win again.

It is highly unlikely that Reg Harris will ride. He has not arrived yet, but at the same time, he startled many other 50-year-olds, and quite a few younger ones, too!

The U C I, cycling's world governing body, announced after their pre-championships meeting, that Great Britain will stage the world cyclo-cross championships in 1975. This will be the first time these events have taken place in Britain.

Cadet World Championship

FIRST AND THIRD PUT POLE AT FRONT

BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

JERZY RASINSKI, 16, the Polish champion, moved firmly into an overall points lead as the Cadet World Championship continued with two more races at Whitstable yesterday.

A runaway win in the morning, followed by a third place, enabled Rasinski to maintain a high scoring consistency which none of his rivals has approached.

The previous leader, Peter Marchant, of Pevensey Bay, crashed with an eighth place that he will hope to discard in the final reck*oning,* but he recovered in the afternoon with a well-fought second place.

The morning race started in a north-easterly zephyr so faint that 10 minutes passed before the first two boats had crept across the line, and half an hour before the rest of the fleet had followed.

7mins clear

Rasinski got clear away and his advantage steadily increased as the wind rose until at one time he was over eight minutes ahead of his nearest pursuer. He finally finished seven minutes ahead of Jonathan Jones from the Tamesis club.

A sparkling afternoon breeze brought a great duel at the head of the fleet between Gareth Owen of West Kirby and Marchant, with Rasinski lying a steady third. After holding the lead at every buoy Owen won by only four seconds.

3RD RACE.—J. Rasinski (Poland), 1; J. Jones (Tamesis), 2; P. Winters (Belgium), 3.

4TH RACE.—G. Owen (W. Kirby), 1; P. Marchant (Pevensey Bay), 2; Rasinski, 3.

OVERALL.—Rasinski, 7½pts, 1; Marchant, 12¾, 2; Owen, 15¾, 3; Brown, 17, 4; R. Hickman (Australia), 23, 5; Jones, 25, 6.

R. NORFOLK & SUFFOLK.—Lowestoft Week—Dragons: Goose (R. Perahouse). All-comers (Over 15ft 6in): Chapter 15 (A. Shinzier) Under 15ft 6in: Jardoo (R. Thomson). B O D: Flittermouse (Mrs A. Whelpton). Flying 15s: Bolero (P. Musselwhite). N.224: Merlin (J. M. Habgood). Enterprises: Primus (E. Bradshaw).

GP14 Championship

READ MASTER IN LIGHT AIRS

By FRANK CHAPMAN

World champion Andrew Read, from West Lancashire, was the pacemaker in yesterday's second race in the GP 14 National Championship at Llandudno. In light airs, he added a first to his third place in the opening heat of the series.

Sailing Dreuid, Read, who won his world title last month, was first to the weather mark, but then lost the lead to Electra (Martin Jolleys).

Jolleys stayed in front until the leeward mark. Dreuid regained the lead on the second beat and, taking a brave middle course, Edward Owen in Gwladys Fore, was next to creep round the buoy, though slipping to fifth at the end.

Electra retrieved second place on the second triangle, with John Meade, of Holyhead skilfully guiding Zerlina from 10th to third. On a cramped course, seasoned campaigners like former champions Bill Morris and Peter Currie finished as low as 26th and 39th.

2nd RACE.—Dreuid (A. Read, W. Lancs), 1; Electra (M. Jolleys, Lowton), 2; Zerlina (J. Meade, Holyhead), 3; Chaos (D. Gilbert, Wembley), 4; Gwladys Fore (E. W. Owen, Holyhead), 5; Raspberry (R. Blackett, Pen...), 6.

WAYFARER CH'SHIPS (Hayling Island).—2nd race—Ala Trophy: Spinaway (A. Monk, Emsworth), 1; Wendella (A. Wilson, Medway), 2; Cornish Mustard (A. Stott, Salcombe), 3; Nitegegl (N. Hodshca, Medway), 4; Soojum (D. Smith, Monacham Rythe), 5; Tenacky (R. Smith, Monacham Rythe), 6.

HIBBITT & McCALLIOG GIVE WOLVES FIRST VICTORY OF SEASON

By DENIS LOWE

Wolves ... 2 Manchester City ... 1

WOLVES, who again intend to be among the First Division pacemakers, earned their first League victory of the season at Molineux last night with goals by Hibbitt and McCalliog. Lee got a penalty for City.

At times fortunate to survive a lively opening spell in which the City forwards failed to round off neat approach work, Wolves took the lead in 20 minutes in their first notable raid on Corrigan's goal.

Hibbitt met the ball with the outside of his right foot and the "banana" shot deceived Corrigan to finish just inside the far post.

City call tune

City called the tune at the start, with Lee, Davies, Summerbee and Mellor all linking cleverly. Mellor lost a chance through hesitation and Parkes saved at the winger's feet after a lapse by Munro.

Lee, who captained City for the first time in the absence of the injured Book, then tested Parkes with a fierce drive that the goalkeeper had to palm out for Shaw to clear. But as Wolves improved in midfield, the pressure increased on Booth and Heslop.

Davies, who wore a head bandage to protect a wound that had required stitches last week, still posed problems for Munro in the air, but Wolves remained on top, and lost the chance of a second goal when Hibbitt blazed over from a pass by Sunderland, 17, a newcomer to League football.

City pushed Wolves back again with a determined rally in which Lee, the chief threat to the home defence, saw McAlle clear his header off the goal-line following a fumble by Parkes.

Mellor misses chance

Summerbee, who supplied the centre, was also prominent with fiery bursts in company with Jefferies, but Mellor lost yet another opportunity when he fell 10 yards from the Wolves goal.

The pattern of this fast-moving match changed once more as Wolves, who used the flanks to good purpose, brought two splendid saves from Corrigan. Wagstaffe and Gould got in powerful drives from the edge of the box.

With 15 minutes left, though, Wolves obtained a deserved second goal. Parkin found McCalliog over on the left-wing and the Scot promptly beat Heslop before clipping a fine 20-yard shot over the surprised Corrigan. In the next minute Heslop was booked for a foul on Richards.

City were given fresh heart when Lee scored from a penalty in the 87th minute after Shaw had pushed Mellor. There was another narrow escape for Wolves when Shaw blocked Lee's drive a minute later, but they hung on for a deserved victory.

Wolverhampton Wand.—Parkes; Shaw, Parkin, Sunderland, Munro, McAlle, McCalliog, Hibbitt, Gould, Richards, Wagstaffe. Sub: Hegan.

Manchester City.—Corrigan; Jefries, Connor, Doyle, Booth, Oakes, Summerbee, Heslop, Davies, Lee, Mellor. Sub: Donachie.

SHEFFIELD UNITED BEAT CHAMPIONS

Newly-promoted Sheffield United went to the top of the First Division by beating the champions, Arsenal, 1-0 at Highbury, so retaining their 100 per cent. record after four matches.

NEILL NAMED FOR N. IRELAND POST

Terry Neill, the Hull City manager, was last night appointed to the part-time post of manager of Northern Ireland's international team in succession to Billy Bingham, now the £12,000-a-year Greek national coach.

Transferred from Bangor to Arsenal in 1959 for £2,500, Neill, at 20, became Northern Ireland's youngest ever captain during the 1963 season. He will be considered as a player for Northern Ireland.

Forest let early lead slip away

By DAVID MILLER

Nottm For. 2 Southampton 3

NOTTINGHAM Forest, must have felt they were sitting pretty when Martin scored in the first half and Moore added another just after half time, but Southampton came back with three goals in 19 minutes.

Forest had scored only three times in their first three games and both teams had the look of men who will find goals hard to come by. Most of the play was spent duelling in midfield, with Cormack and Rees giving Forest the edge.

Young McKenzie again showed distinct promise in Forest's front line.

Rees went closest with a difficult, high left foot hook from a header by Martin. Southampton achieved very little, just once Channon getting through on the right but shooting obliquely and just wide.

Caught napping

Martin's goal was hit with tremendous force from the back of the penalty area as the defence was caught napping by a cross from Moore, who scored the second with a free kick soon after half time.

Southampton hit back within two minutes, McGrath heading down Jenkins's corner to Fisher, and ten minutes after that a midfield lapse by Cormack allowed Paine to lay on a simple goal for Stokes.

Southampton went ahead when Kirkup crossed high into the penalty area. Channon headed down and Jenkins, popping up from nowhere let fly with a first-time shot that flew high into the corner of the net.

Nottingham Forest: Barron; Hindley, Winfield, Chapman, O'Kane, Fraser, Rees, McKenzie, Martin (N), Cormack, Moore.

Southampton: Martin (E.); Kirkup, Fry, Fisher, McGrath, Gabriel, Paine, Channon, Stokes, O'Neil, Jenkins.

Wignall earns late point for Derby

By ROLAND ORTON

Coventry ... 2 Derby ... 2

AFTER Derby had conceded two goals, both as the result of mistakes by Roy McFarland, who was playing his first game this season, they surged back to snatch a point through Frank Wignall four minutes from time.

Derby after their 2-0 win over Leicester on Saturday had Roy McFarland at right-half with club captain Terry Hennessey as substitute.

Derby, using four strikers, a policy which manager Brian Clough has described as "a bit of a gamble," but which paid off handsomely against Leicester, moved more smoothly than Coventry in the first 20 minutes.

But both sides were finding it difficult to penetrate each other's back four and Todd was in top form for Derby. Glazier smartly dealt with a pass headed down by O'Hare near goal and intended for Wignall, who collided with the post.

Awkward bounce

After a long period of probing Coventry went ahead five minutes before the interval. A long goal-kick by Glazier bounced awkwardly and, as McFarland hesitated, Joicey raced in, gained possession and ran on to drive past Boulton.

This was McFarland's first game this season after recovering from a 'flu virus, and at times in the first half he looked as though he was finding the pace of the game difficult.

The game livened up considerably after the break. Carr tested Boulton with a hard low drive and Hunt had the Derby defence in a tangle with clever work in the centre.

But, in the 53rd minute Derby drew level. Hinton crossed from the right, Brazier only partially cleared and Hector, trying to shoot, miscued and the ball ran on to O'Hare who had only to stroke it home.

Five minutes later Coventry regained the lead. McFarland, having a nightmare of a game, tried to pass back but Joicey dashed in and was fouled by Boulton as he tried to shoot. Hunt scored from the penalty—his third goal this season.

Derby surged back and in the 86th minute Wignall converted a Hinton corner.

McFarland will want to forget this game, for apart from his two mistakes, he drove direct at Glazier from only six yards midway through the second half.

Coventry: Glazier; Smith, Cattlin, Mortimer, Blockley, Barry, Young, Carr, Joicey, Hunt, McGuire.

Derby Co.: Boulton; Webster, Robson, McGovern, McFarland, Todd, Gemmill, Wignall, O'Hare, Hector, Hinton.

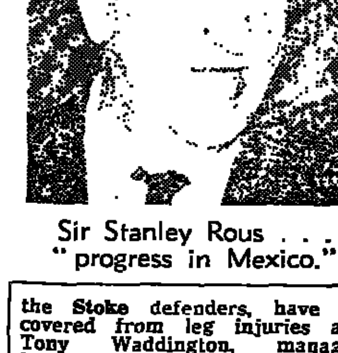
TELL CLUBS WHAT IS HAPPENING—ROUS

By ROBERT OXBY

SIR STANLEY ROUS, President of FIFA, while joining the ranks of those in favour of the efforts of the Football Association and the League to clean up soccer, has criticised the way in which they set out to achieve their object.

Sir Stanley, recalling that FIFA had faced a similar problem before the World Cup in Mexico last year, said: "I personally addressed all officials, managers and players, stressing that good behaviour on the field rested with them.

"At the same time, I told them that we were getting tough with offenders. I must say that it is a pity it has not been done in this way in England. I think it is best to tell everybody what is happening."



Sir Stanley Rous . . . "progress in Mexico."

Sir Stanley revealed that the European Union of Football Associations had issued instructions to all their members for an improvement in the standard of discipline. "Considerable progress was made in Mexico, and the FA were asked to take stronger action in England last year."

The news that there is a world-wide campaign to improve the image of the game might bring comfort to those who have been outraged by the severity of official action this season.

Meanwhile, Terry Venables, the Queen's Park Rangers captain and former England forward, who is a member of the Professional Footballers' Association, has urged the authorities to call an amnesty in respect of the sendings-off and bookings which have marked the start of this season. He feels the point has been made.

Malcolm Macdonald, Newcastle's £178,000 forward, who scored three goals against Liverpool on Saturday and then went off with concussion, will be fit to play against Huddersfield at St James's Park tonight.

Mike Bernard and Alan Bloor, the Stoke defenders, have recovered from leg injuries and Tony Waddington, manager, hopes to field an unchanged side for tonight's match against Leicester at the Victoria Ground.

Capital draws look best for Treble

By TREVOR WILLIAMSON

TREBLE CHANCE entrants should concentrate on the Second Division games in London on Saturday. They could provide rich score-draw fare.

Two matches in the capital have a derby flavour. The first is at Shepherd's Bush, where Queen's Park Rangers play Millwall.

Rangers have plenty of goal potential and, provided Millwall shed some of their attacking inhibitions, as I believe they will, a score-draw is in prospect.

At The Valley Charlton entertain Watford, from just out of town. Their two previous League clashes have resulted in a Watford win and a draw, and a second draw is on the cards.

Five draws

Another Second Division clash, Bristol City v Middlesbrough, could also end all-square. This fixture has finished level five times in 10 games. The Orient, with Ian Bowyer in scoring form, seem capable of a point at Sunderland.

Best-looking draw in the First Division is West Bromwich Albion's visit to newly-promoted Sheffield United, who have made a flying start. But with Albion tighter in defence since Don Howe became manager, this could well be a hard-fought affair. Another Treble match to note is Manchester City v Tottenham.

Because of a late kick-off the Torquay v Bristol Rovers match is not included on most coupons.

WILSON'S 2-0 IN 10 OVERS

By MIKE STEVENSON at Bradford

FIRM drizzle descending unrelentingly from the Bradford murk prevented any play until 2.50 yesterday, and the Yorkshire-Leicestershire match petered out into a draw.

Yorkshire declared at their overnight 325 for six with a lead of 121, and Leicestershire weathered 90 minutes and 10 overs to score 55 for two before Boycott cried "enough."

Wilson took both wickets and did not concede a run in his 10 overs. Steele batted throughout the two hours and scored only six singles.

The effects of the heavy roller took some little time to wear off, during which Steele and Dudleston faced Nicholson and Old with complete confidence. But after Nicholson had made a couple of deliveries lift, Wilson relieved him at the football stand end.

Dudleston, who had scored 25 out of 29, pushed forward in Wilson's second, but was dropped by Hampshire at backward-short leg. Two deliveries later, however, he nicked an intended on-drive on to his pad and was well taken at forward-short leg by Old.

Hampshire instantly atoned by catching Norman in the same position and, at once, the game appeared to have risen, phoenix-like, from its moist ashes. But Inman and Steele, massively inactive, coped firmly enough with the slowly turning ball.

GLOUCESTER REAP 23 POINTS HAUL

By HENRY BEVINGTON at Chesterfield

DERBYSHIRE, seeking their second win of the season, make a bold chase for 248 in 185 minutes at Chesterfield yesterday, before losing to Gloucestershire by 43 runs with just 10 balls of the match left.

Not until their last pair were together did Derbyshire attempt to save the game, but Hendrick was caught in Allen's leg trap—giving Gloucestershire a haul of 23 points to equal the record under current regulations—for a just reward after a reasonable declaration.

A sound start was provided by Hall and Gibbs, but attempts to savage the wily Mortimore, on a damp pitch giving all the help a top-class off-spinner needs, cost three quick wickets, including the vital one of Wilkins.

In the next 22 overs, however, Page and Harvey, improvising and hitting over the top, added 101. Both completed half-centuries, although Harvey enjoyed escapes off Allen and Procter. And until they fell in quick succession the match was being tilted Derbyshire's way.

Unwise hook

Since Buxton had also gone cheaply, aiming an injudicious hook at Procter, no recognised batting was left. But, with 54 still wanted from seven overs, bats were flung cheerfully until the last pair valiantly, but unsuccessfully, tried to block out the final five overs.

GLAMORGAN IN GO-SLOW

Glamorgan made no serious attempt to score 272 in 220 minutes against Somerset at Cardiff yesterday and the match petered out to a tame draw.

Fredericks produced only one scoring shot in 45 minutes before lunch, but afterwards showed the other side of his character with five sparkling fours in his 49.

However, Glamorgan fell so far behind the clock that, when the compulsory 20 overs began, they still needed 144 runs. Then Lewis and Walker hit 88 in an hour, and they were still together at 171 for three when the match finished with only eight of the 20 overs having been bowled.

Earlier, Somerset had declared following a punishing partnership between Robinson and Clarkson after three wickets had tumbled for the addition of only nine runs.

Lancs beat Hants with 10 balls left

By D. J. RUTNAGUR at Bournemouth

HAMPSHIRE, set to score 217 runs for victory in 157 minutes, were beaten by 14 runs by Lancashire, who had declared at 226 for four and had only 10 balls to spare when they won in a pulsating finish at Dean Park yesterday.

Fortune swayed one way and then another as Hampshire gaily chased the runs in search of what would have been only their second win of the season.

Their hopes were raised by Lancashire hands closing less surely round catches than usual, but they were dashed at the very end by two hysterical run outs.

Hampshire got runs easily enough against the quick bowlers. Richards and Greenidge, dropped at deep square-leg from a sweep off Hughes, laid on a base of 55 runs from 16 overs.

Simmons, who took four wickets, came on at this stage and in his first two overs had both opening batsmen. His first ball pierced Richards' back-foot defence and Greenidge was bowled playing across. Hughes then accounted for Turner at 70.

Sullivan's failure to hold a lofted on-drive by Gilliat off Simmons checked Lancashire's progress and Gilliat put on 52 with Marshall before he went at 122. Sainsbury went 17 runs later, but Jesty quickly restored the necessary rhythm.

Marshall and Jesty took Hampshire to within 51 runs of their objective when a diving catch at cover by Bond made a vital breakthrough. Stephenson played his part, but then came the run outs, the first of which brought down Marshall in full flight at 42.

The preliminaries were also most exhilarating. The two Lloyds were the dominating figures while Lancashire scored 226. David Lloyd made a brilliant 81 and Clive 59 in even time with two sixes and six boundaries.

Third Test — Fifth Day

NERVE, COURAGE, & VISHVANATH SEE INDIA THROUGH

India reached 174 for six to win a Test and a series, in England for the first time.

By E. W. SWANTON at The Oval

AFTER all but 40 years, and at the 22nd time of asking, India have won a Test in England. Nor can anyone possibly begrudge their success, however much it may have owed to the disastrous England second innings batting.

Allowing that, it still needed an effort of nerve and courage on India's part to make the 173 they needed in the fourth innings.

When the last day began with the score 76 for two, India still requiring 97. The runs came after three hours of the tensest possible cricket.

England, as was to be expected, made every run a struggle, and had nothing with which to reproach themselves so far as their outcricket was concerned. The bowlers simply had not sufficient runs to bowl against on a terribly sluggish pitch.

Sardesai played very well in the crisis for India, while Engineer supplied a robust, experienced front when it was most needed.

But the most important innings was the 33 made with the utmost calmness in almost three hours by little Vishvanath (at 22 the second youngest player on the field after Gavaskar).

Quick blow struck

As if the drama intrinsic in the situation when play started was not sufficient, the first event of the morning heightened it vastly by dealing India a blow they could least afford, and doing so in the way calculated most to depress them.

Without a run added Sardesai chopped Underwood to short third man, and there was a second's hesitation before both batsmen embarked on the run. D'Oliveira's throw was straight and hard to Knott's gloves and Wadekar narrowly—oh, so narrowly—failed to make his ground.

The decision was a difficult one and umpire Rhodes must be relieved to know that the TV playback supported his verdict, by the smallest margin.

After his excellent innings on Monday, Wadekar seemed the linchpin of his side. What now? Against the accuracy of Illingworth and Underwood, Sardesai and young Vishvanath for a long while found it hard to squeeze more than the odd single.

Underwood switched

When Illingworth switched Underwood round, and brought on d'Oliveira, Vishvanath cut uppishly and Hutton flung up an instinctive hand to what was perhaps a technical chance from which the batsmen took two.

Otherwise Vishvanath and Sardesai were rectitude itself, not tempted to rashness by the bristling field. Illingworth himself replaced d'Oliveira, and until lunch the two spinners thereafter performed in harness, apart from six extremely accurate but unmenacing overs from Snow.

The pitch was even slower than hitherto: Snow could bang no response from it.

It was immediately on Underwood's returning instead of Snow that the stand of 48, that had stretched over 1¾ hours, ended when Sardesai was brilliantly caught wide right-handed by Knott.

Sardesai was playing defensively to a length ball that straightened.

With the cool and experienced Sardesai out of the way, England put all the pressure possible on Solkar and Vishvanath. After staying 20 minutes for a single, the left-hander seized on an uppish length ball but drove it within reach of Underwood who caught it easily left-handed: 134-5, 39 to win.

Engineer aimed a horrible whoosh at his first ball, and luckily for him missed contact. A little later even Vishvanath did the same thing with a similar result. Nerves were still a factor—indeed they were England's only hope.

But thenceforward Engineer kept his head and took what chances came to punch the ball off the back foot, while his little partner continued to bat according to the text book.

In the 20 minutes before lunch the sixth wicket ticked up 12 precious runs, so that when they came in India at 146-5 needed 27 more.

These had all but arrived when with three only needed Vishvanath tried to finish the thing in one blow, and was caught behind off Luckhurst who had been brought on as a last despairing gesture.

A square cut by Abid Ali was swallowed up in the surging crowd, and all was over.

Double triumph

India deserve the warmest congratulations for their double effort this year, victory over the West Indies followed by this.

Chandra's fine bowling on Monday had made the vision possible, but it was indeed a team effort, wherein Wadekar's cool, shrewd handling on the field played a crucial part.

Knott dives to catch Sardesai to end a fourth wicket partnership of 48 and leave India still needing 49.

Kent take a chance and crash to enterprising Essex

By JOHN MASON at Chelmsford

KENT, batting well only on Saturday afternoon, had to take a gamble at Chelmsford yesterday to strengthen their chances of keeping the county championship. The decision ended in defeat by Essex by three wickets.

Denness was interested only in victory. That meant risking defeat against the urgent hustling of which Essex, set to score 194 in an hour and 20 overs, are fully capable. Essex won in the 19th over.

So Kent, seeking 17 points after declaring at 205 for seven, got seven only; Essex, who played better the longer the match progressed, took 19. East, as a bowler, Ward and Taylor made that likely. Boyce made it certain.

In four overs he struck a violent 34 as Kent bravely kept Johnson, off-spin, and Julien, slow left-arm, yesterday in the firing line. After an hour Essex were 75 for two off 20 overs. In the next 19 overs they thrashed another 122 runs, Hobbs finishing off the match with a straight six.

Bonus four

Essex batted on for 40 minutes and 40 runs at the start of the day. The fall of four wickets was immaterial, and as soon as East, in the 79th over, had secured a fourth batting point at 251 for nine, Taylor declared.

East embarrassed Kent further by turning the ball vastly and causing almost as many complications as exist in Chelmsford's one-way traffic system.

WORCESTER GET TIME TO DRAW

By A. S. R. WINLAW at Worcester

SUSSEX batted on too long at Worcester yesterday and the match, not surprisingly, ended in a draw.

Worcestershire were set 245 to win in 150 minutes and 20 overs, and, with acting captain Headley caught in Tony Buss's second over, there was little chance of a rather inexperienced batting side recording the highest total of the match.

Ormrod and Yardley, with 65 for the third wicket, gave flickering hopes of a Worcester victory, but a fine catch in the gully by Graves ended Yardley's resistance.

In the final 20 overs Worcester, with four wickets down, needed 119 to win, and they finished at 182 for six.

Prideaux's 72

Sussex started the day in the commanding position of 79 for three and a lead of 138. They lost three quick wickets, but Prideaux (72) and Griffith (36), with an effective combination of defence and attack, put Sussex on top again.

When Griffith was out the time looked ripe, with Sussex 218 ahead, for a declaration. But they batted for a further 25 minutes and valuable bowling time was lost.

WARWICK HIT BY SOBERS

By MICHAEL BOOTH at Trent Bridge

WARWICKSHIRE'S confident stride towards the championship was checked at Nottingham yesterday when, steered by a responsible innings of 89 by Gary Sobers, Notts won by five wickets with seven balls of the last 20 overs to spare.

Warwickshire took nine points, their opponents double that number, so the news of Kent's defeat by Essex was especially pleasing to Warwick ears.

Minus the important contribution of Kanhai, who had pulled a hamstring and could not bat, Warwick increased their overnight lead of 54 to 218, leaving Notts to score the runs in 110 minutes plus 20 overs.

When Harris, Frost and Bolus went for 25, their chances did not look good, but two dropped catches helped Notts out. When Sobers was 25 she hooked Tidy in and out of Hemmings's hands at square-leg. Next over Hassan, on 10, was dropped by Whitehouse at silly point off Gibbs.

Out-cricket lapses

These two lapses underlined the fact that in this match Warwick's catching, ground fielding and, to a lesser extent, bowling had not been up to the standard of champions.

Their batting was a different matter, and the hero of their second innings was Mike Smith, who with Hemmings added 65 in an hour against some pretty tight bowling.

Sobers was half an hour on one, but when he opened out he drove, cut, hooked and pulled with devastating power. Aided by Smedley, Hassan and White, he guided Notts safely home, striking 15 fours and a six. The unbeaten sixth-wicket stand put on 91 in 48 minutes.

TODAY'S TELEVISION

SEAN DAY-LEWIS'S CHOICE

With the problems of the ship-building industry at present to the fore there will be extra fascination in the first of the new All in a Day (BBC-2, 8.50) series, called by its director Rex Bloomstein, "The Launch." In all six films of the series the cameras will concentrate on a few hours of intense activity, taking the view of idle bystanders gripped by the sight of other people working and not always sure what is happening.

For "The Launch" eight camera teams watched, from dawn to 3.50 p.m. on March 26 last, the preparations for the launching of the 252,000-ton tanker Texaco Great Britain into the River Tyne. The editing is designed to emphasise the atmosphere of cumulative tension building up to an important event.

The Tyneside ship builders at work are fortuitously placed next to Liverpool dockers on the brink of an unofficial strike in Jim Allen's The Big Flame (BBC-1, 9.20). This is a repeat of the remarkable Kestrel production directed on dockland location by Ken Loach, in which the author predictably makes plain his rather one-sided view of industrial relations.

The largest audience of the evening will doubtless be that for Miss Great Britain 1971 (ITV, 8.0), a Lancashire event recorded by Yorkshire Television cameras.

U.S. CALL FOR WAGE CONTROLS AFTER FREEZE ENDS

By ALAN OSBORN in Washington

FOR the first time yesterday, a key member of the Nixon Government said that "some form of control" over wages and prices will have to be set up when the 90-day price freeze ends on Nov. 12.

The President's Commerce Secretary, Mr Maurice Stans, said after meeting American industrial leaders that it was both his view and that of businessmen that there would have to be controls in order to preserve any gains that had been made in freezing prices.

Although most American economists and politicians believe this to be so, no leading member of the Administration has said so explicitly so far.

Through the Federal Home Loan Bank Board yesterday, the Nixon Government cut its mortgage charges and reduced the cash reserve requirements of savings and loan companies (building societies).

Influencing rates

This was expected to make more money available for home-buying and to check the recent rise in mortgage interest rates.

It was the Government's first deliberate move to try to influence interest rates, which are not covered by the 90-day freeze.

This omission has enraged American labour unions, many of which have pledged to oppose the freeze.

A crucial meeting will be held in Washington today between Mr George Meany, President of the AFL-CIO (the American TUC) and Mr Leonard Woodcock, head of the United Auto Workers' Union, on a joint strategy to fight the freeze.

There have been reports of a nationwide political strike and of legal suits against the Government.

Economic officials remained reserved again yesterday over the performance of the dollar in the world's main foreign exchange markets. It was the second day of generally floating rates following a week during which the markets were shut as dealers attempted to work out the implications of President Nixon's new policy.

Erratic trading

Although several important currencies rose further in value against the dollar yesterday, the gains were far short of those hoped for by America.

The authorities believe the dollar could be devalued by 12 per cent. or more against strong European and other currencies, thus substantially restoring price advantages to American goods and services in world markets.

Treasury officials insisted that trading was still light and the dollar had not yet been properly tested.

The International Monetary Fund has now virtually suggested that America should formally devalue the dollar by declaring a higher price of gold. gold.

This has been rejected by the White House but the signs yesterday were that the IMF would persevere with its plan and try to force it on the Americans at an early international conference of leading industrial powers.

U.S. NAVY TO GET FRENCH MISSILES

By Our Naval Correspondent

The United States Navy is to follow the Royal Navy's example in ordering the French anti-ship missile Exocet, or "flying fish." The Boeing Company is to manufacture it under licence from the French firm Aerospatiale (SNIAS).

Mr H. J. McClellan, general manager of Boeing's Naval Systems Division, said: "We see Exocet as an interim system to fill the United States Navy's need for a ship-to-ship missile. It is the most advanced missile of this type in production today in the free world."

Exocet has a range of over 20 miles and flies at wave-skipping heights. The British Aircraft Corporation has signed a contract to share in the manufacture of 300 Exocets at an estimated cost of nearly £23 million.

300 FEARED DEAD IN CAPE FLOODS

By Our Cape Town Correspondent

About 300 African and Cape Coloured labourers working on the banks of the Gamtoos River in Eastern Cape Province are feared dead in heavy flooding.

Damage to farms and citrus orchards is believed to total nearly £11 million.

CONGO REBELS TRIED

Six threaten to retaliate against U.S.

By ROBERT HUTCHISON in Geneva

THE European Economic Community accused the United States yesterday of conducting a "beggar my neighbour" policy in international trade.

In a strong attack on President Nixon's new economic programme, the Six reserved their right to retaliate under Article 23 of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade if no satisfactory adjustment of the American anti-trade measures was quickly adopted.

The Common Market's leading trade expert, Commissioner Ralf Dahrendorf of Germany, told an emergency meeting of the GATT council in Geneva yesterday that the U.S. measures would "gravely affect world trade" if they were permitted to remain in force for any substantial time.

Main targets

The three main targets for Herr Dahrendorf's criticism were:

1—The 10 per cent. American surcharge on imports.

2—The proposed 10 per cent. job development tax credit.

3—The new "Disc" legislation for giving export rebates on certain indirect taxes incurred by American industry during production.

The last two devices were described by various delegates as "clearly discriminatory." Herr Dahrendorf asserted that the United States alone was to blame for her balance of payment difficulties, and not the trade and financial policies pursued by her trading partners.

The American balance of payments problem was not based on trade considerations, "but the measures announced by President Nixon have thrown the burden on international trade," Herr Dahrendorf said in reply to an American statement defending President Nixon's programme.

The American position was upheld by Mr Nathaniel Samuels, Deputy Under-Secretary of State for Economic Affairs.

Protectionist trend

Herr Dahrendorf said that if the measures were not quickly withdrawn they could mark the start of escalation in protectionist legislation around the world.

"There is no justification for these measures in international trade," he said. "They are totally unacceptable to the EEC."

Herr Dahrendorf requested that a GATT working party be immediately formed to identify the conditions under which the American surcharge could be quickly removed, and then to set a time limit for its withdrawal.

The four-man British delegation to the two-day Council meeting was led by Sir Max Brown, Second Permanent Secretary, Department of Trade and Industry. A British reaction to the US measures was expected to be presented to the Council today.

PEKING VERSION OF NIXON PLAN

By Our Hongkong Correspondent

China summed up President Nixon's save the dollar policy in one sharp sentence yesterday: "It is meant to fleece the American people and to shift the worsening American financial monetary and economic crises on to other countries," Peking's official news agency claimed that in seeking protection for the dollar Mr Nixon "actually demands that other countries sacrifice their own interests to bolster up the dollar's privileged position."

CANADA KEEPS NATO STRENGTH

Canada is not planning to cut its Nato forces, according to a White Paper on Defence issued in Ottawa yesterday. The force was reduced to about 5,000 men last year.

The 2,800-strong land force in Europe is to get new equipment and will adopt a new tactical reconnaissance role.—Reuter.

elected Opposition to play in the running of Northern Ireland.

He had also made it clear that the Government was considering still further measures in this direction.

The Government would not be deflected from this policy by the attitude of the Opposition, nor would it be influenced by "those on the other side of the political spectrum who cry 'Betrayal' at every sign of change and progress in the community."

After making an appeal for "constructive talks" among the parties, Mr Faulkner said: "The Government is certainly willing to approach things in a non-partisan manner, seeking not to make short-term political capital, but to serve the whole community and common good."

Gesture of strength

Mr Faulkner's statement is seen in Northern Ireland not only as a gesture of strength in response to the Opposition's campaign and the support it is getting from Dublin, but also as an important proof of his determination to keep open the lines of communication with Opposition leaders.

Ministers met Unionist MPs and Senators yesterday to report on the latest developments.

I understand that much anxiety was expressed by backbenchers about attempts being made to intimidate businessmen into closing their shops and factories as a protest against internment.

STEINER SAYS BRITAIN CAUSED SUDAN TROUBLE

West German mercenary Rolf Steiner yesterday told a military tribunal trying him in Khartoum that the Southern Sudan problem was the result of "short-sighted and cheap" British colonial policy. Subsequent Khartoum governments followed up that British policy.

Steiner, 41-year-old former French Foreign legionary and Biafra mercenary, has pleaded not guilty to a series of capital offences of helping Southern Sudan guerrillas. He has pleaded guilty to entering the Sudan illegally.

He said Israel had specific objectives in Southern Sudan which did not include genuine relief to the inhabitants. "Israeli intervention in Southern Sudan was an obstacle to efforts to reach an amicable settlement." He thanked the court in his defence statement for giving him a "fair and objective trial."—Reuter.

DELAYED CZECH POLLS PLANNED FOR NOVEMBER

By Our Correspondent in Vienna

General and local elections will take place in Czechoslovakia on November 26 and 27 after three years of postponements to allow consolidation of the country's political situation after the 1968 upheavals.

Reports from Prague say that nearly half of the former deputies to local and national bodies will not stand for re-election. The occasion is likely to be used for a large-scale purge of all persons suspected of sympathies with the now discredited Dubcek régime.

The Czech Communist Party newspaper Rude Pravo, said recently election programmes would be based on the results and resolutions of the 14th Communist Party Congress of last May, and on the directives of the new five-year plan.

The man left early again on Monday and that was the last they saw of him. Police have taken possession of the briefcase he left behind.

As the hunt intensified throughout the country, the Lancashire Chief Constable, Mr William Palfrey, urged the nation to search its conscience.

Time to think

He apologised for the huge traffic delays building up outside the resort at road blocks, but said: "I hope these give motorists time to think what has brought about this situation in our modern society.

"We shall do all we can to help the motoring public but the fact is we have got to protect society. The remedy, however, is in society's hands.

"If you are dissatisfied with the corruption of society, the way of living and the crimes of violence, it will do no good to increase the police force 10 times or double the number of prisons.

"The cure is in the hands of society—the parents, and the education of children particularly."

Mr Palfrey went on: "There should be a little less talking by the minority groups and a little more action by the average majority who, like me, have a code of conduct.

"Still, I sometimes wonder whether society wants such a code," he added.

Last night the two wounded police officers—PC Ian Hampson, 22, and Carl Wilkes, 37—were said to be making steady progress in Victoria Hospital, Blackpool.
